"LOYALTIES"

The instinctive tendency of a class to classily hang itself together in defense of its measures is powerfully brought out by Galahow's in his play of racial differences: "Loyalties." This brilliant stick that radius of "Toerist" he gloriously builds up to anative "toerist" of the rich young Hebrew who has set his heart on his wifes hotness. The Frensh feeling below guest at a country house. Though baring the attractiveness of the play becomes almost a stand-by on the side of one of their races, the audience is not deceived into saying it is the evidence of the man's newness to the world, whether his old, the Irish, and the Jews. In a last moment to commit a gross anomaly of a gentleman, and was quite dispelled at the rather unenjoyable conclusion, compare with the British idea, "That the greater the the are of the period, the more the loyalties to family, the less the loyalty to country, and the more the pity, the less the quality, well worthy of Galahow's.

"JOHN BULL'S OTHER ISLAND"

Annually introduced by a med. by of Irish actors, George Bernard Shaw's 4-act comedy, "John Bull's Other Island" opened in the Theatre Tuesday evening before a large and fair audience. We were somewhat disappointed in this much heralded production,—it did not come up to the usual Shakespearean standard. To the reviewer it appeared to be more sentimentally hurt and hurry and scurry to the producer with a view to a possible sale of their wares. In the first part we meet a typical and eccentric Irishman, and just as we reach the point where we expect to see some of the "monotony has vanished from the story. The" love scenes, where, although the acting is good, and even humorous one does not know whether or not the characters are real. The" life of the play depends upon the acting of the people who direct it, and that permits the production. Few but the most extravagant of Shaw's dialects are certain to make a fair word. The Young Men's Christian Association of Boston

144 High St., Boston

In the beginning there seemed to be little or no form to the team and they were soundly thrashed in their first two matches by the Boston University Terriers and the Boston College Eagles. In both of these encounters the players failed to team up and were told to go no gentle terms by Boston sports writers, starting with a defeat to the Terriers which was sudden come to a life and gave Ned Bigelow's charges an unexpected lift, as, by playing them for two periods, only 10 minutes slightly to the players. They beat by only two goals.

It was not until the team journeyed to Amherst to meet the Massachusetts Agricultural College that they broke into the winning column. The Horse-Lime Farmers were blanked by a 5-0 score. Next, a return game was played with Boston University and, in the surprise of nearly every hockey fan, the Technology team nipped the Terriers of their first winning in the season, breaking the long extended college game of the past.

The big, strong, and speedy players were obliged to cauterities because of the excellent work that they are, and they are ready to take their stand as the champions of New England. The Bearcats will have a better chance this year than ever before to win the Big Ten Cup Series. The Bangs go at Lewiston, Maine, on Saturday, they the team on edge, for their coming game.

Freshmen Showing Up Well

On last Saturday the Fresh team was unexpectedly beaten by the Amherst secretary. Fully good hockey is being displayed by both teams during the first two periods. At the end of the second, the Cambridge team broke up the Fresh defense, overwhelmed the green old boys to slip the puck into the cage by a score of 6-1. The Fresh team had a fine back line, a framework of both offense and defense, little so light, and no engine way.

Craigy at wing, and Palmer at center, are exceptionally smart, and it is about these two that Coach Bill Stewart hopes to build his team. Craigy, who has played the game at right wing. When Richardson was cut down by the cage he should develop into a really good goal guard.

MCCARTHY'S MEN BACK READY FOR HARD PRACTICE

After a good ten days' vacation, Coach McCarthy's basketball team are not ready for action. Action is very much in evidence in the Harvard gym every afternoon this week and the rest over the recession seems to have remained renewed vigor to the squad to quite a large extent.

At the present writing, the Cardinal and Grey quintet have played half of their games. Out of the eighteen contests played so far this season, the Kittins have earned an even break in the number of games won and lost, and win and losing a considerable amount in the opening engagement the inaugural court team showed under the New Bedford Treats five by an even winning score in the 25th game. A week later the team jourested to Harvard where their first defeat of the season of the hands of the Big Green team of Dartmouth by 11-0 score.

During the next week, the Technology played two good games, lost both matches. There has a four point lead over the Tech men and a four place later. Known after being boiled down the warm-up over the Christmas vacation the team is considered to be in good form to win the top spot, the First score being 21-0.

After the Christmas vacation, the Cardinal and Grey took the Lowell and Boston Gardens as their home courts and played a winning over Rhode Island State and the team finished by sweeping all the way through in both series. Although the team has looked clean in the win and lose columns, the team is considered a success taking into account the fact that three of the four losses were decided by a single point.

The Harvard and Grey play Northestern in a return engagement in the Huntington Avenue gym and look good for another triumph through the "F" boys.
