FALSE FRONT

The six hundred odd who were present at Earl Browder's speech yesterday must have been disappointed by the failure to hear the Communist conception of the wars in Europe.

All they heard was a lengthy explanation of the injustice which Mr. Browder is fighting in his attempt to propagate in the nation the ideas of the Communist party, and a rather miscellaneous collection of unsupported assertions as to the motives which caused the present war in Europe.

Mr. Browder's attempt to convince save that he is a quick-witted and accomplished speaker. As a representative of the Communist party, he made an extraordinarily poor impression on the student body; and if the statements he made were of the official opinion of the Communist Party, said party is in great need of a little intelligent thought and a few lessos in mass psychology.

In general, the remarks he made concerning the major European war are at variance with the facts as we have received them from various sources.

In view of his talk here, we can see no possible danger in allowing Mr. Browder to speak to any reasonably intelligent group of people. Judged by his talk, neither he nor the cause he espoused had any influence whatever.

So far so good

College was started with the express purpose of bringing together those who had something to teach and those who were eager to learn. Yet in the course of the development of the American college, many different forms in the social, athletic, and extra-curricular activities seeped into the scheme of things and, today, threaten to usurp the place of educational itself.

The great majority of New England colleges have found it necessary to place some restraint on this part of undergraduate life. Ambler, however, has been an unwavering advocate of "laissez faire."

New Hampshire Forms Threat To Unbeaten Basket Ball Quintet

Frosh And Varsity Ready To Play Here Tonight

Large Attendance Expected At Game; Fredrickson Begin At 7:30

Two able-bodied New Hampshire basket ball teams play today, with the result of this game likely determining who next in the state basket ball depression, the New Hampshire quintet, probably, and the powerful Technion five, which has proved its ability to defeat Yale and Harvard in back-toback contests, are to contest for the state championship.

The New Hampshire quintet, although it lacks the usual size and speed of the New England teams, has the advantage of being able to play with the New York quintet. The New Hampshire team is also known as the best in New England, while the Technion team is considered the best in New York.

The New Hampshire five has been to New Hampshire, where it has won a number of games. The Technion five has proved its ability to defeat Yale and Harvard in back-to-back contests.

Tonight's game will be the first meeting of the two teams. The New Hampshire quintet is expected to pull off an upset victory.

Swimmers Open Season Tonight

Freshmen Oppose Harvard; Varsity Meets Amherst, Year's First

Tonight Tech's varsity and freshman swimming teams compete against the Harvard swimming teams. The Harvard swimming teams are known for their strength in backstroke and butterfly, while Tech's strengths lie in the breaststroke and freestyle.

The varsity team is expected to perform well, while the freshman team is considered the weaker of the two. The meet is an important opportunity for the freshmen to gain experience and develop skills.

M.I.T. Hockey Team Engages Dartmouth In Second Contest

Dartmouth Stickhandlers Lack Experience And Practice

Tech's improved puck-choosing ability is reflected in the team's nights against Dartmouth. The team is expected to build on its recent improvement during the practice session since the last game and look forward to victory. Last Sunday the team scrimmaged with the Maroons and was victorious.

Dartmouth has been handicapped by the lack of ice, hence their lineup is very笛ndible. They have only five returning lettermen and no goalie with experience in intercollege hockey. Kerley, the regular left wing, was injured while playing right end on the football team and will not be able to play until Christmas.

Green Unbeaten Last Year

Last year's team was undefeated by American teams but lost to Canada's McGill University set. This year's team is inexperienced but, with the aid of good ice and their "miracle" coach, Jeremiah, Dartmouth should develop a respectable record.

Lord's Awarded

Letters were awarded to all varsity and junior varsity men on the freshmen for participation in the sport. The letter men received certificates and pins.

The four men lost by graduation wasEoslann, Harden, FOser, and McDonald. The team's success is expected to continue into the next season.

Rivalries Will Mark Yale Squad Match Tomorrow

A prestigious rivalry will be rekindled tomorrow afternoon in the Yale squad match when the squad team has to host in a strong Yale squad. The rivalry will be between the Tech captain, Bob Miller, '41, and the captain of the Yale team Gordon Stillman.

Although the Tech team lost their first two meetings with Yale, they are expected to put up a good fight in this match. The Tech team's strength lies in their ability to outmaneuver their opponents.
