American industry never needed the nemediment of scientific investigation, but industry is ready to provide the resources to support the research that they do now," declared Professor Donald C. Jackson, head of the Engineering Department and chairman of the Division of Engineering and Industrial Relations of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, while speaking at the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Alumni Association of New York City last night. Professor Jackson, who is also president of the Engineers' Academy of Science of Sweden.

"We may well reflect on the intimate association of research and state, education, and we shall find that the frontier of industry has been reached by the state of industrial and institutional organizations, and that the future...

ATTENTION: FIRE EATERS.

The fact that the Dormitory Committee means business in its action to prevent any possible recurrence of the campus dormitory fire of last Friday night, was exemplified by the speed with which four of the chief offenders were summarily removed from their residence, and the general note of advice which went out to those who contemplated any renewed acquaintance with Cambridge firemen in the future. In assessing the general participation a small sum toward making good the damages inflicted by the fire has been given up, as a tax on its responsibility of a more frequent event; Inter-Dorm athletic contests and social events. The members have always administered effectively, intelligently, and without fanfare. The dormitory committee has become a survival measure to reinforce a disciplinary measure. Open House has become an occasion to speak of apresidential candidate's Afw words, this however, is unnecessary.

It seems that Paul Roberts doesn't care for the business of the New York Times headline, or perhaps the Lounger was just imagining that finding a headline that seemed to hint at a small similarity to the professor's name. "New," he said, "Al Smith was the man, and now a year later, an admiral of the fleet, the 'I've, I've, I've' man, making his first press job, that Al Smith was the man — and believe it or not, a little bit of the trade of the security of the classroom. Perhaps the Professor was advancing a crease of Jack, I mean, I mean, I mean, it's true.

And the Lounger would like to say that already he's going to get even with those who are going to follow him out to the dredging zone, via the pipe, the dredging zone. And while we are speaking of the dredge, I have heard about the lad who lives in one of these dormitories, and he is a chromosome upon the ways and wherewithals of the American political situation, namely, Massachusetts. During the course of this by no means morose and quite serious occasion, to speak of presidential candidates who aren't well.

The dormitory committee has been shown that the best policy may be to have a balance of efficiency and intelligence in management which has characterized the general actions of the Dormitory Board throughout the year. The members have always administered effectively, intelligently, and without fanfare. The dormitory committee has become a survival measure to reinforce a disciplinary measure. were required to enter the annual competi-

Two teams were formed, the Cardinals and the Grays. The Cardinals won, with a total of 23 points, eclipsing the score of the Grays by 21 points.

Cardinals Win
The highest scoring man for the meet was Fahlberg, captain of the Cardinals, who took first place in the high bar and in the parallel bars and second place in the flying rings and in the rope climb.

Winners of Events
First place in the side horse was taken by Castleman. Parker made off with highest mark on the flying rings. On the parallel bars and second place in the fly-

"The object would be to place this economic side of engineering on the same altitude of rigorous examination and study as now characterize the scientific side of engineering in the engineering schools and in engineering practice. This would also develop more rigorous investigation in this new exploited or hitherto studied field.

"I believe that we shall have to look to the engineering schools, rather than the arts colleges, for this great and necessary step forward. It is an enterprise that the Engineering Division of the National Research Council may fruitfully reflect on and aid in establishing."

“Hello, Hawaii”

Bringing Hawaii within speaking distance of the United States is one of the latest achievements of the Bell System in its program of telephone service extension.

Five years ago the United States had telephones only with Canada, Cuba, and the Mexican border. Since then, Bell engineers have so developed radio telephony that handling calls to Europe, Africa, Australia, Bermuda, Samoa, and Hawaii in daily routine. Today more than 31,000,000 telephones can be reached approximately 92% of all the telephones in the world.

Making the telephone practically world-wide in reach promotes understanding between nations. It has far reaching effects commercially and politically. That’s what puts the thrill into such Bell System pioneering.
