FIRE CLUB PRACTICE.

Men Will Use Greased Bullets to Insure Minimum Error.

As a result of the experience of the State team with the new bullet jacket, which was used by them on their last Western trip, the Rifle Club has decided to try the same idea. By this plan the bullets are greased in order to secure a minimum error and to insure a constant elevation at a given range.

A new 300-yard range has been chained off at Waltham, and the smaller appearance of the bullets caused trouble at first, but this has been partly overcome by the men getting used to the new sight pattern.

The shooting on last Saturday at 560 Stoneham Avenue, bringing four of the men making 25 points above center, although handicapped by the weather. The first being the bar- retas were chilled by the rain, which caused a frost. Coach Williams said it was a valuable experience for the men to meet these reverse conditions, in order to avoid a repetition of that kind of accident.

The Rifle Club may get further accustomed to the ranges and the new bullet jacket after the rules on the range at Waltham ranges during the next two weeks.

Don't see any seniors playing cards these days.

The meeting broke up and the men assembled in the picturesque Dutch room for the banquet. An ex- cellent menu had been provided. The Stohl Srong and a "regular M. I. T.", led by ex-President Franzeheim.

After a half hour of sociability banquet in the Copley Square "H6tel year by the Institute Musical Clubs season which has been enjoyed this year.

The provisional schedule for thefall will be published in the Argus, which begin the twelfth of this month, is published below. Although there will probably be few changes in it as it now stands, it is only provisional, and between now and its publication for the student body it may be altered and corrected considerably. As usual, the regular copies of the Registrar will be published one week before the examinations, at which time the regulations and instruction for conflicts and special examinations must be carefully fulfilled.

All who find apparent conflicts for themselves, or any arrangement of the examinations which in their belief could be bettered in the schedule as it stands below, are in- vited to report these suggestions to the examiner in each subject, who will fill the vice-president's position. This assistance could be bettered in the schedule as it stands below, are in- vited to report these suggestions to the examiner in each subject, who will fill the vice-president's position.

A fitting climax to the successful season enjoyed this year by the Musical Clubs took place at the annual elections and banquet in the Copley Square Hotel last night. Forty-two members gathered in room 181 at 5:30 o'clock and after a half hour of sociability the banquet was adjourned, where the business meeting and elections were held.

William J. Dine who has served the clubs faithfully as treasurer, was elected president, to succeed H. A. Franzeheim. William P. Schuyler, Jr., whose efforts as general manager have been largely responsible for the recent successes, will be succeeded by R. A. Rankin. Rankin led the Banjo Club this year.

Dinner was chosen as treasurer for the ensuing season, and E. C. Pyle will fill the vice-president's position. H. W. Morehouse and W. D. Brown were re-elected to succeed A. Applegate as secretary.

The various clubs then gathered in different parts of the room to elect their respective officers. The results followed: (1) President, A. A. Sherman and F. H. Achard, (2) Secretary, T. A. Applequest as secretary, (3) Treasurer, E. C. Pyle.

The lineup of the two teams will be published at an early date. The Sophomore's team will be presented to Profes- sor Spofford, who will then talk of the latest developments of the Summer School and the advantages that will occur from this contribution.

The realization that the school year is approaching its close is dawning on us all. The opportunities are beginning to *look small when compared to the demands for time, and fancied feelings of security are failing rapidly. The usual state of affairs at this period exists; the degree to which men are conscious or unconscious stiffening is approaching its close is dawning on us. The completeness with which a man's previous training has not been sufficient to equip him to face the multitude of conflicting demands, which do not accumulate gradually, but are thrust upon him at a rate once. His previous training has not failed to have their effect at this stage of the game. The realization that even if we are Tech men we have not done one. In fact, we are only showing how we are capable of doing two jobs in the time we used to do one. In fact, we are only showing that even if we are Tech men we can be human after all.

The completeness with which a man has his work in hand as he is finishing his task, tying up the loose ends, is a real test of his ability. Conditions vary so that this cannot be applied as an infallible criterion, but certain characteristics of the way in which he is now working and the degree to which he is striving to meet the demands for time, and fancied feelings of security are failing rapidly. The usual state of affairs at this period exists; the degree to which men are conscious or unconscious stiffening is approaching its close is dawning on us. The completeness with which a man's previous training has not been sufficient to equip him to face the multitude of conflicting demands, which do not accumulate gradually, but are thrust upon him at a rate once. On the other hand, the graduate usually starts in a position that requires the assumption of slight responsibility; his responsibility comes with increasing experience. Furthermore, there is a seeming progression to his work often lacking in theoretical study, and above all, the compelling wish to "make good," furnish a great impetus.

Therefore even if these last days seem to vie with each other in the number and complexity of the problems they present, we can remember that we have the best chance to judge our past work. We are reaching the reward of our sins of omission and commission, and achieving the result of the finish of the results of our past work, we have made one more addition to our qualifications for success.
