Witt and Gedo elected to chief UA offices

Top field of six teams as 41.5 percent cast ballots

By Ron Norman

Michael R. Witt '84 and Inge Gedo '85 were elected Wednesday to the offices of Undergraduate Association president and vice president, receiving 57 percent of the votes in the sixth and final round of preferential ballot counting.

Charles P. Brown '84 and Katherine M. Adams '84 finished second in the overall ballot, while Sara Sprung '84 and Erik Toomey '84 edged out Shliva and Kenneth L. Freedman '84 and Jean Kwo '84 were eliminated in the second round.

The initial voter turnout for the Undergraduate Association elections was 1827 — 41.5 percent of the 4415 eligible undergraduates. "I thought it would be pretty good, considering the weather," said David M. Libby '85, Undergraduate Association election commissioner.

"I was confident," Witt said after his victory Wednesday, "until this morning. He said, and he had "prepared for the worst."

"We want to capitalize on the momentum," he start talks with the administration immediately, said Witt. He said at a campus forum this week he is prepared to spend 15 to 20 hours per week on his duties as chief UA officer.

Witt plans to reduce the General Assembly to 40 or 50 inter-branches to investigate. Half the members may represent activities, he said. He is not in favor of ratifying the voting power of a living group representative and the number of residents represent. Living groups could petition for an additional representative.

"We are prepared to trash the [General Assembly] if necessary."

News Analysis

Class elections fail to draw

By Burt S. Kalski

The election of Undergraduate Association and class officers failed to draw significant student interest again this year. Several races failed to attract hopefuls, and several candidates achieved office unopposed.

Three classes — 1983, 1985, and 1986 — each saw but one student running for treasurer; the Class of 1984 had no candidate for that office and the student elected garnered but 52 votes. Nor did the Class of 1984 have a single candidate for the offices of secretary, publicity/newsletter chairman, or school chairman.

The publicity/newsletter chairmen for the freshman and sophomore classes were elected unopposed.

Only two elections — Class of 1983 secretary and Class of 1985 vice president — provided close competition. Each required four rounds of preferential ballot counting.

Undergraduate Association President Kenneth H. Segel '83 blamed Wednesday's poor weather for this year's low turnout. Only 40.6 percent of undergraduates voted for class officers, and 41.5 percent voted for the top Undergraduate Association offices.

Gray testifies on immigration

By Barry S. Surman

A bill tightening US immigration rules "will have an adverse impact on the quality of education and research ... by making it more difficult for highly educated scientists, engineers, and scholars to remain temporarily or permanently" in this country, President Paul E. Gray '54 told a House subcommittee in Washington yesterday afternoon.

"We want to capitalize on the momentum," he started talks with the administration immediately, said Witt. He said at a campus forum this week he is prepared to spend 15 to 20 hours per week on his duties as chief UA officer.

Gregory speaks on US policy, rights, blacks

By Burt S. Kalski

"You can make the difference," Dick Gregory said to a capacity audience in 26-100 last Thursday night, March 3, at the Second Annual Shirley Jackson Lecture sponsored by the Graduate Students Association, the Black Students' Union, and the Lecture Series Committee.

"Colleges are complacent," Gregory said, claiming they teach their students to do things that eventually kill them like sex, alcohol and drugs. "Instruments of destruction are brought to you, but the good things are hidden.""College give "education" said, and "education is like denning animals."

"When we understand we're teaching processes are in the mind — open up with love." He said white people are unaware of things about blacks, like stupidity and laziness, and they can't be the boss of us, scaring the black.

"The only people capable of showing the general population a truly egalitarian and great society are the black leaders. We want people to re-member and donate money to the local black organizations."

"How long will it take whites to wake up to reality?" Gregory asked. He claimed the government discriminates not only against blacks, but歧视ing the whites. He said the government could not possibly release these figures to the public.

The space program is a hoax, Gregory said, citing it as an example of government fraud. He

Witt elected to lead Undergraduate Association

The solution to the problem of high education costs is to cut back programs, although increased tuition may be necessary. Witt said, "It's not enough to come up with solutions... but they should have a say in what is cut out.

Students pay only $80 million in tuitions and fees, but MIT's academic budget is $150 million, Witt pointed out. He said building new facilities when the Institute is operating at a deficit is a sign of waste.

A student activities project may be made unnecessary if the Office of the Dean for Student Affairs were to cut funding for the Undergraduate Association, Witt said, but added he opposes such a fee. Committees such as the Student Center Committee and the Language and Culture Committee should not be required to give funds to the student government, he said.

The Office of the Dean for Student Affairs should provide a fixed amount of support for student activities, one which can not be reduced, Witt continued.

"I don't want to put a lot of my energy into the student government," Witt said. He would like other committees to work on the projects. He supports a move for a shuttle bus, a newsletter and an undergraduate club. He encourages the other candidates to become involved in the projects.

Developing a Social Conscience

By Rev. Michael McGarry of the Paulist Fathers

"Think of the starving children in China and eat that food on your plate," our parents told us. That same message is still needed today.

We are not only beneficiaries of the skills and knowledge of those who preceded us, but we are also responsible for the results and actions of our own generation. We must take an active role in this process. We must take responsibility for our actions.

The Catholic Church's social teaching urges us to see the connection between our eating habits and the problems of other countries. We must work to end hunger and malnutrition in the world.

"It is not enough to be aware of the problem. We must act on it," said Witt.

The solution to the problem of hunger is not only to give food to the hungry, but to work to end the causes of hunger. We must work to end poverty and to promote peace.

"The solution to the problem of hunger is not to give food to the hungry," said Witt. "It is to give them the tools to help themselves.

Pope blasts injustices in Guatemala — Pope John Paul II called for an end to "flagrant injustices" occurring in Guatemala, citing torture, abduction, and the violation of "man's right to life" as crimes. The Pope, speaking to Indian peasants in the city of Quetzaltenango, also asked for laws to protect the Indian majority from oppressive treatment by the government. The Pope visited El Salvador to renew the strength of his church in the country — ten priests and nuns have been murdered since the mid-1970's.

Burford resigns from EPA — Anne Burford resigned Wednesday as administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. President Ronald W. Reagan in a related move agreed to give congressmen investigating the EPA full access to agency documents which he had withheld earlier, claiming executive privilege. Both decisions were announced after Congress charged the EPA with giving the withheld documents to industrial polluters.

Reagan proposes $110 million military aid to El Salvador — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told Congressional leaders Wednesday that the Reagan administration is considering a $110 million emergency military aid package to El Salvador, an increase of $50 million from earlier estimates. President Reagan expressed his determination to keep the central American nation from falling into the hands of leftist guerrillas, but also said he will not "Americanize" the conflict.

Justice Department widens FBI spy role — The Justice Department expanded the Federal Bureau of Investigation's authority to infiltrate and monitor domestic groups and alleged terrorists. Agents may, under the new guidelines, monitor groups during dormant periods, use informants prior to having a "reason- able indication" a crime will be committed, and gather information in the public domain.

Massachusetts beer dealers sued over bottle law — Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti filed suit this week against 13 of the state's beer wholesalers and the corporation they formed to collect containers covered by the bottle bill. Francis charged the groups with price fixing, monopolization, and violation of the two-month old bottle deposit law. The suit seeks civil penalties totaling $700,000.

Weather

More rain — Today will be damp and dreary, with periods of rain and drizzle. High temperatures will be near 40 degrees, and low temperatures will be in the middle 30's. Showers are probable Saturday, with high temperatures reaching the lower 40's.

South Africa policy supports Apartheid

While most Americans, South Africa is a country thousands of miles and a hemisphere distant from the United States. But Black American, South Africa embodies the contradictions which are near his face. It is in South Africa that the emphatically racist policy of Apartheid, a custom rooted in both ethnic origin, keeps blacks, who comprise 71 percent of the population, enslaved at miniscule wages to the white economic structure. The blacks are second-class citizens, reduced to labor houses, called "homelands," which comprise only 13 percent of the area of the country. South Africa is the living embodiment of the evil and brutality blacks have fought against in this country for two centuries.

But perhaps you have heard of the recent war in El Salvador, revolutions in Iran, massacres in India. What can we Americans be expected to do? First it must be realized that South Africa differs from the typical Third World model of oppression. It is a first world nation. It is fully developed and technologically efficient country, and an integral part of the world economic structure. Thus, the blacks are not the leader. Yet it is an anomaly to modern society. It is a country in strong need of skilled and managerial workers, but rather than allowing blacks to gain skills and the benefits of education, South Africa represses and forces them to low-paying, low-productive jobs. This repress to help maintain that the blacks are a racial oppression called Apartheid.

During the Carter administration, a firm policy of human rights was established. It was made clear to South Africa that if it wished to continue its anti-apartheid policy, political participation was made, would be tolerated in our country. The policy of the Reagan administration, euphemistically entitl "constructive engagement," contrasts sharply. The administration's tacit endorsement of human rights enforced by the South African government, in the guiding principles of South Africa is untouchable. If we cannot abolish Apartheid, a caste system based on race, we cannot allow our existence in a country which has an oppressive and inhuman system. The living hell of South Africa is untouchable.

The economic measures such as dis- rever blue collar and white collar workers to have been used over the years, but they have been largely unsuccess- ful. The most obvious measure against the South African government to force reform. The United States as leader of the free world will continue to stand against the Afrikaner government. The American policy on South Africa must become a major issue in the coming presidential campaign. We who believe in free enterprise, in economic growth, in personal responsibility, must ensure that this is an issue. The living hell that exists on earth that exists in South Africa must be abolished.

To the Editor:

The recent pornography issue has spawned several letters to The Tech. In my opinion, two attitudes toward pornography have been well represented, while the most natural and popular atti- tude has been neglected. The first of the two well-repre- sented attitudes is that of the moral puritan. This is the moral puritan that Mr. Bonugli feels that God has some irrational hatred of sex with the lights on, and is prepared to toss all mankind into a lake of fire to burn that happiness in pun-ishment. He believes further that he and the people who share his views have been chosen to judge for all. The second of the well-repre- sented attitudes is that of the al- truisitric prude. Or perhaps, ra- tional prude. This is the intelli- gent philosopher who under- stands the concepts of rights and freedoms. He doesn't like those who want pornography, but he realizes that it is wrong to im- pose his own opinions upon all. Instead, he seems to share some feelings about pornography with the be-hater, but reacts differ- ently to his feelings because he has a measure of intelligence and morality.

The under-represented attitude is my own. I like sex in my mind both the "R" and the "X" kind. Most X-rated movies are lewd and amoral, and I'll conceed they are poor on these grounds. Not, however, because they contain graphic sex.

Depictions of sexual acts or sex- ual behavior in books, plays, and novels is interesting and ex- citing. I find voyeurism to be pleasingly arousing, and my heightened sexual awareness increases the pleasure of my next sexual encounter. I am also inclined to put greater effort into bringing sexual pleasure to my partner. I know of couples who watch X-rated movies to- gether for this reason.

Sex is a natural, God-given hu- man function. Sexual desire and the sexual drive exist and are normal and okay. I fail to see what is objectionable about much of what is labeled "pornography." Nudity is not degrading. Wo- men's bodies are beautiful. Men look a little funny with their pants off, but I don't feel degrad- ed. Depiction of persons giving others sexual pleasure or puru- lence and violence is not degrading. This is perfectly natu- ral behavior.

I am not a deviant. I am a nor- mal person being honest. I have had many personal rela- tionships with women. I believe that my contact with "pornogra- phy" has had no negative effect on my personality.

I believe that much of the strange dislike (fear) of sex we have in our society stems from taboos against our own de- sires. Embarrassed parents do not talk frankly, and children are left with the impression that sex is a no-no. Our fantasies remain in the closet.

I think that the chauvinistic prudes and the altruistic prudes should be reminded that their mothers did it. And probably in more than one way and sometime with the light on. If not, I only hope that the next genera- tion can be more mature sexually and enjoy a more satisfying sex life.

For a long time I could not fig- ure our why Reagan was so hell- bent on saving El Salvador. It is such a small country that I could not understand why we would spend $500 million a year into it. Then I turned over a TTL logic chip into my $411 lab set. On one re- verse side was scrawled, "Made in El Salvador." Now I under- stand.

The Pornography is interesting

To the Editor:

I think that Mr. Bonugli feels that sexual morality is an out- growth of existentialism, a phi- losophy which stresses self worth and personal responsibility, is "fueling dissension, rebellion against parents and authority, violence, crime, sexual promiscu- ity, and outright immorality." I am not a deviant. I am a nor- tal person being honest. I have had many personal rela- tionships with women. I believe that my contact with "pornogra- phy" has had no negative effect on my personality.

A Human Sieve's demise

The most horrible of fates befell our C-League intramural hockey team last spring: Our goalie graduated and left no one to fill his shoes. We desperately sought a replacement.

We soon found that, for some totally unfathomable reason, most people are unwilling to don pads and interpose themselves between a net and a puck traveling at speeds approaching 100 mph.

Douglas, a gung-ho Navy ROTC type, bravely volunteered to serve as our opening game. He had never played in goal before and wanted to try it. He didn't like it, so the Great Goalie Hunt resumed.

Enter the Human Sieve. He barely knew how to skate, but he strapped on the chest protector and leg pads and wobbled his way out to his position between the pipes.

We began to suspect his goal-tending abilities when he failed to stop any warm-up shots — hardly a good omen. Our worst fears were realized when our opponents' first shot on goal found its way into the net. The Human Sieve was born.

I cannot remember how many other such goals were scored that game, but the number was fairly substantial. Even so, the team lavished its encouragement on the Sieve, knowing full well that no other netminder could be found.

The Athletic Center risked wounded with cries of "Alright! The Human Sieve!" at our third game, as HS faithfully, and perhaps a bit foolhardily, returned to the nets. This time he allowed only four goals and, to our delight, managed to make a few saves.

Weekend preview

Frisbee — The MIT Frisbee Club will be in action on the second floor of the Athletic Center tomorrow. Brandeis will provide the opposition in the ultimate frisbee game scheduled to start at noon. An athletic card is not required for admission.

Fencing — The women's fencing team will be at Holy Cross Sunday for the New England Fencing Championships. The squad placed fifth in last weekend's Northeast Regional.

Swimming — Anne Tulintseff '83, Lori Blackwelder '86, and Marie Issa '86 are at the C.T. Bronton Natatorium in Canton, Ohio this weekend for the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division III Swimming Championships. Tulintseff is competing in one-meter diving; Blackwelder, who won the three-meter diving competition at the New England Championships, is in both the one- and three-meter events; and Issa is in the 50- and 100-yard butterfly and the 100-yard individual medley.

The stage was set for our fourth game. Those of us on defenseAround the Sieve that we would allow no shots on goal. We succeeded for the initial few minutes before the first of several defensive lapses occurred.

I failed to stop the opposition from breaking out of its zone, and one man went in on the Sieve untouched. I swore quietly to myself as the shot was unleashed. The Sieve mustered all of his ability and stopped the puck. "Fall on it!" I pleaded. He did.

A similar situation happened later on. I could not catch up to the breaking puck carrier in time to trip him. Another choice ob-Scents left my lips about the same time as the shot left the stick. Another save.

The Human Sieve only allowed two goals that game, and neither was his fault. Pete Postes may still have nothing to worry about, but we think we have found a goalie. Too bad he's a senior.
