WHY IS BASKET-BALL? LOOKS LIKE IT ISN'T!

DO YOU KNOW THE ANSWERS TO ALL THE QUESTIONS? WHAT IS MEANT BY 'PUBLISH POWER'?

WHY IS A CONTRACT?

"Is it a Contract? No. It Haven't's Enough Evidence."

The business law exams which follow are not necessarily copies of the one which actually appeared in the text, for writing too much is offensive. In actuality, however, are typical of the question states. There are seven such questions, each requiring a memo to be written in the space below. There are six additional questions, each requiring a memo to be written in the space below. There are six additional questions, each requiring a memo to be written in the space below. These questions are as true as possible but they may lack the quality of the answer which appears on an actual exam.

Mr. Albers has been kind enough to allow us to use them and the members of the committee to get a little powered over time in preparation for the exam. The questions are as true as possible but they may lack the quality of the answer which appears on an actual exam.

1. A declared a partnership agreement brief covering the points mentioned in it.
2. (a) Define a contract.
3. A, a town meeting duly assembled, disposed of the citizens of the town who had been residing in the United States for two years. Mr. Dewey. A few agreed to the action. Shall the facts be taken?
4. A declared a contract.

1. A told B that it would come within the week to A, B would give him a good job. It came and A refused to hire him. What, if anything, are B's rights? Explain.
2. A's son, aged 17, was playing ball and negligently threw a ball through a window, damaging a valuable painting in the window. If A were the owner of the painting? If so, what? No.

1. A, a person who really follows the rules of a contract, will take up the question of a possible color change for the remaining two years.
2. (a) Define a contract.
3. A, B and C relative to this matter? Give reasons.

Catholic Club meet for last time this year.

Fr. Scannell, Mr. Kenny of the Globe and Pres. Schmiedeke give short talks.

On Wednesday evening, the Catholic Club held their annual dinner at the Czar. Before the dinner was served, ballots were issued to the members and voting for officers for the coming year took place. Then a most pleasant menu was partaken of, interspersed with music by the various members. At 9:00 P.M. P. M. Tyler, the retiring president, talked to the fellows, thanking them for their hearty support during the year and promising reviews for the most successful season, the club has had. He then introduced W. V. Schmiedeke, the new president.

Mr. Schmiedeke, in a few short remarks emphasized the need of organization and truth in Catholic affairs. He especially urged the fellows to come out for the club, considering the club as an important asset for the little effort expended.

Mr. Scannell, the spirit of the evening, read a letter of greetings of the Boston Globe, was the next speaker and spoke of the influence of a club of thinkers and urged the fellows to come out for the club, considering the club as an important asset for the little effort expended.
