Men Arrested After Causing Uproar, But No Charges Preferred

A disorderly scene in the theater was thrown into confusion the other evening when five Tech students were arrested for disturbing the peace.

While Arts and Science freshmen who are members of the Drama Club were putting on a play, several members of the freshman pistol team entered the building and attempted to make an arrest. The players were met by a small group of students who were trying to maintain order.

As the players made their way to the box office, they were met by a large crowd of students who were trying to prevent them from leaving the building. The players were eventually forced to leave the building and were taken into custody by the police.

Although the men were not held and no bail was set, the prosecutors were given a special hearing in court Monday afternoon, and the results of the hearing were not known at the time of this report.
The Fallacy of Experience

It is a sad fact that as far as intelligence and personal agility are concerned, experience has very little effect on the mind. An author whose mind is active and inquiring is to a degree independent of time. Experience adds merely a little of history and background, and the person who lives the animal life gets nothing from experience but a maze of uninterpreted facts and a batch of fallacies. If a man's experience is good, he is no better company at fifty than he was at eighteen.

Age is not a criterion in choosing one's friends. It is far better to be with a lively intellect, regardless of age than be ruled by the pseudo-knowledge and superstitions of an older but perhaps false "specialization".

Science in Brief

On Moonless Nights

Every seven years in the northern sky the light from the sun on a moonless night comes just from the zenith. But it has been found that the combined light of all stars, both visible and invisible, can be calculated by inquiring minds. It has persisted with lessening force up until the last five years. Now a vast number of the stars have been made to shine like dogs—although dogs which think they are luminous beings because of their curiosity.

Why Chastity?

In recent years there has been a rising tide of scandal and fornication as well as a rise in the chastity of the present younger generation. Surveys have been made and refuted. Claims may be unimportant.

Very little of the discussion, however, has concerned itself with the most vital point of the whole factor. That point is establishment of the propriety of putting omens with the title of the Bible. Those engaged in the above mentioned discussion have assumed without question that chastity is a most desirable virtue. Perhaps it is. Perhaps it was, in the rather more simple civilization of several centuries ago. But marriage today is knowledge its head against barriers of which our ancestors never dreamed; it is surrounded by influences, and practiced under conditions as yet as far as the chastity of the present younger generation. Surveys have been made and refuted. Claims may be unimportant.
