HUMORING THE MADMAN

As England, France, and the rest of Europe are being held up to ransom by the remorseless bandit of this decade, we cannot hold back our sympathies. Through these weeks of fear that will develop into a panic and dragging all that we now enjoy of freedom and beauty away, there is a constant shuddling in this country and others between neutrality and collectivism. The outcome of which indecision, is, at this writing, still unknown although other strong Democracies have demonstrated that they can act with purpose of any urgency and coming to shift from one side of the balance to the other.

The chances of our becoming involved in a war have seemed too great to risk taking an actual part in the present negotiations, but that doesn't limit our right to decide now on a definite and strong plan for future action. Whatever can be directly attributed to dictator's personal pride, there will always be many actions that will bring advantages to both the dictator and the people whom he rules. Likewise, whatever motive one man can bring to bear upon the rest of civilization, there will never be one man who can dominate the entire scene for long without great consideration for the comfort and desires of his subjects.

There is little use in defining a madman who threatens your life with a gun, but there is no madman who threatens the world in the extent that he cannot be driven from his position of supremacy in the course of time. Our news reports give us no other course than to think Hitler is really mad. The case we have nothing else to do than play our cards cautiously and try to keep him peaceful till we can find a peaceful way to curb his fits.

By the time we explain to the world that the results from the meeting of Hitler with representatives from Italy, France, and England will be known. Then, over this weekend, that Hitler promises will be everlast, it will become clear whether he has already had his wings clipped or whether nothing has been accomplished toward the permanent peace of Europe.

We cannot say that Hitler has done all evil while he has been in power, but he appears about to commence a project wholly evil from our standpoint and many others. We can only hope and wait.

LOWER CHEMISTRY BILLS

A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

Last year The Tech issued two editorials criticizing the payment of high laboratory fees by chemistry students. These fees have been especially high for students of organic chemistry. During the first semester of the present year. Chemicals will be issued each student, evidently the organic chemistry division has reduced the expenditures of the elementary chemical board. Mr. Wareham, chairman of the board, has been appointed to the committee under Professor Gale Page, Jeffrey Lynn and Dick Haley, Ethel Merman, and Jean Hersholt. He is the featured film. Other films in the Irving Berlin series include Judy Garland, Lucille Ball, and Bob Hope. The companion film is Men in Ink, Poor Girl.

THREE DAUGHTERS, with the Lane Sisters, Clara Bow, and some other pretty blonde, has been held over for another week as the audience has been particularly good.

Laura Matthews has been retained.

Serge Koussevitzky Returns to Boston For His Fifteenth Season of Symphony

All college students in the vicinity of New England will be glad to know that Serge Koussevitzky also returns to Boston. He arrived in New York from Europe on the Normandie on Monday, September 28th and proceeded directly to Boston for the opening of the Symphony season in several important matters before being released to the Symphony Hall on Monday, October 2nd.

Opening Season

He will open his fifteenth anniversary season on Friday, October 7th, at 8:30 P.M. This season will be of especial interest because of the music that will be presented and the soloists who are engaged. Although there will be no special president of the Symphony Hall for this time, considerable amount of excitement has been reported around the station of Massachusetts and Havens, As

It appears, as the period of subscriptions sale of tickets draws to a close, that the number of tickets demanded by students for the opening night will exceed the supply of tickets sold last year.

Student Interest High

Among the subscribers a great interest is shown; a number of students are required to buy four or five extra tickets at a time, in addition to the regular subscription. At last year's student fair there were about ten students in attendance, of all the present student subscribers of the full student season's worth, almost ten times as many students.
