HERBERT W. STEBBINS SPEAKS IN UNION

Discusses Importance of Moral Strength and Control in Life.

At 1.30, in the Union, yesterday, the Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins, chaplain of the State Prison at Charlestown, spoke to the fellows that assembled to hear the weekly T. C. A. talk, on the subject, "Why Men Come to Prison." Reverend Stebbins is a man whose striking personality and convincing manner of speech attract the attention of his hearers, but this time his subject was of such vital importance that most of the men forgot their work and stayed until he had finished, a little after the start of the two o'clock classes.

In speaking of the man that comes to prison he placed great emphasis on the causes that lead him from the honest path. In citing a great number of actual cases that came up in his wide experience, these causes seemed to formulate into a few concrete weaknesses of mankind that are applicable to any man in any position in life. There is, of course, the habitual criminal, but he is in the minority, and a subject for psychologists.

Of the men who come there, the most pathetic is the weak fellow, who, taunted and bullied by the gang at the corner, does as they say to save himself from being ridiculed, and goes as far as robbery and in some cases even murder. He has had no outside help and has not been able to help himself. It is just that kind of man that the work of the Reverend Stebbins will assist. He has learned nothing that would fit him for life work of any kind, for what little he did, he did badly; he was even a bad crook.

This seems to apply to more than criminals alone, for there are men in every phase of life who are always failing or doing things by halves. This is the man who just gets by, and it is a long time between jobs for him. That is the man who can never be a leader, for a leader must be ahead of the crowd and not lag behind. It is the leader that gets all the knocks and also all the trophies, while the man in the crowd is left behind.

Another factor that counts for the downfall of a good many is the weakness that some men have, in not being able to live in solitude. The story of the fellow who is a stranger in the city and because of lonesomeness goes with the first one who offers to take him out and show him the sights, is not unfamiliar. The results are evident. Reading or studying in solitude is impossible, and he finds a place in some cheap pool room or saun to spend the evenings. The change from this to dishonesty and crime is quick. The men who leave school and get a job in some place in which they have no friends are in a similar position, and their success will depend for the greater part upon their moral strength.

The man who falls in the clutches of temptation steals to get out, or for other things. Some of the class who are living beyond their means. This is a common weakness in man and is the cause for a great number of failures.

DANCE ORDER FOR REGIMENTAL HOP

To Be Held in Horticultural Hall Week From Today—No Flowers.

Plans for the Regimental Hop, the first at the Institute, are now well matured. A considerable number of tickets has already been sold among the upperclassmen, as well as among the Freshmen. The tickets are being sold by all officers, and in order that no one need be left, the remaining tickets will be placed on sale at the Cage next Wednesday at 5 o'clock.

The order of dances has been arranged, and is now published for the first time:

1. Waltz.
2. Two step.
3. Waltz.
4. Schottische.
5. Two step.
6. Waltz.
7. Two step.
8. Waltz.

Intermission.

9. Two step.
10. Waltz.
11. Schottische.
12. Two step.
13. Duchess.
14. Waltz.
15. Two step.
16. Waltz.

In accordance with the custom followed at the Battalion Hops, it has been decided that flowers will not be permitted on the floor. It has been found that they interfere with the dancing. The matrons for the Hop are now finally announced as Mrs. R. C. MacAurin, Mrs. E. T. Cole and Mrs. E. F. Miller.

The number of invitations sent to outside high schools has this year been limited, in order to turn the dance more nearly into an Institute affair.

Horticultural Hall, which has been chosen for the dance, will be well decorated with banners and pennants. The reception will begin sharply at 7 o'clock, and will be followed by a short march prior to the beginning of dancing.

Technology has never had the prestige of a Regimental Hop before, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance of men from all classes. The presence of upper class men is especially desired that they may give an air of dignity to the splendid soldiery appearance of the Freshmen cadets. The tickets are $1 each, including refreshments, and may be obtained from any of the cadet officers. If you desire a more complete financial estimation of the cost of the affair see the various bulletin boards.

MEETING POSTPONED.

The Auditing Committee of the Finance Committee announce that they will not have a meeting tonight, because of the absence of Mr. Coburn. All treasurers who expected to have their books audited tonight are asked to wait until further notice is given them.

At a recent trustees' meeting of Trinity College it was announced that J. Pierpont Morgan had donated a sum of $200,000 for the erection of a library and administration building for the college.

UNUSUAL CHESS GAME COMMENCES TONIGHT

Clever Professional Player to Play Against Whole Chess Club.

This evening, at about 7.30 o'clock, the Chess Club begins its match with Mr. Kennard of the Boston Chess Club. This game will be, perhaps, the most remarkable that the club has ever scheduled, for this famous player will play the whole club, meeting each man in turn. Mr. Kennard is widely known in chess circles and already has an unusual good record to his credit. In an All-American competition held recently, he won ninth place out of over 200 entrants, and this shows that he is by no means an amateur at the game. The members of the club do not expect to win, but they do intend to make a good showing nevertheless.

That the game will be interesting and exciting there is no doubt, and the Chess Club invites anyone interested to come around, and they expect a large audience to be present.

ALUNDUM LECTURE.

Representative of Worcester Firm Speaks Today.

Today, at 4 P. M., Mr. K. E. Herrick of the Norton Company of Worcester, which manufactures abrasives of alundum and other refractory materials, will lecture to Technology students in Room 23, Walker Building.

As alundum and similar substances are now extremely important in manufacturing processes of all kinds it is well worth while for all students interested in these materials to attend the talk and learn of their composition and manufacture. Professor Talbot, who will later in the term take up the discussion of the above-mentioned substances, especially urges the students in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering courses to take advantage of this opportunity and be present at the talk. Mr. K. E. Herrick will fully illustrate his address with numerous slides and samples of the materials in question.

BOAT CLUB MEETING.

All men in the Institute who are interested in rowing and who would like to join the Technology Boat Club, which is now being formed, should watch the columns of THE TECH next week for an announcement of the next meeting, when the business of forming such a club will be continued from a preliminary meeting held last Wednesday. At that meeting a temporary chairman was elected and a committee appointed to draw up a constitution and by-laws.

The prospects of having a successful boat club this year are very good, and all who are interested should make it a point to attend the next meeting. The exact date of this meeting will appear later in the columns of THE TECH.

When in need of anything, no matter whatever it is, be sure and patronize our advertisers.

TECH SHOW CHORUS COMPETITION TODAY

Candidates for Chorus and Stage Assistants Meet This Afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon, at 4.15, about 100 men appeared in the Union dining room to try out for parts in the cast of the Show. The competition was very successful and some excellent material was found among the aspirants present.

This afternoon, at the same time, Stage Manager C. P. Fiske will be in the dining room again to conduct a competition for those in the chorus. It is hoped that just about twice as many men will appear today as did yesterday, because it is absolutely necessary to have a good chorus in order that the Show itself may be the "best ever."

The chances for a place in the chorus are much better than those for a place in the cast. There are no lines and a very little acting required for those men who go out for this part of the Show. The chorus is more a place to have a certain amount of enjoyment along with the work rather than a lot of extra trouble in learning parts and the like. Here is a chance for men who are not over-burdened with studies or other duties to come out and get the benefit of fellowship with other students by working with them for the good of the Show. The bright prospects of "Money in Sight," with its trip to New York, ought to be a large inducement for a big number of candidates.

The men must be able to dance and must have some idea of music, although a Grand Opera voice is by no means necessary. The men need not think that either slightness of build or smallness of stature is necessary, for both men and girls are required for the chorus.

It is hoped that Coach Eugene Sanger will again be present, but even if he is not here much good can be accomplished by a general meeting. At any rate they can familiarize themselves more fully with the arrangement for chorus work.

The candidates for assistants in the Stage Department are to meet Manager C. P. Fiske in Room B, Union, at 4.30 today.

THE CERCLE FRANCAIS.

We are happy to note that the Cercle Francais has succeeded in establishing itself upon a reasonably firm basis, and that it can now be regarded as occupying a permanent position among student clubs at the institute. Except in one of our fourteen courses, no French whatever is required of us beyond the ability to pass a rudimentary entrance examination, so that there exists among Tech men in general, as might well be expected, a woeful ignorance of the language. The scientist can forget no more readily than the man of letters the debt which the world owes to the French, and an opportunity to cultivate the language of Pasteur and Curie will be greatly appreciated by many Institute students.

It is characteristic of societies at Technology that they reach, so far as the all-round welfare of their members is concerned, a remarkably high degree of efficiency. There is no purely social organization at the Institute that pushes its activity so far as to impair the scholarship of its members; we know of no society so strictly professional that it is equivalent to an additional course in the catalogue. The Cercle Francais will, perhaps, be neither strictly professional nor strictly social. So far as we are able from the outside to judge of its purpose, it ought to afford a pleasant diversion and at the same time to give its members a training which will be of immense professional as well as cultural value.

The Cercle Francais has the best wishes of THE TECH. It has come to fill a little niche that has so far been empty, and we can assure it that, so long as it plays its part in Institute life, it will meet with success and prosperity.

BOSTON C. E. SOCIETY.

Many Tech Men Attend Very Successful Meeting.

The meeting of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, held last Wednesday evening, was attended by a considerable number of Technology students, who found the evening an instructive and entertaining one.

Of the four speakers, the first was Mr. Lewis E. Moore, of the Civil Engineering Department of the Institute. He spoke on a new design for a movable bascule bridge, illustrating his talk with slides.

Mr. Frederick H. Fay, president of the Technology Alumni Association, the official engineer of bridges and ferries for the city of Boston, next spoke on the subject of highway bridge floors. Mr. John R. Worcester then gave a short address on initial stresses in steel.

Professor C. M. Spofford, head of the Civil Engineering Department at the Institute, gave the closing address, describing the work of Thaddeus Hyatt, a pioneer in the invention and use of reinforced concrete in structural work. He made many tests on the qualities of this material during the year 1870, and built of reinforced concrete one of the first fire-proof buildings in London. He also introduced illuminating gratings for sidewalks in the city of New York.

These meetings of the society are held monthly, and Tech students are always welcome to attend them. An entertainment for Tech men in particular is also given once during the year.

AVIATION LECTURES.

The first lecture in the course on "Aviation" was given by Mr. A. A. Merrill last Monday to 110 Seniors. The lectures are to come every Monday and Wednesday, at 4.10 P. M., in 11 Ent. B. The last talk will be held March 5th. The object of these lectures is to familiarize the students with the fundamental principles of the different types of machines, to discuss the good and bad points of each machine, and to give such a scientific knowledge as will enable students to make complete calculations of lift, drift soaring angle, stalling angle and power for certain speed.

It is hoped that at the end of the course men will be able to make complete calculation of a biplane and monoplane. The course is open to all fourth-year students who have had Strength of Materials and other work of the same kind. Mr. A. A. Merrill has prepared numerous notes which are given to the students, and he expects all to do at least one hour of studying outside for each lecture.

Last Chance to Obtain Few Remaining Books of Technique, 1913.

There are still a considerable number of men who signed up and paid the fifty-cent deposit for a copy of Technique, 1913, and who have not yet obtained their books. The Technique office in the Union will be open every noon from 1.49 to 2 o'clock, from now up to and including Friday, February 28th, in order that these men may obtain their books. This is the last chance that these men will have, and the board urges very strongly that every man come around to the office.

There are also a few extra books, so that anyone who has not signed up may obtain one of them.

The board states that, as we announced in the beginning, there will be no reduction in price in any case, and that there will be no "closing out" sale at reduced prices as there was last year. The prices of the book are: for the regular edition, $2.00; for the de Luxe edition, $3.50. The men who have already paid the 50c deposit have only to pay $1.50 or $3.00, as the case may be.

REMEMBER this is the last chance and NO closing out bargain sale.

1914 CLASS SMOKER.

What promises to be an entertaining and pleasant evening is the 1914 Class smoker. The committee in charge has arranged a vaudeville performance and will provide free smokes. The smoker is to be held on Thursday, March 27, 1913, at the Union. All Juniors should plan to come.

ARCHITECTS' CONTEST.

Compete With Five Universities For Large Prizes.

The Interscholastic Architectural contest, which once a year absorbs the attention of the students of architecture to the exclusion of all social affairs and other enjoyments, is now in full swing. In this contest Tech competes against the following five universities: Harvard, Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and McGill. There are two classes of contestants, the first comprising Seniors and post-graduates, and the second Juniors.

Each university submits not more than six final drawings in each class, prepared in the following way: All competitors, simultaneously, during a specified period and under supervision, makes a sketch of the problem, which he hands in, preserving a tracing from which to make his completed drawing in accordance with the regulations of the contest. He is allowed one month in which to do this.

When all drawings are in a jury of one member appointed by each school selects the best in each class, the winner of the first class receiving ninety dollars in cash; of the second class, sixty dollars.

In the present contest the sketches were made last Monday, between 1 and 9 P. M., the completed drawings being due one month from that time. The problem for the first class is the designing of a new Art Museum for New York City, to take care of the increased quantity of material; minute specifications being given. That for the second class is a college library of given size and arrangement.
