new officers will formally assume their duties at this time.

the annual freshman dinner will be held next wednesday, november 16th, at 6.30 p.m. in the union.

this is the first 1914 social function since the new men have become acquainted with each other, and it is, in fact, the first purely class dinner in the history of the society.

the officers will formally assume their duties on this occasion. several members of the faculty, and if possible, president maclaurin will speak. several important matters will be put before the class in an informal way. chairman kroemer and one or two of the other officers have some things to say to the class, and the plans for the season will probably be decided that night.

for these reasons every freshman should be present, interested in the dinner, and a large attendance is expected.

official count of 1912 class ballots

THE HORNETS NEST

“What are you doing, Dick?” asked Cad as he walked into the latter's room, last evening, to borrow some paper.

“I'm only writing home about that speech of Professor Dean's at our class dinner,” responded the Junior.

“Yes,” put in the Billiken, “his reverence for his parents has forced him to honestly confess that it was love—not books—that has caused his father to inquire whether or not his son was endorsing a library.”

“Well, I must reply that at least my father's son didn't have to sack his own girl's plans in today to buy tickets for Tech night at the Colonnial,” retorted Dick.

“This conversation is getting too warm for little Willie,” remarked the Sophomore. “Say, I want to ask a question.”

“Your usual stunt,” returned Dick. “Let's hear it.”

“What I want to know in which had you rather be, a Tech janitor, or a Tech student?”

“That's easy,” replied the Billiken. “I've watched those janitors ride up in the elevator to Room 100 a too many times when I had to climb about fifty flights of steps. Why, my dear boy, if it wasn't for those very janitors and our friends, the Profs, there wouldn't be any Institute of Technology. That's why they use the elevators. We students don't amount to one of Professor Sure's yawns compared with them.”

“What's all this talk about?” asked the Freshman, who had been drawn into the room by the noise. “Boy, are you folks going to the Convocation tomorrow?”

“You can bet your sweet life we are. Cupid,” responded Dick. “Why, I was wondering when I was going to get a chance to yell at Blockie and I saw the notice. I'll be there with bells.”

“Same here,” said Cad and the Billiken.

“Guess I'll go, too, then,” added the Sophomore. “Same here,” said Cad and the Billiken.

“Then get with your class and yell ‘foolishness’ to beat the band,” replied the Senator. “Why, when I was a Tech student—”

“Beat it fellows. Let me choke him privately,” replied Dick, and the underclassmen went to their rooms.

A very serious matter is the disappearance of laboratory reports returned to students in the rack in the M. E. laboratory. Whether for the purpose of studying or for copying out, no man who takes another student's returned report is running a great risk.

The Chinese students of the University of Missouri, who keep books out of the library overtime are fined for each occurrence.

The Michigan Union is working to promote the movement for a new building, too, to elect new members and to fill the vacancies existing in several offices.

The Cosmopolitan Club is existing under flourishing conditions this year. Over a hundred men from foreign countries are now enrolled as members, and there is a long waiting list of Americans who are applicants for membership. The number of this last class who have been members of the club is limited to one-third of the total membership. These men have to be elected, but foreign birth is a sufficient qualification, and no election is required. The club rooms are conveniently situated and are very cozy and home-like. Writing materials are furnished and various papers and magazines are on the tables. There is also a supply of genuine Chinese tea and members can use this whenever they so desire.

The committee in charge of the year's entertainments is trying hard to make the meetings interesting to everyone, and if the affairs in the future are as well planned as have been those in the past, there is no doubt but that the year will prove a most successful one.

The Chinese students of the University of Pennsylvania recently gave a play version and acted by themselves. The play was entitled, "When East and West Meet."
