The debate team will meet Union College tonight in final encounter of season. Use Electric Wires To Transport Water

Using water under electric pressure to transport water is the latest scientific novelty. An evidence of it was seen in the basement of Walker last night, where the pumps began to drop water. In a few minutes, the water was brought up by the electric pumps. A large crowd gathered to view the spectacle and to discuss the technical details of the operation. The experiment is expected to be repeated in the near future.

THE TECH

The OPEN FORUM

To the Editor of THE TECH:

The Technology men who meet the week-nightly intellectual foray on Friday evening are admirably well guided and have no need to look elsewhere in the field of debate. They possess in their midst a nucleus of students who have long been well trained, and the debates of the last few weeks have given practise on the platform from which they handle their conceptions of the subject and issues for themselves. It is a pleasure to note that their informers have handled their points so well that the public appearance this season is far more profound than any of the previous years. The debaters are profiting from the skill of the old men and in a few years will be able to add something of their own to the debate.

As We Like It

Within the realm of light humor to relieve the usual strain of the mystery play

"Badges" at the Plymouth Theatre, girls may find a welcome change from the varieties of the recent mysteries. With not too much of the intrigue, which was perhaps obscure in such plays as "The Dalves, the "The Cat and the Canary," which contains the usual sense of comedy, the present play has only a trace of effect on the line of classification as a "comedy-mystery" play but still it seems worthy of a good turn out to welcome the opportunity of our appreciation of the fact that Tech men can be not only actors but also good debaters.

ELECTIONS!

Once more elections have come around. Once more the snowstorm of nominations paper pasting around classes has come.

And once more politicians are acquiring a large number of new friends, and are selling old friends to vote swapping. So along with the other signs of the times, an editorial on elections is in order.

There is little new to say. An editorial on this topic might almost be reduced to substituting in a formula, or a case of use for the other. "Think your vote carefully and cast it for the man who in your opinion is the most worthy." But let us look at another angle. Have you ever realized how often some time when you elect a man you do something besides give him an honor? You are giving the man a business of organization, and you are hiring a man to work for you. You are the boss. The man you elect is going to stand for you, handle your business. To outsiders he is an instrument of your will. If by you he is going to be judged, for he is the characteristic type of you or else you would not have elected him. For wages he receives the honor of his position.

So let us think of this when we cast our vote. Let us use the same care in choosing our officers that we would in choosing personal representatives. If we do not vote at all we are acknowledged to be a useless member of the organization. We care neither what happens to our business, nor what happens to us. And finally let both the electors and the elected realize that each has a duty to the other.

PACIFISTS AND OSTRICHES

There has been much discussion recently by people who style themselves as "Pacifists." Truly, it is an ideal; but the method of striving for it is fundamentally wrong. The world, at heart, is just the same now as it was when cave men heaved boulder stones at the animals. Men have always fought and always will fight for the same reasons: jealousy, pride, avarice, love,—all the primary emotions. No man has been brought through the ages by the above all rules the greatest principle, that of self-preservation. Existing laws are not enough. There is an ideal man who has thought law was cheating him of the wealth, health, and happiness which he has always been—fight

The fact of educating the youth for peace. Peace, insofar as it is justifiable, belongs to the province of the home. Education is the chief weapon of teaching youth to be an ostrich: to stick his head into the sand.

Let the "parlor reds" remember that our particular corner of the world is not a desert. There are millions of our fellow countrymen who live here are humans and are perfectly aware of the fact. The iron and rubber are incorporated, and the bills strum at the doors or stuffed into the letterboxes. Idealism is a thin enough picture to be anything more than a straw for himself—not something to be wrapped up, boxed, and sold to the public as a cure-all.

Team Starts Season With Victory Over Terrier Team

Although hindered by the biting cold, the tennis team won an easy victory over the B. U. netmen Wednesday, taking the meet by a 6-2, 6-4, 6-4 score. It was considered a most convincing win, but an upset feature when Capt. Russell and Broadhurst were defeated in the first set. Both the Tech team and the B. U. players were far from the weather and party to the fact that this was the first match of the season. Frequent sets and doubles matches were played so evenly that the opponents pressed their advantage to pull out the match. All the other matches were won by the Tech team.

Capt. Russell started slowly against Martin of B. U. and had a score of 4-2. He lost three games consecutively and then began to settle down to play. After winning the next few points, he managed to keep the score even to the end. Russell won the match, 6-4. This unexpected reverse seemed to break Martin’s confidence, and he offered little trouble in the second set. Russell kept him on the run, and finally pushed him across the net to score 6-4.

In the second game, Tech got an early lead, 6-2, but B. U. fought back and gained a set at 6-4. The third set was a struggle between the two teams, as both the B. U. and Tech players were playing evenly. In this set, the Tech team won, 6-4. The second set was a close one, with Tech taking a narrow lead, 6-4.

The Tech team found the net a good place to return the shots, and so served the ball well. Hinck's cannon ball service was remarkable. Frequent returns of shots from the Terriers were deflected back and forth, but the Tech team managed to keep the advantage. The first set was won 6-4. This unexpected reverse seemed to break Martin’s confidence, and he offered little trouble in the second set. Russell won the match, 6-4.

The Tech team scored well in the second set, and the B. U. team was left with little trouble. The Tech team won the final set, 6-4, to win the match 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Beavers to Meet Providence Team Away from Home

Players in Fine Condition For Game Tomorrow With Strong Team

With three wins and one defeat under their belts, the Beaver ball team was expected to meet the strong nine of Providence College.

Hill and Zappini, out of the lineup, were unexpected. Zappini, a star performer, was replaced by Martin, who showed his skill and ability in this match.

The first set was won 6-4, 6-0. This unexpected reverse seemed to break Martin’s confidence, and he offered little trouble in the second set. Russell won the match, 6-4.

The Tech team won the third set, 6-4, to win the match, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

The Tech team scored well in the second set, and the B. U. team was left with little trouble. The Tech team won the final set, 6-4, to win the match, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.
