William A. Pearson Saves Man From Drowning in Charles

Jumping into the icy waters of the Charles River at 6:30 P.M. last night, William A. Pearson, Sr., saved an identical individual from drowning. While crossing Harvard Bridge on his way home from classes, Pearson and his friend witnessed a man attempting to swim across the Charles. The man, an instructor, had his clothes on and kept jumping into the water while being pulled back by a current. Pearson, who was in the pool at the time, went to his assistance and helped him to the shore. The man was rescued and is said to be in excellent condition.

Eddies To Speak About Britain Today At Four
EXAMS  Should M.I.T. abolish final examinations in the interest of progressive education to increase the effectiveness of its engineering instruction? This is the question we would like to place before the Institute, its administration, and the student body.

All too often this topic is broached a week or two before school is over and nothing can ever be accomplished at that late hour. However, this year at the very beginning of the school term, we wish to bring this issue before the faculty and students for serious consideration and discussion.

Each year as a professor outlines a course, he almost invariably comments that he does not like a final examination, but that it is one of the necessary evils of the system. If these statements have been made in sincerity, we feel that it is a basis for intelligent investigation of the problem.

Without exception, everyone will admit that a final examination has more faults than just the fact that the students dislike to take them. The real issue before us, is it becomes a matter of determining whether or not the disadvantages outweigh the advantages. It will be necessary to overcome the natural tendency to keep that which is already established, but any change would have to be considerably outweigh the advantages. It will be necessary to overcome the natural tendency to keep that which is already established, but any change would have to be considerably outweigh the advantages.

Simply stated: Don't go Joe College. You know what we mean. You've heard the stories of the gifted colleagues with the smart answer in everything. You've seen the movie versions of campus life-footloose collegiates with the smart answer to everything. THE READER SPEAKS

In Defense of Pigtails

Dear Sir:

If you are one of those observant males, and your campus is populated fully of them, who keep a sharp watch eye on the varied trends in fashion facilities, undoubtedly you have probably noted one big change this season in their half-linths.

In and out of the classroom with last year's blouson with the wide collar, now they are wearing their pigtail digitals for all time. By the way, how many of you have seen this on the farm. It's a practical idea, you will have to admit, and in keeping with those same lines, but do you believe it pretty.

You know, yourself, that when you think of your best girl, or tell the other fellows about her, you do not think of her hair. Do you want her in pigtails, or do you really want her in pigtails for all time?

Sincerely yours,

ANN MICHELIN

Walkers Starts Waiter Service

New Dining System Appeals To Students

Attention of students has been drawn to the novel methods of serving dinner which Walker Library has introduced. A cafeteria service has been added to the traditional plan of student restaurants, and has been a marked success, according to Mr. H. W. Bridges, superintendent of the Walker Library. A careful study of student reactions has been made by many who have made advanced reservations of tables, and Mr. Bridges says: "We expect that much greater use of the new cafeteria facilities will be made this year than last as a result of the improvement in table service." Mr. Bridges predicted, "Tech men have quite voluntarily begun to dress for dinner and have shown much reluctance to forgoing in their dates, or to being late, with the change to the Walker Library system.

The new M.I.T. Medical Society is going to hold its first meeting of the season this Wednesday afternoon at 6:00 P.M. in Room 6-145. At this meeting Professors Elmer, Hardy and Evans will each give a short talk on "Experiments in Physics," showing the falls open to the physicist and also showing something of the romance of physics.

At this meeting a very important announcement vitaly concerning every member of the society will be made as it was announced by those in charge after the meeting refreshments will be served free to all in the Student Union. Society is Changed

The Physical Society has radically changed from the type of society it has been in past years. On Wednesday its policies and new plans for the coming year will be announced.

May have commented as the Right Hulse the members of the society have been seen wearing. This is but one of the innovations the society has adopted this year.

The first meeting is open to all students, especially those in Course VIII. In physics majors, those interested in physics and in having a good time should attend.

Frosh Dance is Success

The Radcliffe-Simmons acquaintance dance last Friday can be credited as a successful opening in the development of the Freshman Dance Committee. Music was of the very best caliber and the entertainment most amusing.

The committee made a very lucky find in Nurse Higgin who supplied upper-class music of all types and rhythm. The entertainment, however, was unique. June and personal ability were exhibited on the piano by Messieurs Gene Schnell and Ed Emmett, and a general sing was led by the也非常 famous George C. Nardella. A grand march which facilitated the singing was another added novelty.
