WELCOME, 1933!

AN AMERICAN tourist was admiring one of those fine old English lawns. He said to the gardeners, “This is the most beautiful lawn I have ever seen—should like to know how you do it. What is the secret?”

“There is no mystery about it,” responded the caretaker. “You just seed it, and fertilize it, and trim it and roll it, and water it, and you keep that up for about fifty years and by and by you begin to have a really fine lawn, sir.”

By much the same tedious and painstaking process a fine educational institution is evolved. The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been in the making for sixty-four years. Men have gone into eternity pouring into it their energies and their efforts, and the new class of ’33, by responding quickly in a position to improve these standards by automatically setting them higher for

There are comparatively few freshman rules at Technology.
There has been no greater innovation in their dress than the standard cardinal and gray striped necktie. These two rules have been in force practically from the beginning. (1) The Freshman Tie Rule which requires every first year man to wear the standard cardinal and gray striped necktie. These two rules were decided upon not so much to single out the new student and call attention to him as to unify the freshman class.

There are comparatively few freshman rules at Technology.
These few, however, are enforced. Perhaps the two most important are, (1) the “Hello” Rule which requires every freshman to speak to every other student and all Faculty members he meets in the buildings or on the grounds; (2) the Freshman Tie Rule which requires every first year man to wear the standard cardinal and gray striped necktie. These two rules
and call attention to him as to unify the freshman class.

As it has done for forty-eight years, THE TECH, official undergraduate newspaper, deems it a distinction and an honor to extend a hearty welcome to the members of the class of nineteen thirty-three.
