New Colorimeter Makes Revolutionary Advance in the Measurement of Color

The colorimeter is the first instrument of its kind ever to appear, and the delicate shades which it can detect are often of importance in design. Professor Arthur C. Hardy '18, Professor of Chemistry at the Lowell Institute, has invented the instrument. The colorimeter is a sensitive instrument and is capable of detecting differences in color which were not detectable before.

"Redemption"—with Rul Le Royce and Delicious Dai Rara. It is not often that the movie version of a novel gains the slight resemblance to the original story. While "redemption" is no exception to this fact, nevertheless we must admit that the story is not very well told. The story is of a girl who pictures to clothe the story as Tolstoi covers his novel— but the moral has been so carefully edited and directed that the girl is not so excellently. Both Rul Le Royce and Delicious Dai Rara give unusually good performances and have to be proud of the result.

The stage offerings are distinctly better than the "Tolstoi Art" attempting to make up in volume what it lacks in quality, and the acting being of a distinctly noble flavor.

THE TREAT

"COLLEGIATE STUFF WANTED"

Of late there has been a large demand in the daily papers for what is termed "collegiate material" on the surface of things which none of the colleges are to get some truthfully, which they desire. There seems to be little possibility of the colleges being what one man was expelled after four years of undergraduate library having been taken by self-centered individuals and tangible points of honor which have been violated is the entire possession of a college. It would be unwise to have such people as these to lead the public on either in the case of an important matter.

Our professional honor should be growing in us each succeeding day, and we should be trying to make out there. What is the matter with the stronger student? Who said that an engineering education doesn't create an eye for beauty? Our most excellent, however, can not do without the help of an engineer. It is a rule that, in order to protect the sensitive nature of a college, the story of a thing doesn't carry the same weight. The Lounger has noticed that Harvard has dropped known from their football schedule. Probably the reason is that "seven men mass" playing a little too rough last season. FROSH TRACK TEAM COMPLETES SEASON

Weekend In Field Events Hurt Chances of Squad

With a record of one victory and none defeat the freshman track team compiled a fairly successful season last weekend although the team showed unusual strength on the track it was handicapped by weakness in the field events. The outstanding member of the team was Captain Jeff whose usual forte is the mile and he put the quartette in every event and in addition to 12 miles he was forced to overcome some stiff opposition in doing so. He has been credited with some very fast races and is a good prospect for the by using a special tungsten filament lamp which gives an illumination fifty times more intense than that of sunlight. Water filters are used to prevent the light from reflecting into the sample vessels. In taking a reading, the sample, a magnetic paper, and photometric lamp are placed in an enclosure as the standard of comparison. Light absorbed from the reference and the magnesium carbons, acts upon a photoelectric cell in which it sets up an alternating current. This current is led to a vacuum tube amplifier which increases the power ten million billion times and automatically keeps the amount of light from the reference sample and the magnesium carbons balanced. The color of the sample is analyzed at each wave length of the spectrum and the record is measured by a pencil pointer over a revolving drum. The color of the sample is then compared to an edition of the color by means of which the individual shades may be reproduced as coloriads.
