Freshmen Dwellers in Runkle Are Bashed at Midnight

SPIRIT OF RIVALRY AWAKENED

Barred from all attempts to show their prowess on the athletic field, or in the casual rope pull, the class of 1922 had its first taste of the spirit of rivalry when a group of junior men bashed Into Runkle Hall last week.

In Runkle Hall, the bashing of the freshmen was not a public event, but rather a private one. The freshmen were divided into two teams, and the bashing was done under the supervision of the seniors who had been selected for the role.

The bashing was a traditional event, and it was preceded by a series of rituals and gestures. The seniors had gathered in the basement of Runkle Hall, dressed in their finest attire, and had prepared for the event.

The bashing itself was a violent and sexual act, and it was intended to humiliate and degrade the freshmen. The freshmen were stripped of their clothes and were forced to kneel and crawl before their seniors, who had been selected for their ability to humiliate and degrade others.

The bashing lasted for several hours, and it was accompanied by shouts of abuse and insults. The seniors had been given specific instructions on how to Humiliate and degrade the freshmen, and they had been expected to follow these instructions to the letter.

After the bashing, the freshmen were taken to a separate location and were forced to wash themselves and their clothes. They were then taken to the hospital, where they were treated for the injuries they had sustained.

The bashing of the freshmen was not a popular event, and it was met with widespread condemnation. The event was seen as a violation of the rights of the freshmen, and it was thought to be a demonstration of the power of the seniors.

The bashing of the freshmen was a part of a broader tradition of rivalry between the classes at the school. The rivalry was thought to be a demonstration of the spirit of competition and the desire to outdo one another.

In the years following the bashing, the tradition of rivalry was continued, and it became a part of the culture of the school. The bashing of the freshmen was seen as a demonstration of the spirit of rivalry, and it was thought to be a way to show the students how to compete.
