Charles Spivak Highlights Program

For All-Tech Dance – Famous First
Corps Armory Chosen For Affair

Plans for the All-Tech Dance will be laid by the three-weeks residence staff indicating the fact that they are welcome. Those, which were on sale Monday in Building Ten, are said to be all sold. Committee heads have been invited as chaperons, and it is hoped that all dormitory students and Karl T. Compton and James R. Killian, Jr., will attend as guests.

Dance in Armory

The famous First Corps Armory will offer the residence on the campus. Arlington and Columbus Avenues, was recently been increased on the site. Armory can be held on Saturday, February 15. As already announced, Charlie Spivak and his orchestra will provide music for the informal dance.

Scene of many colorful Inaugural and Governor's balls, the First Corps Armory was constructed in 1891 and has since become a famous Boston landmark. Despite its forbidding appearance from the outside, the armory interior is a compost and spacious place in which to hold social functions. Hence its selection as site of the Governor's balls and the All-Tech Dance.

Pleasant Decor

Around the Corridor is there several colorful display depicting modern warfare salads. The main room, which can easily handle the large number of people present-at-the-dance, is furnished with smooth yellow brick walls, polished wood tables, and adorable stands.

In addition to the armory facilities, the dance committee is providing extant tables and chairs, and adequate checking facilities.

COMEDIAN AT I.D.C.

Mr. Kenman Of The Department State Addresses Institute

"The tremendous vitality of the German people continues to repose the world, and eventu- tally will make all Europe," so declared Professor for the Department of State in an address at Technology last Thursday. History shows that Germany was the strongest and unity of peoples. The German political machine eliminated that resulting in a week of peace. Germany, he said, is still localy, said Mr. Kenman. He went on to point out that the resulting unhappiness of the source of fear, in the United States, of the New England district.

He later stated that this war and the one before it, should be for freedom, for our culture. It is for men to be ruled by their weakness and fears as well as by their virtues.

Historical Viewpoint

"What approach will we take to the peace, or do we wish to go back to the dark ages?" asked Mr. Kenman.Answering, he said that the modern historian is a time perspective historian wherein we should understand "How did we get ourselves into the jam which we are in now?" One of the methods used by historians is to have had the time, that is, to have had the time for action and initiative. When the time in the whole world years ago was Russia began to feel the power of Germany, the Germans took advantage of that time.

Shown here in the midst of a comic song following the current events is George Marchon, 23, who came to the Harvard College to stay for five months. He is featured as a cartoonist for the "Tech Show," March 17 and 18.

N. E. Sailing Association Elects M.I.T.'s Fawcett, As President

Last weekend Technology played host to the New England intercollegiate sailing regatta. The regatta was held at the New York Yacht Club in a round-robin annual meeting. Delegates from seven to twenty-three member colleges gathered here to transact the year's business such as the re-election of the Spring Dinghy Committee and the election of new officers.

Meetings were held all day Saturday in Walker Memorial Building and concluded Saturday evening with the annual dinner at the Storm Yacht Club of the Graduates House. At that time Howard Pfeiffer, St. Vice-Chairman of the N.Y.S., was elected President of the N.Y.S. Association, was elected President of the New England Sailing Association for the following year. The office carries with it the responsibility of arranging the biennial Boston Intercollegiate Racing Association Tournament for the North Eastern States. As a result, the organization is continuing its winter activities with lectures by Jack Wood on "How to Make a Boating" for the Technological organization in the New England district.

In the meantime the National Association is continuing its winter activities with lectures by Jack Wood on "How to Make a Boating" for the Technological organization in the New England district. On Saturday, February 18, in 12-06.

Robot Threat to Human Race Is Theme For Forthcoming Play by Dramashop

R.U.B. is the cryptic title of the forthcoming play by the Dramashop, scheduled for February 25th at 6:00 p.m. in English Hall. Everyone interested in dramatics either from a histrionic or technical viewpoint is invited to attend; no previous experience is necessary. It is hoped that many of the new freshmen, male and female, who are not acquainted with the activities of the Dramashop will take advantage of this opportunity to join Tech's undergraduate dramatic organization.

The play itself by Karel Capek presents a madman's in his best sense. The possibilities of the development of a mechanism of a rationalized war machine is used as the beginning for a number of thought-provoking situations. "But it is long since the philosophers have defined man as an animal," Capek writes. "This man has a direct line to the brain and the brain can make him a pleasant fellow to live with."

"The Congenial Companions." His high school athletic accomplishments are legendary: at platoons and football, Harvard has no doubt a pleasant companion. "Do not make him a pleasant fellow to live with.

Theta Chi Sets Pace In Intramural Play

With a 10-5 victory over Pi Lambda Phi over the weekend, the Theta Chi Basketball team took the lead in the intramural playoffs and now needs just one more victory to cap its third consecutive Intramural Basketball Championship. Led by Lee Layton and Paul Smith, the Theta Chi Five is thus far undefeated this season, including four victories garnered in the present playoffs.

The standings and remaining schedule follow:

The hockey game between M.I.T. and Middlebury, scheduled for last Saturday night, was cancelled due to lack of ice. It was the second game as the Beaver able to suffer the fate, both of them being against supposedly inferior opponents.

Varsity Riflemen To Travel South On Four-Day Trip

The Varsity Rifle Team will start a four-day shooting marathon tomorrow when the Beavers go on a road trip that will include matches with five college teams and an important championship match. Yale will be the Engineers’ first opponent, as they stop in New Haven for a match on Wednesday evening. They will then journey to New York for a Thursday morning match with Columbia University and the City College at 5 C.N.Y. Columbia should be a tough opponent for the Puttans, as the Columbia team was among the five best college teams last year. Thursday afternoon will see the Tech team against the strong New York University team at N.Y.U. Friday will find the Engineers facing the series of college matchups at Rutgers University.

The climax of the trip will come on Saturday, however, when the Beavers shoot in the District of Columbia Championships. The Championships, which last year included sixty teams, feature the University of Maryland, George Washington and George-town, all good teams.

but present-day Russia starts with the revolution of 1917. From that revolution arose two theories of the method by which Communism should spread. The first says that it will spread as part of the natural course of human evolution; the second, that violence is the principal means by which it should be propagated. Unfortunately, concludes Mr. Kennan, it is the latter course which is being carried out by the Kremlin today.

Top Advisor

Mr. Kennan’s experience includes a knowledge of several foreign languages and considerable foreign travel. Before the Second World War broke out he had visited a number of European capitals including Moscow, Berlin and Prague. After the war he appeared as the American Counsellor to the European Advisory Committee, later serving in an advisory position in Moscow. He is now the top foreign policy advisor in the State Department.
