Politics, as such, has apparently at long last been recognized by the Institute Committee as a necessary evil to be borne in conjunction with all other evils. In the past, "caucuses" held by various groups to determine a choice of candidates to be nominated for office have been held strictly on the hush-hush, and in private meetings only. But last night postponement of the deadline for the submission of nomination papers by the candidates for office in next week's class elections, merely so that the candidates chosen at a belated caucus meeting could be eligible for election, has apparently changed things, for the Institute Committee has now officially recognized such meetings as valid. In fact, they have been looked on with disfavor by the Committee as an official body, although too often actually supported by the separate members of the Committee. Rules on such meetings have never before been definitely defined, and have remained unknown, and have never been enforced. This year, however, the war has apparently changed things, for the Institute Committee last week extended the deadline for the submission of nomination papers by the candidates for office in next week's class elections, merely so that the candidates chosen at a belated caucus meeting could be eligible for election.

WHO SAID POLITICS?

John C. Conroy, '45

"Careful consideration is particularly apropos because the majority of the students at Tech are between the ages of 18 and 21, the 'critical' age group.

Those who argue against granting the suffrage to this group claim that these 'youths' lack the ability of mature sound judgment, and that consequently they would vote in an irresponsible and hasty manner. This is not so. They are not the first generation to be subjected to the same trials of life. History has repeatedly shown, in Italy, Germany, India, China, Turkey, and Ireland, how the youth of a country has come forward to assume an aggressive spirit of revolt at crucial periods in the country's history. The youth seems to indicate a vulnerable quality in the younger age group which might indicate a low resistance to radical influence.

But are those youth the 'quirks' to be considered detrimental or beneficial to society in general? In many cases they have brought governmental reforms in their more drastic form of revolt against the status quo. In some of the countries mentioned above, it is not possible that those youthful influences, in the modified form of voting, could prove beneficial to our country?

It is these younger people who are confronted with a problem with no absolute solution, either way. No one can tell what the results of granting this privilege would be. On one side we have impulse, inactivity, and unbalanced, and unsound youth; on the other side we have freshness of thought stemming from keen and eager minds, and the desire to make a future more livable.

Why not grant, as a token of gratitude, to this group of young men who are making and are about to make the supreme sacrifice, this voting privilege? There will be no room for selfish consolation in the world of tomorrow.

Briggs Field to Have Triple Meet Tomorrow; '45 Takes Class Meet

Pastoriza Is Sole Entrant For '43 In Meet Last Saturday

Briggs Field will be the scene of another triple meet tomorrow afternoon. The 40-man Beavers' squad will see action at Tufts and Boston College in the first two contests which are to be held at 2:30 and 3:30, respectively. The meet will start at 12:30 with the 6-foot race on the same order as last week's meet with High and Holy Cross. This meet will also serve as a preview for all three teams for the coming New England Track and Field Championships to be held at Boston College on May 8.

Captain Bob Meny, stellar Beaver mule handler, and the 40 of his men, made their first appearance on the track in the West Indies, in the 100 and 200 yard events. Either outdistancing members of the Eagle aggregation or Harris in the half mile, Killelea in the broad jump, Beaver in the shot put and discus, and cut in the 110-yard high hurdles. Chief causes for worry in the former squad were Drake in the 440, Phillips in the two miles, Marks in the shot put, Adams in the javelin, and Leeno in the broad jump.

After a slow start the class of '44 scored an upset by defeating the class of '46 in the Spring Inter-class Meet last Saturday. Though the Beavers were forced to compete against the veterans, they held their own and were not able to place enough men in the first two relays and the class of '46 was well represented in the 200 and 100 yard dashes.

225 Upperclassmen Are Advisors For Incoming Freshmen

Sophs And Juniors Are Urged To Apply For Advisory Positions

Many upperclassmen have recently been asked by the T.C.A. to act as advisors to members of the incoming class. To date 225 men have been made advisors to 325 new students. As the names of more freshmen are made available, more advisors will be chosen.

"The T.C.A. has been conducting this advisory service for freshmen for over twenty years," said Horace T. Robson, '43, Manager of Freshman Advisors, "and it has always proven very helpful. This year, with everything upset, it should prove even more valuable to the incoming men. The purpose of this system of advisors is to give the new men a little first-hand information about Tech and what to expect when they arrive here."

Advise Fresh on Many Problems

Advisors are urged to settle any questions the freshmen may have concerning the Institute or their preparations for entering. It is also suggested that they try to get to know their advisees personally and make them feel free to ask for aid after they arrive here.

Letters are sent to the new men telling each one who his advisor is and the advisor is sent a copy of this letter, the names of the men he is to help, a note on how to get to Tech, the essential things to bring, a list of the men, and the necessary envelopes.

Advisors are taken from members of the Class of 1942 and 1944 recommended by the freshmen and the 3:15 Club. Each man is given 2 to 3 incoming students to advise each year, because the desirable group is no longer in existence, the T.C.A. has had considerable difficulty in finding enough advisors, and therefore members of the Class of '43, who are not now advisors and work to advise those students selected to leave their names and addresses in the T.C.A. office.
