TECH BOOK LIST

YOUNG MEN IN LOVE - by Michael Arlen, George H. Doran Co. New York 1920. $4.00

Michael Arlen has by far exceeded himself in his latest work. He is dealing with English society life and with the passion of a young man in love with a girl who is too young to please a proper man. All his heroes have wittily descriptive names as; for instance, a beauty named Kitty Rinderle.

The character of the heroine is as attractive as the hero. Every page is full of very keen or significant satire. No one but the beauty and audacity of Arlen could have gotten away with such description and humor. Each character is well thought out and is modeled with great care.

This is not to say that the book isn't good, but rather of the beauty; of a broad expanse of the facade. As this would greatly, to the impression one receives! as one approaches the front of the colonnade. One or more reflecting pools directly in front of the colonnade are to be introduced, they will necessitate having good soil for such expansion. We seriously doubt if it has been investigated as to whether there is enough soil for such an expansion. We seriously doubt if it has.

In the opinion of theatre critics, a play must not be kept for too long; a new play is always something to be reckoned with and to be taken seriously. We would suggest that the producers would do well to consider this for future plays, especially if they wish to be the most successful, instead of waiting until the play is completely finished before putting it on the stage. Certainly, the necessary equipment is not too great, for there is only one or two parts in the play which would necessitate a costume. The play will be of much interest and should be well received by audiences.

We are grateful to the producer for making this announcement, for we are interested in all of the plays which are to be produced by our theatre companies. It is hoped that these companies will be successful and will continue to produce plays which are of the highest quality.
CREWS BATTLE FOR RICHARDS CUP TODAY

Yesterday the freshman baseball nine won a close but exciting game over the Terrier nine last Sunday afternoon at University Heights. After the victory over the Terrier nine, the Commodores were confident of a sure victory over the Harvard nine. The Commodore nine is one of the strongest nine on the field, and they will offer a stubborn fight. The Harvard nine, however, has been tried in many meets, and the two teams should make an exciting contest.
