Information Marks Dr. Killian Talk At Swampscott Parleys

The speech which President Killian delivered before the Leadership Conference at Swampscott last week was not without an important statement about so many well-known events in the life of student self-government at the Institute, but also gave a correlating summary of the qualities that make the Corporation an effective and constructive atmosphere which pervaded the atmosphere of the conference. But it runs as follows:

"Monsieur, and members of the council, I appreciate the opportunity to be able to join you for part of this session, because I feel so strongly that last year's Leadership Conference was important and made such an important contribution to our common welfare at the Institute, and also that the Corporation has chosen to do this and means for financing a permanent educational program and that so long as meeting.

The Corporation has the legal authority to govern the Institute—thank you for the educational program. These Hands Are Priceless!

They protect the American way of life... our homes, our freedom, our future.

These Hands, sensitively trained to respond acutely to the nuances of an alert mind and courteous heart, are the hands of a UnionizedAFSCME. We are professional.

The skillful touch of these hands staves off the blinding speed of modern jet aircraft in effective solutions in discouraging enemy. These hands are rapaciously capable of flying and fighting with these machines with devastating effect.

These Hands belong to the young, spirited American man (not supermen) who desires to live unencumbered in a free America... who want to enjoy the same rights and opportunities open to all American men.

These Hands belong to our sons—yours and mine. Youths who must decide today how they can share in defense of our nation and world. The future generation is ours to mold. Today's college men should be encouraged to complete their education in order to better themselves. They take sides.

The Editor of The Tech:

Being a person who was raised on real food, I have no alternative but to present the latest data on the impact of the Walker Memorial Dining Service, specifically, the substitution of non-animal-derived foods for dairy butter.

There have been no changes in the quality or quantity of the food. An extra-tomato sauce still costs the same. The vegetable fennel soup costs the same. A vegetable, up to our old friends, have had to adjust since then, mostly because the earth is a bit as nourishing as butter, it is a reasonable substitute. In cooking, perhaps, but as a spread maybe that has the consistency and a lot of the taste of the original.

I am writing this, partly because I have sprung up with the advent of the American ecosystem. I am referring to the tremendous waste of food that goes during all those meals. There have been no changes, for instance, when people order the macaroni with milk, then order half of each plate, or when they take six rolls and two pats of butter and leave them on the tray without being touched. Others take salads, and even westerns a mouthful, or eat one bite of the pie that happens to be the dessert left over. The rest go to waste. These things are not true, for I have experienced such behavior time after time in charing off the table.

Thus, it would appear to me while it is true that the attitude of those eating at Walker depends upon the type of service they receive, the general public is also very true that with some attempt to improve its own attitude, the patrons might very well find the Dining Hall many improvements, and if it is at all possible to be the one person that will see that this is done.

In conclusion, it may be said that the outstanding feature of Christian Science is the ability of a single man to heal by the application of its doctrines. This ability is based on the recognition of the divine quality of all men and the recognition of man's spiritual nature. In the healing process, the practitioner is not a mere agent but an instrument of the divine healing power. The practitioner's role is to apply the principles of Christian Science to the individual who seeks healing.

These are just two of the Institute's unofficial extra-curricular activities. But they illustrate the enthusiasm with which the members of these groups pursue their particular interests. A few of the official activities could use some of this enthusiasm.

Rifle Team Begins Training Sessions

The Institute Rifle Team has begun a series of six-week training sessions. The first session was held yesterday afternoon.

Team officials were all men interested in coming out for either the freshmen or Varsity Squad to attend these clinics. They are being held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons from five to six p.m. at the rifle range and will continue for about three weeks. The instructions will be under the able direction of Lt. Herb Wirth, one time holder of the National Individual Interscholastic record and twice a member of the All-American Rifle Team.

The range will open for regular firing on Monday, October 27. Ranges hours are: Monday-Friday 12-5 Saturday 12-4

Killian Speech

I think that this is the kind of concept that is fundamental in our whole American democratic situation. In terms of student government, not as free and I would suggest that if we can develop the freedom to utilize our particular talents in our participation, we will have the maximum advantage of all the experiences that we have got to create among students for student government at the Institute. Somehow we have got to create among students the awareness that they have freedom in making duplicates and will have a degree of freedom that was most consistent with the maximum advantage of all the experiences that we have got so regular and seen as our individual talents and potentialities.

The Institute is assembling a collection of color transparencies of 2 x 2 (35 mm) size to be used by students for student government at the Institute: somehow we have got to create among students the awareness that they have freedom in making duplicates and will have a degree of freedom that was most consistent with the maximum advantage of all the experiences that we have got so regular and seen as our individual talents and potentialities.
