Formal Christmas Dance Tomorrow To Feature Mistletoe, Blue Lights

Tickets To Be On Sale At Mors Hall Door; Latecomers Welcome

As announced in the last issue, tickets for the formal Christmas dance will go on sale tomorrow afternoon. The dance will be held on Saturday evening, December 14, at 9:30 p.m., and the committee said emphatically, mistletoe will be hung in every room each candidate will receive a return card on which he may indicate his final intentions to vote. The female lead still is unannounced.

Tryouts Over; Shunbert takes Gitel's "The Messiah"

At yesterday's Institute Committee meeting, the script will be written over the weekend so that it may hit the goal yet since the situation had greatly improved during the past few months, underlining the fact that there was no iron curtain in Europe anymore.

Theゾロスコープ catches fire

During his speech, President Masaryk stress the importance of the U.S. to the world, and do not have a sufficient knowledge, he said, that the attention had greatly improved the whole of the Czech minister; "we have the responsibility equal to the top half of the student,"" he continued.

Success. At the end of his speech, President Masaryk stress the importance of the U.S. to the world, and do not have a sufficient knowledge, he said, that the attention had greatly improved the whole of the Czech minister; "we have the responsibility equal to the top half of the student,"" he continued.

Compton, LaFollette, Stole, Petersen, and Gilstorp To Go On Air

Climaxing several weeks of strained relations between the U.N. focused on the question of future military training at Dartmouth will be held tonight in Morse Hall at 5:30 p.m. This discussion, Dr. Hart T. Compton, Mr. Howard C. Petersen, Mr. Philip L. LaFollette, and Mr. Harold W. Stole, who are on the committee, and the moderator, Mr. Max T. Glista, Richmond, Va., will be heard by an overflow audience of 1000 on the main floor, 50 on the library balcony, and 100 on the east balcony.

Student-Industry Symposium Held

Dr. Lewis, Mr. Weisner, and L. S. S. to sponsored by the University of New Hampshire. The lecture was given by Professor of the University of New Hampshire and was attended by students, the lecture was given by Professor of the University of New Hampshire and was attended by students.

The Combine Musical Clubs of Tech Engineering will present their final musical production of the year, Handel's "The Messiah." Thursday at 8:30 p.m., December 13, at Trinity Church Auditorium. The auditorium is located in Cambridge, near Harvard Square, at the entrance of the building.

Military Training Forum To Be Seen This Evening: Audience of Over 1100

Tickets for the famed Cellist will be on sale through the evening from 9.00 p.m. on December 14, at the direction of Bob Masterston.

T.C.A. Under Goal Last Friday Night

$1427 Given World Students Service Fund

When the annual drive of the Technical College Student Foundation came to a close last Friday night, the total amount collected for the World Students Service Fund was $1427. The total amount collected was $1427, but included $475 for the World Students Service Fund on the amount contributed for the TCSF was $1427. Benedict, Mr. Howard Petersen, Mr. W. Balme, and Mr. R. Hurley, who commanded a "Ship of Opportunities." The destructiveness of the atom is shown to its full extent in this film.
THE TECH

Reviews & Previews

Despite a competent performance by the M.I.T. Dramashop of Oscar Wilde's overly witty farce, the Importance of Being Earnest, one was left with the impression that the evening would have been more worthwhile had a better play been chosen. The total effect of devastating witty epigrams falling like pearls from the lips of the monotonous assemblage of characters was incomparably wild and winning.

The play was at times brilliant, the situation clever, but the memory of repetition becomes tedious.

Several attempts have been made in the last ten years to revive the play. All failed. It is fairly obvious why. What was considered artful and even a bit risque in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the satire was at times brilliant, the important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and

artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.

What saved the show, however, was the general excellence of the performances. The cast, on the whole, was well chosen, the acting effective, and the direction well paced. By far, the most outstanding performance was that of Thomas B. Inglis, '47, as Algernon. The part was not a very difficult one, but Inglis handled it
perfectly. His artful
reflections were the highlight of the show. The satire on English society, which was at times brilliant, the

important factor in Wilde's era is now dull and slow paced. The lengthy monologues and
artfully assembled dialogue are dated.
I4-48. The game was close all the 54-48, on Monday, and then went on to 54-36 at the end of the third quarter. Haddox scored 36 Points Along with Captain Watson, who did a remarkably fine job in directing

B. K. Basketball To Start On Sunday

Wood, Barracks "A" Top Dorr Basketball Tourney

The dormitory basketball tournament was

Swimmers Meet Amherst Today

Christmas Suggestions

GIFT STATIONERY attractively boxed

TOILETRIES FOR MEN Seaforth and Yardley

TECH SEAL WALL PLAQUES
Masaryk

(Continued from Page 2)

choice of living together or dividing the world. Divison would be a major disaster. . . . We cannot have a war, we must not have a war. . . . nobody with it. Nobody needs it."

He stressed again that while Russia and the United States are different, they have enough points in common on which to cooperate. In a clarification of his own ideas which represent the policy of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Masaryk emphasized that the United States hinged on the Big Four. "If I put my case in the hands of the Big Four, not the Big One or Two, I can assure it lasts well." Therefore, he did not oppose the idea as violently as some of the other small nations did, although he does not like it. "However, with the veto over our heads we have accomplished things thought impossible six months ago."

Patience, and More Patience

Dr. Masaryk again emphasized patience as far as possible. World governments or federations were concerned until present mutual suspicions are eliminated. Ethical and cultural values have been destroyed in Europe and those must be brought to life. "We must build up our social and our cultural values."

Musical Clubs

(Continued from Page 2)

while the orchestra also composed not only of students, will number over fifty. Four women and two men will sing the solo parts.

Tonight at 8:15 the Symphony Orchestra will present its first concert of the season at Johnston Auditorium. Under the direction of Antonio J. d'Amedio, '48, the orchestra will play a program in two parts. The first will include Lully's "Suite for Orchestra," Procinco's "Ode" overture, and Han- der's "Messiah" overture and "Grand Overture in B flat Major." In the second part will be Schubert's "Symphony No. 6 in B flat Major" and Couperin-Milhaud's "La Sultanne" Overture. Tickets will cost 46 and 90c. and are on sale at the door or TCA.

As another activity the Glee Clubs will hold the Barrier in singing Christmas Carols next Thursday, December 19. At 11:45 classes will be dismissed and as many people as possible will assemble in the lobby of Building 7, for half an hour, to sing.

M.I.T.A.A. MEETING

All members of the M.I.T.A.A. are expected to attend a meeting of the organization which will be held in Faculty Lounge on Sunday, December 15, at 4:00 P.M. It has been announced that the numbers awarded to winning team members, and managers of the Field Day events are now ready and may be picked up at the A.A. office any afternoon between 2:30 and 6:00 P.M.

Burton Room Tea For Dorms & 22

Both barrack and dormitory residents have been invited to a Christmas tea on Sunday, December 15, by the Dormitory Committee. The tea, which is somewhat of a postscript to the annual Christmas Dance, will be held in the Burton Room of Munroe Hall between 4:00 P.M. and 6:00 P.M. of the date mentioned.

\begin{center}
\textbf{TRIPLE SMOKING PLEASURE} \end{center}

\begin{itemize}
\item \textbf{A} ALWAYS Milder
\item \textbf{B} BETTER TASTING \item \textbf{COOLER SMOKING} \end{itemize}

\begin{center}
\textbf{CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR} \end{center}

\begin{center}
\textbf{STUDENT RATE—Available until Christmas} \end{center}

\begin{center}
\textbf{ONE YEAR for $6.00}
\end{center}

\begin{center}
That's only \textbf{TWO CENTS} a copy!
\end{center}

See your \textbf{MONITOR agent}.

\begin{center}
Worth H. Perdew—11-A, Grad House
Donald Dunn—Wm 101
Robert O. Smith—Atkinson 304-B
Theodore S. Huang, Jr.—NWP, 21-2-E-4
\end{center}

\begin{center}
\textbf{Always Buy CHESTERFIELD} \end{center}

\begin{center}
\textbf{ALL OVER AMERICA—CHESTERFIELD IS TOPS!} \end{center}