Hayem Continues Trip From Israel To Genoa and Italy

Three hundred French teen-age girls in shorts and sweaters over the St. B. Nepga. They belonged to the "Colonie de Vacance en Israe," a worthy organization devoted to sending summer vacationers to the Holy Land. The aims of this society were varied and appealing. Among them were learnings in the fields of Judaism, confronting the Israelis with their "treats," and pretending to be interested in the historical importance of ancient Palestine. They remained in the midst of these prohibitions.

Israel gave these French girls the opportunity to dress as they pleased. There are no stricter rules than those imposed by people in Israel, and every one of the "Colonies" members subscribed to purchase these symbols of the Israeli austerity campaign immediately upon arrival. One pair was sufficient for the whole summer, because the probability of the depilation of digit varies directly with the surface area of the shorts—a negligible probability!

The ship was small, having hardly any free space as a result of the Israeli population by the "Colonie." No one thought that it is possible to operate a crossroads bucking, a pretentious cabin, or washing pajamas with the Mediterranean sky looking down at the still blue Mediterranean sea encircling you, and a crown of shorts, sweaters, and unpressed trains parading around you, that is a sign of Italian influence. Purge yourself immediately by a cruise in the Mediterranean.

Fortunately the trip from Haifa to Genoa lasted only five days. I say "fortunately" because the psychological strain involved in working in such an atmosphere can be detrimental. Learned from this voyage that not only a limited space exists utilization.

Genoa was big and unfriendly, so it couldn't be quite understood. Everybody traveled in all directions, and I never found out where I was going. The city was beautiful, however, and even though I was lost I enjoyed relaxing among the busy markets buildings construction.

All-Star Game Proposed To Close Intramural Year

by Philip Bryden, '56 and Philip Schaffer, '56

In order to stimulate interest in intramural sports and to recognize outstanding achievement in those sports, this column would like to suggest the possibility of an intramural all-star game. This game would pit the intramural champions against an intramural all-star team, or perhaps a Tech team against a team from Harvard or Boston University.

To facilitate the choosing of this proposed all-star team, more complete records of the games should be kept, including scoring on an individual as well as a team basis. At present, virtually no records, outside of some house records, are being kept. Certainly there is no sole place one can learn who the league's leading scorer is. The job of keeping and tabulating the various scoring records is a job that can easily be handled by one man on the Athletic Association, Beaver Key, of The Tech, if he only gets a little cooperation from the various teams.

This column would also like to suggest a way of picking the all-star team. Each league champion would be:

How the stars got started

John Wayne says: "My college football coach got me a summer job at a movie studio. I started as a prop man and stunt man. Afterward my studio friends inveigled me into acting. I made about 75 Westwoods before big parts came my way.

I STARTED SMOKING CAMELS 25 YEARS AGO IN MY EARLY MOVIE DAYS...SMOKED THEM EVER SINCE. THERE'S NOTHING LIKE CAMELS FOR FLAVOR AND MILDNESS!

CAMEL"S AGREE WITH MORE PEOPLE THAN ANY OTHER CIGARETTE!

Those alliories, dark and sinister, seemed to mirror similarly in distorted pools, a feature of every Italian city. Scena once realized the mechanisms of such streets and flooded them with water to create the city now known as Venice. This scheme I endorse for all cities abundant in alleways, especially Boston.

It was while wandering through these alliories, the night we landed in Genoa, that I met one of the overseas from the ship. We had such other than two old friends, although we had hardly spoken at sea. Our only bond was our enthusiasm in this foreign land. Together we explored dimly lit paths and still darker porticoes and patios. We were getting tired.

Other players figuring to help Tech improve on last year's 1-16 record are Jack Britt, '55; Bernie Gilbert, '54; Don Bix, '54; Bill Fields, '55 and Dan Lickly, '54. The required number of contact hours has been reduced and a system of electives introduced this year an auspicious one. One is the introduction for October 22 at 5:15 p.m. at the Tech Field House. Up to now, the Class of '56 has shown very little spirit concerning Field Day football. Usually less than many high-school lettermen, we are not enough men for a good team. Additionally, it is up to the class of '56 to return call since a group of MIT representatives are not enough men for a good-
