Charles Penrose, construction engineer of the Philadelphia Electric Co., speaks in the Electrical Engineering Society Wednesday afternoon on the general subject of 'Central Stations." His talk was based on a large number of stations operated by the Philadelphia Electric Co. and was treated by an interested set of 500 prepared for the purpose of lectures before the various branch sections of the National Electric Light Association, the national organization of the American electrical engineers.

Mr. Penrose brought out by means of geographical comparison the relative size of the electrical industry in this country, together with the various phases of the industry, with the result that much work is being done in this country. Mr. Penrose showed, in the field of electrical development, the various stages of electrical development, and with the result that much work is being done in this country. The new board of directors will present a report on this subject at the next meeting of the Electrical Society.

WORK UPON FLAGPOLES BEGN
First Flag Driven Yesterday in De Pont Corps

The first actual work upon the two flagpoles donated by the classes of 1885 and 1895 to the Institute for the exchange of De Pont and Lowell Courts was begun yesterday with the driving of piles for supporting the foundations. Up to this, action had been confined to moving a plowshare from the construction on the De Pont courts to a proper position at the corners of the De Pont Court, where the first piles were driven. Eleven thirty-foot wooden planks arranged in four sets of four piles at the corners of a square will support each foundation. Upon their setting, the equipment of Indian Soldiers, those in the form of hammers which had long lain, will be erected, consisting of conventional, uniform of the officer. From the officers will come the 54th Band, a set of pipes having been driven in the De Pont Court, and upon the same work will proceed as soon as the piles in Lowell Court have been sunk. The entire structures of both courts will be completed by June 1, when they will be unveiled and formally presented to the Institute.
