A SUGGESTION

WHEN it is necessary to gain the group of students taking a course into sections, each under a certain instructor, those in authority should provide some means of parcelling the instruction for each group. This, of course, is especially essential when some of the instructors have had relatively little experience in teaching the subjects of their respective courses. The students are brought together in development courses for qualification. When one section has the subject presented to the students as though it were received from the favored by the author of the quiz, the students in that section feel that they are being treated unfairly.

Because of the large number taking the course in Electrical Engineering, the junior class in that subject is taught in several sections under separate instructors. There is not enough agreement among the members of the staff teaching the subject as to how the subject is to be presented. Each instructor follows his own method with the result that one will often teach the subject from an entirely different viewpoint than that of the other. This results in an improvement in the course for students who are used to it, but it would seem that the instructors could agree among themselves, thus saving the students under them the burden of wondering whether or not their instructor agreed with the instructor who prepared the quiz.

It is in no spirit of presumptuous criticism of its teaching methods in general, that we call this matter to the attention of the Department of Electrical Engineering. Rather, we feel that cooperation here should be aimed at the development of better instruction on the part of the staff and a better understanding on the part of the students taking its courses.

MILITARY TRAINING AS AN AID TO PEACE

OF COURSE war is its own condemnation; it is certainly barren and destructive; no one denies that the world would be a happier place if there were no war. War, however, is never to be. People who let emotions run away with their thoughts condemn military training in colleges on absolutely erroneous grounds. The World War has demonstrated that the lack of such training produces in the run with not approval of war, but rather a kind of passive acceptance of war as a necessary condition of existence.

America is the richest country in the world in money, land, and resources. There is not another nation that is so fortunately situated as we are; and there are few other nations that would not profit if they defeated us in war. It is unfortunate, to be sure, that perfect harmony and freedom from evil does not exist among the nations, but until it does exist—and we hope that someday the time will come to make sure that we are secure from the possibility of attack. The nearest way to arouse the good God, Mars, is to render ourselves the most worthy of our nation. College military training is the best and most effective way of building up our army. It is the best method of officers capable of instructing men and leading them if the need should arise. It is the best way to do our part toward making war impossible, but until international ways of thinking change, a defenseless America would be an unsatisfactory situation.

AN AGE OF CYNICISM

A NEW ARTICLE in a current magazine has criticized Boston politics, plays, churches, in fact, all Boston life. It has labeled Boston as a city of snobs, publishing in Boston as organs of yellow journalism. It has said that Boston is inappreciative of good plays. It has said that Boston is inappreciative of good plays. It has said that Boston is inappreciative of good plays. It has said that Boston is inappreciative of good plays.

THE OPEN FORUM

To The Editor: The Institute has made it very easy for students who are helping to support themselves, to see how work for the Christmas campaign. This vacation, starting the first of December, is when most people must earn ever so many cents from employment this period.

This decision led to the necessity of adding extra hours during the summer and the time when boys are not at home, which occurred in the two weeks prior to Christmas. On New Year's Day, the Institute announced that the time before Christmas day be a light period, during which boys can complete their work. If we could earn enough out of these two weeks, we could pay for the time we lost.

Students who have work for this week are requested to turn in their work as early as possible to the Institute. The Institute requests that all the boys who have work for this week receive their pay as soon as possible so that they may have the money for their Christmas gifts.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE PRESIDENT STATES THAT

Many College Students Lack Proper Training

In the past thirty years, the Wellesley College President has been quoted as saying, "We need more women in college today." This statement was made by the college's current President, Dr. Albert C. Leach, during a recent interview with The Wellesley Student.

Dr. Leach stated that the college's enrollment has increased from 200 students in the College of the City of New York to over 3,000 today. He also said that the college's curriculum has expanded to include courses in science, mathematics, and the arts.

"We must prepare our students for the world of work," Dr. Leach said. "We must give them the skills they need to succeed in the job market." He added that the college is committed to providing a well-rounded education for all of its students.

T H E S T E N T

The students at Dartmouth often refer to their basketball team as the "Sapresses," a term that was coined by the students in the early 1900s. The name was chosen because of the team's reputation for being overly aggressive and aggressive on the court. This reputation has stuck with the team ever since.

The team, which is comprised of 11 members, practices five days a week and plays two games a week. The team's home games are played at the Hanover High School gymnasium.

The team's coach, Mr. Thomas B. Forrester, is a former professional basketball player and has been coaching the team for over 20 years. He is known for his strict training regimen and for always putting his team's needs first.

"The students here at Dartmouth are the best basketball players in the Northeast," Mr. Forrester said. "They are hardworking, dedicated, and they know how to win."
