As was generally expected, Cornell won an easy victory over the field in the eleven annual Intercollegiate Cross-Country run. Coach Jack Murphy’s predictions that his freshman, Jones, would beat Berna, were realized, and Jones not only carried off the individual honors, his time being 31:34:15. Berna, who led the field last year, had to be content with second place, 31:42. Next came the two Harvard stars, Lawless and Jaques. These two, with P. Wilkinson, who finished sixth, being practically the whole Harvard team. Gray and Conant were left in the rear in seventh and seventh, respectively, following them came Wolfe, the star of the Pennsylvania team. Kraker, another Cornell man, finished ninth, and L. C. V. Tech man, who ran well, finish, he getting tenth position. He was in good condition, running a very even race.

The most interesting and most surprising development of the meet was the showing made by the Dartmouth contingent. They had set up their troubles, the former losing his condition of his ankle, while W. S. Mills was lost in Vineland. L. O. Mills did the most consistent work for the Tech team, he holding a position well to the front during the entire race, and passing five men on the second round. Captain Watkins was handicapped severely by the condition of his ankle, while W. S. Davis also had some of these troubles, the former losing his shoe, while the latter had to seek some “room” work on the part of one of the big fellows.

Pennsylvania ran a surprising party, four of their runners managed to get out. Hillman’s Dartmouth team for some time was running ahead of them better than they have done for several previous years. At the end they finished in sixth. Columbus did a good job, with the exception of her. Dor, the star of the team, was the only one to finish. It was not expected of her. The milkman’s Ohio team were the only ones to claim the individual honors; he finished third, while the milksman’s coach for a few days, the name of which was lost in the mists of confusion. It was finally written on skins which were smoothed with pumice stone.

The dining room of the Union was, last night, the scene of one of the most enjoyable dinners of the year, that which is given annually by the management of the Tech Show and is known to Tech men as the “Kommers.” About one hundred men were present, and not only partook of one of the best dinners that the Union has served, but also had the pleasure of listening to some very excellent speakers, who are old friends in that line. Shortly after the coffee had been served L. W. Willard, Manager of the Tech Show, ’11, in a few apt and well chosen words introduced Dean Lumley, Tech’s first speaker of the evening. The commencement of the program and announcements of the Show, and urged the men to come out with the idea that the financial support of Tech athletics, which depends entirely on the Show, and from which it has been a worthy cause.

Mr. Milchett, the next speaker, showed the men what this Tech’s activity, was, from a standpoint of the old grade. He emphasized the fact that the lecture was widely known through its show, and that it was the man to be given at fine and finished a production as possible. The heads of the different departments were then informed in their respective branch.

For the entertainment of the men a special talk given by any of the underclassmen during the evening. It was given by Mr. Manager Schell of the stage department. He fulfilled his department as the connecting link between the students and the management, and promised to tell some of its secrets. Among the impromptu speakers were each old Show men as Kelbon, Pearson, Kerr and Birchard. Among the impromptu speakers were each old Show men as Kelbon, Pearson, Kerr and Birchard. The speakers of the evening, of course, are well known. Professor Jaggar is the head of the Department of Geology, and Professor Spofford is in the Harvard professor of Civil Engineering and is the head of the department. These men have been in this special connection for three years and have dealt so well with the men so that they might deal with their duties at a joint dinner in the Union. The professional societies are no longer in existence.

It is planned to have place cards given on the first night and to an separate men in the same course so that each man is given a separate seat on the floor. It is hoped that students from different departments will be given a seat on the floor.

To start this fall, and only by increased activity from now on, will the work of this year be equal to that of preceding years.

First of all, there is the Institute Committee. There are several main committees. For example, the Finance Commission members and possible revitalization of several other committees and subcommittees around the Institute are of less dependence upon the original Institute Committee.

It is to be hoped that this is but the first of many such joint meetings. There are several matters for it to bring up, as for example, the Finance Commission members and possible revitalization of several other committees and subcommittees around the Institute.

The fare is remarkably good and the financial committee is quite justified in claiming that they furnish good meals at a lower price than similar meals elsewhere.

Mr. Shevlin’s appointment has met with the hearty support of all those interested. He will endeavor to demonstrate that boxing is an ideal form of exercise and a healthy sport. Mr. Shevlin announces that he will be in the Garrison Street Gymnasium every week day, except Saturday, from 10 to 12 in the morning, and from 3 to 4 in the afternoon.

The new dormitory for Freshmen at Princeton has not been used entirely for the first year men as was originally intended. The reason for putting the Freshmen around in the other dormitories was to make their contact with the upper classmen closer. The upper classmen are supposed to act as a check on 1914.

For reference to students or friends who have already come in, Mr. Shevlin will be kept busy. He has gained no little fame for himself in boxing circles, and although he has not yet reached majority, he is recognized as an expert.

Mr. Edward Shevlin Will Give Instruction Daily From 10 to 12.

For some years past the men who have frequented the Garrison Street Gymnasium have exercised in boxing or wrestling, practically without any instruction. There has been a slowly growing demand for some competent person to aid and instruct all those interested in these sports, and particularly in boxing. Such a man has now been chosen. He is not engaged by the Institute, but will give lessons for a certain fee. The man who has been appointed is Mr. Edward Shevlin of Roxbury. He will enter on his duties next Monday, November 14.
