Auditorium Is City Violation

The Institute's proposed auditorium, located at the intersection of East Street and Aurburn Street behind the present Bartlett Hall, has run afoul of the law. It has been declared by City building commissioner Lapham that such a building is impossible until the new ordinance is passed. The proposed auditorium is to be constructed of reinforced concrete. The Cambridge Board of Appeals refused to pass upon the question after following an appeal from the commissioner's ruling. Meanwhile, work on the building of the present walled-in building has already begun.

Science Teachers Win Fellowships

Fifty-four science teachers from across the country, including the province of Alberta in Canada, have been named as winners of Westington Missionary Fellowships. The awards are to be made available to science teachers who have been affiliated with the Institute for five years. The current program, which began on August 1, is the fifth in the series. Designated by Faculty Committee. The award program for the fellowship winners has been designed by the Faculty Committee. The awardees are recipients of recent developments in many fields. The awards may be used for special lectures in physics and chemistry, and may be used for special developments in the fields of science. The awards are one of the highlights of the award program for the fellowship winners.
MEETINGS OF THE TECH THROUGH THE MAIL

To the Editor of THE TECH:

My first reaction to Mr. Syed Razi’s letter regarding my article in THE TECH LITERARY SUPPLEMENT was to dismiss it as incriminational. But on rereading his statement, I felt that he was sincerely concerned about the political discussions that might originate from my story. I am in turn sincerely hopeful that it will not become a custom at M.I.T. to read into the literary articles published in THE TECH any political issue that may be present. I also hope that Mr. Razi will be able to control his article in the light of a literary effort, as it is meant, and not as a piece of political propaganda. It was only pure coincidence that my experiences occurred in the Middle East, and I recorded them as such, without any views noticeable. As to the decency of my article, which seems to have shocked Mr. Razi’s moral sensuts, I have only to refer him to the has and cry which was raised fifty years ago at the naturalistic writings of Zola and Bal-

Tech Sailors Win Elimination Race; Oust Harvard

The traditional duel between Harvard and Tech sailors was fought on the waters of the Charles River Basin between crew races last Saturday afternoon. The two teams, ranked as the best in New England, fought it out in a best two-of-three series. Harvard won both races by 8½ points, but the Beaver sailors, with their backs to the wall, came through in thrilling fashion to take the two remaining races and establish their supremacy over the Crimson.

The Beavers came home first, with victory in the New England Intercollegiate Sailing Association Championship eliminations at New London. The Beavers qualified as the best in New England, and also as one of the six teams to rank as one of the four entries to the national qualifying regatta for the nationals, to be held at Kings Point, N. Y., in June. Harvard will be favored to take the New England championship races, and also the nationals expected to give them the most trouble.
