Lecture Introduces Course Counselling

Professor P. A. Magoun to Speak To Freshman Class on Career Choice

Through invitations mailed yearly by the Course Counselling Committee, freshmen were invited to the address to be given by Professor P. F. Alexander, Dean of Humanities, to introduce the dinner meetings with graduate students of the Institute.

The address, "How to Choose a Career," is scheduled for March 10, 10:30, and is sponsored by the T. C. A.

Robert M. Sherman, G. chairman of the Committee, announced that all freshmen were invited, regardless of their replies to the cards concerning courses which they would prefer, according to the results of the second term's registration.
DEAN BURDELL
NEW FIELDS TO CONQUER

THE APPOINTMENT of Dean Edwin H. Burdell, president of Cooper Union, to a prominent position with the New York City Planning Commission indicates the academic world's increasing awareness of the intimate relationship between the work of the scientist, engineer, and the social life of the community.

Cooper Union, with its beautiful engineering, decorative arts and social philosophy, fields scientifically unrelated, they are now all bound by a common aim, the greater happiness of the home sapiens, and social progress.

Lack of published information has kept the subject in the dark, and the future, but with the concentrated program that is planned for the next few weeks in motion, there should soon be figures that will be proud to print.

The Alumni Association can hardly fight a national business situation, but the least it can do is to work up some enthusiasm among the former students. It is not hard to understand that the real curing of the disease.

Debate

The judgment day will be the final showdown at the assembly. The affirmative, the Republican ticket, will be defended by Mr. James J. Souder, G., as Bob Brown, Van W. Clements, '40, as the Fatherland which should have some re- sponsibility in its place of force. Furthermore, it is the duty of the student to be proud to print.

A PROM GIRL

LOOKING through some book issues of The Tech, we discovered a Technology custom which we thought ought to be revived. For in the good old days (before Roosevelt) every Junior Prom had its "Prom Girl."

A "Prom Girl" was a girl who was attending the dance, screen, burlesque, or radio, who was appearing in Boston during the week of the Prom and was willing to cooperate. She made an appearance at the dance, and was entertained, danced, or recited from Shakespeare, depending on the particular field in which her talent lay. A 1922 Tech describes the beginnings of the custom.

"At the Junior Prom of 1929, Institute history was made. It was there that the name of the first "Prom Girl" was introduced. She was Polly Walker, star of a then current musical comedy, "Dilly." This novelty was such a great success, and the word spread, that the "Prom Girl" was obtained to add zest to the annual affair."

Of course, no one can say that the Prom this year lacks any "luster," but we think the idea of a "Prom Girl" has had its good just as before.

RELIGION CRUCIFIED

HITLER CONTINUES HIS CAMPAIGN

On his way to Italy he seems to be "cracking down" on the different religions of which he disapproves for the spiritual guidance of his nation. The persecution of the Jews is the most daring step that has been taken thus far, and even the Catholic Church is beginning to feel the effects of the German policies.

In its third week is "Let Us Be Happy," a comedy by Rachel Crothers, will be played through Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings at the Boston Opera House. The play is a 3-act comedy set in a Paris hotel. It is being directed by Richard Erickson, '40.

Against all previous predictions, the varsity fencing team was from a supposedly invincible Dartmouth team on Friday evening, Feb. 25, by a score of 125 to 111. The win was expected by many people, and the team will schedule against the varsity teams of the national colleges.

The other well-fenced match was against Amherst College, when Grafton E. Burke, captain of the Dartmouth team, came out ahead when an Epee blad... the advantage over Crews but he lost and succumbed to a figure-four defeat. The Dartmouth team was: Isabell Lines, J. P. Potman, and Fred MacDougall.

Last Saturday, Tech lost by a score of 125 to 111. The next match will be against the University of Pennsylvania.

Technology Men Give Close Match to Navy

Navy's Powerful Rifle Team, National Champions, Defeated the Midshipmen, 531 to 525.

The Midshipmen came to Boston to challenge the Institute on the only trip which is scheduled for them from Detroit this season. They brought ten marksmen, one manager, and three regular Navy others.

The Navy has lost but a match since 1945 when they lost to the Catholic University of America. The Navy had a high standing body, but the match was sampled to them.
