PUZZLE SOLVED.

There were many answers submitted in the competition that has been run by "Yish-kazbibble" to determine who would be best fitted to take the part of "Yish-kazbibble" to determine who would be best fitted to take the part. But the question of Speakers in Union at noon hour was discussed at length. Some contended that it takes away the right of the students to juggle around and have a social hour. The position of the T. C. A. was also considered. Some seemed to think that the T. C. A. has no more right to the Union than any other activity. Others claimed that the T. C. A. is not anything that should have special privileges. The fact was brought out that T. C. A. interests nearly every Tech man. President Dorence suggested that the names of the proposed speakers be submitted to the Union Committee, which should act on each name separately. A motion was made to exclude all speakers from the Union at noon, but it was not carried. A motion to let the Union Committee act on each name separately was made to exclude all speakers from the Union at noon, but it was not carried. A motion to let the Union Committee act on each name separately was made, but this too was lost. The affair was then dropped entirely.

The question of the Track Manager being on the Advisory Council was taken up. Sentiment seemed to be in favor of changing the number of points, but it was finally decided to leave the matter to the Point System Committee. No definite action was taken.

It was reported that the election of the officers in the Musical Clubs is to lie with the Advisory Board and Executive Committee of the Clubs, and that their action must be ratified by the Institute Committee.

It was reported that five hundred copies of the song book of '1909 Technique' were taken up. At the roll call the following were found to be absent: P. H. Deff, K. T. Dean, L. B. Wyman, Z. P. Chor, H. R. Richmond, and H. W. Trast.

The Calender Committee reported that a card index of the happenings in the Union has been placed at the Cash. There is also a list of names of the officers of every activity with their addresses.

Mr. A. D. Little Talks to Chemical Society

"Technical Reports" Subject of Practical Address to Large Audience.

If there are any senior chemists in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology who heard Mr. A. D. Little is zero to talk to the Chemical Society last night, who fail to turn in these that are at least fairly presentable in form, they should certainly be barred from graduation. Mr. Little spoke on the subject of Technical Reports, and the fact that their cultivation, if it is to be filled small rooms of the Union, gave the closest attention to a talk that lasted an hour and a half, is sufficient proof that it was one of extreme interest.

The colonists were equally pleased with the bathing suit of the young lady from the coast who was paying her first visit to the town. She had come to attend the annual carnival, and it was her intention to take part in the festivities.

As she strolled through the streets, she noticed a group of boys gathered around a small store. They were laughing and pointing at a large poster that advertised a new comic strip.

The young lady was intrigued and decided to take a closer look. As she approached, she overheard one of the boys saying, "This new comic strip is hilarious! Don't miss it!"

Curious, she entered the store and asked the proprietor, "What's so funny about the comic strip?"

The man smiled and replied, "Oh, it's a typical college story. You'll love it!" he said, "And don't worry about missing anything. It's a serial strip, so you can always catch up later."

The young lady was grateful for the advice and bought a copy of the comic strip. As she left the store, she felt a sense of excitement building within her.

As she walked back to her hotel, she couldn't wait to read the rest of the strip and see what adventures awaited her. The young lady was sure that this comic strip would be a perfect way to unwind after a long day.

The rest of the day was spent exploring the town and taking in the sights. The young lady couldn't believe how much fun she was having and how quickly the day had passed.

That evening, she decided to attend one of the many events happening in the area. The town was buzzing with excitement, and the young lady couldn't wait to join in on the fun.

As she entered the theater, she noticed how lively the audience was. The energy in the room was infectious, and she couldn't help but laugh along with everyone else.

The event that evening was a comedy show, and the young lady was in fits of laughter throughout the performance. The comics were hilarious, and the audience couldn't help but applaud them at every punchline.

As the show came to an end, the young lady felt a sense of contentment wash over her. She had enjoyed every moment of the event and found herself looking forward to attending more in the future.

As she left the theater, she couldn't help but think about all the fun she had had that day. The young lady was grateful for the opportunity to visit this charming town and look forward to returning soon.
