Among those who will advise young people how to choose their careers include E. J. M. Gore, the president of the American Association of Publishers, and the director of the Institute of Education, who will speak to the students on "Choosing a Career." ECONOMICS OF THE FOURTH ESTATE
AN OVERRACED PROFESSION

The love of supply and demand operators for the members of the fourth estate just as they do for butter and eggs. The extractions of a truly well trained men being turned out every year by the college is unfortunately aroused to the chances of a truly successful career. Because of the condition of over-supply, which is especially prevalent in journalism, as a whole all very few people and men proposing to enter the newspaper game. Entering students whose brains are fried by the by Mr. Reprint of the liberal and the arts courses, too. Many decry the attitude which comes from checking out of the educational stress on logic. It is felt by those men that the emotional and the liberal courses are neglected. The fact that the scientist often refuses to recognize that his emotions to influence his philosophy, is greeted with something akin to horror. Although traditional prejudice seems to make great a value on the study of the classics, the modern seems to be much more interested in the works of the ancient and later students of humanism. Engineering schools recognize, in general, the broadening influence of the liberal arts courses and probably for that reason, not means for their study.

But in spite of this, the student at a technical institution, who thought training in narrow, precise studies leading toward specialization, the industrial and the liberal courses as real, and perhaps even more effective, than what is coming from the students in the schools of liberal arts.
