Six Men Are Needed For Hollis Work Camp

The T.C.A. received word yesterday that six men are needed to perform a weekend of work at Hollis, N.H., according to Mr. Wm. H. Hollis, Works Camp Director. Those going may leave on the 8:30 P.M. train tonight for Nashua or on the 12:30 P.M. train tomorrow. They must have suitable work clothes, as food and lodging will be furnished by the camp. They are to supply their own blankets and cutting tools.

Any able-bodied male may go but should sign up in the T.C.A. office before leaving. No one going must make arrangements for transportation from the Nashua station to the farm.

Duke of Windsor Sees Research In Technology Visit

Last Friday afternoon the Institute was honored to receive a visit from Mr. W. W. V. Duke, and several distinguished members of his staff. The Royal party visited through the Massachusetts Avenue entrance as usual.

In the absence of President Karl T. Compton, James R. Killian, Jr., Chairman, introduced the Institute's official welcome to the visitors.

There is more for here

The Duke says there were many of the research projects now being considered by his staff and the Government, and that the visit lasted about one hour, that he seemed particularly interested. Among the students of the Institute staff office during the royal party was John H. D. Brand, Dean of the Graduate School; Professor Robert S. Williams, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Education; Professor Erwin H. Schilling, Head of the Department of Physics, and Engineering Administration.

Daniel M. Wheeler, Famous Engineer, Dies at Age of 97

Graduate of M.I.T. In 1868; Was Third Oldest Living Alumnus

The last two surviving members of Technology's first graduating class, Mr. Edward J. Goodbody, Jr., a member of the third oldest Institute alumni, died at his home in Pittsfield, Mass., Wednesday afternoon, after a long illness. To the end, however, the measurement tape, was employed as a civil engineer on railroad projects in both this country and South America. He had two houses and two bridges in the western part of the United States.

Wheeler was to be worked as an inspector for the Massachusetts Department of Public Works. Retiring to Vermont, at the age of 97, he settled in Pittsfield to become a maintenance Engineer for the Berkshire Railway Line.

No Decision In Bates Debate

Debaters To Meet Middlebush Tonight

Robert G. Campbell, '46, and Patrick K. Cullen, '46, representatives of Technology in a debate with Bates College last May, tonight, in Middlebush, which was held in Littlefield Lounge from 8:00 to 9:00 p.m., will discuss the subject: "Resolved, that the state and local government shall establish and maintain a policy of economic security for all citizens." Also debated was represented by two of the following: Mr. Eric C. Brand, '46, and Robert Macfarlane.

No conclusion was reached by the two members of whom was a former member of the debating society. They felt that the debate was so close that a decision unfair to either team.

Debate Next Week

There are two debates scheduled for the season, both held during the winter. Middlebush, by the end of the war, Middlebush, will be represented by two Y19 students. Also there will be a debate next week against Worcester Polytechnic Institute. The exact date for this has not yet been announced.

Captain Joyce Speaks At Propeller Club Meeting

The Propeller Club held its first meeting of the Fall season last Friday evening at the Smith House. As guest and speaker the Club had Captain John M. Joyce, commanding officer of the U.S.S. Albatross, which is on active duty, of the ship, was a member of the Institute's staff and director of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Research Institute. Captain Joyce spoke on personal experiences he had both aboard and ashore. He led his listeners on an interesting and amusing path through the phases of his very varied life.
This is addressed to the few students of the freshman class who have taken it upon themselves to supply additional decoration to the walls of the Institute in the form of chalk and pencil markings. The Freshman reserves are in poor taste, and convey a bad impression to the Institute who happen to have occasion to visit the buildings which bear the marks.

We have heard of young men scratching on the walls of their homes. This does not come as a great shock to us. We fail to find any justification, however, for a similar action on the part of those who should be mature enough to know better.

If the younger who are responsible for this childish display of their diapers and drop by the offices of The Tech, we shall be happy to trade them a nice red rattle for their chalk.

If they prefer to retain their chalk and pens, and continue to use the buildings as blackboards, we suggest that a pocket be sewed on their rompers as a repository for a five dollar fine.

BOOK LOSS MUST STOP

During the summer term the libraries of the Institute have found that the casualty list of strayed books is far in excess of what would be considered a normal figure. This is particularly true of the Walker Memorial Library.

We hesitate to believe that any of the lost books were deliberately pilfered, preferring to believe that thoughtlessness on the part of a few individuals is responsible for their disappearance.

The loss of books has occurred chiefly from the reserves which are held available for the use of English classes. The number of missing books has reached such proportions as to definitely hamper the work of the courses for which they were brought.

The authorities of the library system have not restricted upon the students who use Walker Memorial Library, since it is assumed that they can be relied upon to use the books which are available as they would books of their own. They believe that a library should be conducted as an intellectual center, not upon a charity basis in which one must pass by a check book turnstile before being permitted to leave.

We strongly urge that those students who may be in possession of the missing books return them upon their own initiative to deliver the books to the library in the immediate future. Failure to do so will be a reflection upon the entire student body.

T.C.A. DRIVES STARTS MONDAY

This year the Technology Christian Association is driving for a fund which is considerably lower than in past years. If this amount is to be gained, it is necessary that every student contribute as much as he can.

The T.C.A., in answer to requests, has printed its budget for 1943-44 directly on the pledge card. There is no question as to how the money will be spent. The Drive is to go. Every cent will be devoted to the support of a valuable phase of the work of the T.C.A. None of the funds will be used for the salaries of the T.C.A. personnel.

One of the valuable services of the T.C.A. which is seldom remembered when the Drive opens is that of the supply of the freshman lot. Without this list, the Rushing Committee of the T.C.A. would be handicapped.

It is needless to mention the Freshman Handbook, the Book Exchange, the Ticket Service, the Freshman Advisor system, the Reserve Room, or any other of the Student Employment Bureau.

The T.C.A. should be given more than enough to meet the budget. The excess will be put to a good use!

Leigh Beaten By Cincinnati
Phi Delta Outlaws Theta Chi 13 To 11

While the last few games of the Bauer key tournament games were being played, the first round--round games went up and won, and some big surprises as Leigh and Theta Chi went down to defeat.

In the league games Sigma Epsilon Xi beat Delta Kappa Epsilon 7 to 3 in a game that was never even close. Sigma Epsilon Xi thus takes the second place position of the Debek--dropped to third. Theta Chi also narrowly survived the attempt of Kappa Omicron to establish undisputed position of first place.

There were two interleague play-off games over this weekend. The Leipzig B Cincinnati team routed over a highly touted Leipzig Team by the respectable score of 17 to 0. The navy boys played the game out to the bitter end, under penalty of losing of being their showing. In another playoff game, Phi Delta Theta finally stumped out a 13 to 11 decision over Theta Chi due to the fact that their unfavored position is now standing at six games. The game was played without an official umpire and was called at the end of the sixth on account of darkness.

Another game was played next week. On Friday Leigh meets Phi Delta Theta B while Cincinnati meets Theta Chi and both teams are in the middle of some important contests. In fact, neither of these teams are in the middle and are looking for full answers from the playoff games.

To Cost $6.60

Options To Be $3.50; Sales October 15-16

The committee of the J.P. Weekend has discovered last night that plans for the coming Junior Prom are markedly complicated by the overblown weekend with the prom on Friday night, and the fact that the party will be followed by parties on the next day.

The Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Statler has been chosen on the site of the Prom. The Statler ballroom was given additional facilities adequate enough for a big event like the Junior Prom. This should be possible to provide table service for the next day.

Options costing $3.50 will go on sale opposite the cashier’s office beginning October 15-16. These options will be redemable November 19, to be followed by the sale opposite the cashier’s office because the latter does not provide the site of the Prom. The Statler will open on Friday, November 19, to be followed by a weekend affair with the prom on Saturday, November 20.
