Bowling Alleys Almost Completed
The Walker Memorial Bowling Alleys will open within a week or ten days, according to Dr. Pung, in charge of their construction. After fire destroyed four out of the six alleys some three months ago, it took some time to acquire the materials and carpenters to rebuild them. Now, finally, the alleys are almost completed.

Several new features have been added to the bowling alleys. It will not be possible to bowl on the regular ten pins besides candle pins. Mr. Pung has been working hard on this long time. He has also made sure that there are still no bowlers-sleeping alleys for the bowlers to practice.

Dinghies Take Third In Morris Trophy; Place Second At Brown

M.I.T. placed third in the Morris Trophy, but second at Brown.

Three Thousand-yard races were held yesterday afternoon at the Charles river, and the Glee Beavers dominated the positions of the four runners. The M.I.T. was a half mile in the lead at the end of the race.

The excitement came in the closing seconds of the race. As the gun went off the last lap, the M.I.T. was in the lead, followed by the Harvard, Dartmouth, and Wisconsin. The Harvard, however, was only a half mile behind the Glee Beavers, and the Wisconsin was only a quarter mile behind the Glee Beavers.

The Harvard, however, was only a half mile behind the Glee Beavers, and the Wisconsin was only a quarter mile behind the Glee Beavers. The Glee Beavers, however, were the only team to keep the same number of runners throughout the race. The M.I.T. and Wisconsin both dropped one runner each in the final mile of the race.

Overall, the Harvard and Wisconsin were the most successful teams, finishing first and second in the Morris Trophy. The M.I.T. placed third, and the Brown placed fourth.

Technology Graduate Witnesses The Eruption of Mt. Vesuvius

(Ed. note: The following eye-witness account of the eruptions of Mt. Vesuvius is as excerpted from a letter written by Paul S. Crandall, 42, to two classmates.

Wednesday, June 21—9 a.m.

Mr. Crandall, an engineering student at the University of California, reported that he had just returned from a trip to Italy. "I am now going to tell you about my trip to Italy," he said.

"I went to Italy last December, and I went there to see the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius. I traveled by train from Rome to Naples, and then by boat to the island of Vesuvius. I was there for three days, and I had a wonderful time."

"I saw the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius several times. It was a very impressive sight. The ash and lava were shooting up into the sky, and the sound was very loud. I could hear it from miles away."

"I was very close to the eruption, and I could see the lava flow. It was a very hot and dangerous place, but I was not afraid. I was very interested in seeing the eruption, and I was glad that I went."

"I also saw the city of Pompeii, which was destroyed by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius. It was a very interesting place, and I spent a lot of time there."

"I am writing this letter to you to tell you about my trip to Italy, and to tell you about the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius."

"I hope that you will be able to see the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius some day. It is a very impressive sight, and I was very glad that I saw it."

"I will be back in the United States soon, and I will be happy to tell you more about my trip to Italy.

Mr. Crandall ended his letter by saying that he hoped to see his classmates soon. He signed his letter with the words, "Your friend, Paul S. Crandall."
