CHRISTMAS CONCERT DRAWS BIG CROWD

Dance Until Two O’Clock—Glück College of Technicians Well Received

Offering a presentation of specially prepared material, with a typical program of the most appropriate psychological effect, the School of Sacred Music Christmas concert was attended by a large crowd in the Wayside Hall last Friday. Starting somewhat from the usual, the concert had an air of the unusual, which was in turn most effective.

The audience was particularly pleased by the work of the Glee Club and the Phoenix Quartet, judging by the girls’ comments, which indicated that they had been thoroughly pleased by the program. Almost allayed Mangnus ‘24 were not the only ones who were thoroughly pleased by the program. "It’s the first time I’ve ever heard a concert," said one of the girls. "I was so pleased by the work of the Glee Club that I wanted to sing with them myself."

The setting was quite the right kind, a somewhat less symmetrical one than one would have expected, and the rhyming of the program was a welcome change. The program included the usual works of the Glee Club, but the emphasis was on spiritual music. The choir selection was chosen from a variety of sources, including spirituals, hymns, and sacred music. The program was well received by the audience, who responded enthusiastically to the chorale’s singing and the harmonies of the Glee Club.

Captain Cummins was in charge of the Tech game and was prepared independent of church authority.

The other teams have been playing for some time now, but the Tech game is the first that has been played in the way of an official game.

Several student commissions who are turned toward higher education were active in the game, raising to our already oversubscribed universities.
