Students Solicited By DormCon On OpenHouseRules

Dormitory Council, through the medium of the House Chairmen, is passing out a questionnaire to all dormitory residents, which will make an attempt "at gathering dormitory student opinion . . . referring to problems in dormitory living." The questionnaire contains six questions to be answered anonymously. Specifically, the questions seek student opinion on open house hours, their enforcement by the students, and the penalty to be imposed upon violators. Some questions of a personal nature are also asked. No student will be prosecuted for any answers given to these questions. It is the hope of the Dormitory Council that all questions will be answered honestly. Unless strong action is taken by the student body, Dorm Council feels further restrictions on open house hours may be expected from Dean Bowditch's office.

Rumpus Room

East Campus House Committee is concerned about the possibility that there may be no Dorm Weekend this year. Dormitory Council lost almost $500 on the Dorm Christmas Formal and there may not be enough money left to pay for Dorm Weekend. Last year only 18 tickets were sold for the Weekend, although the number of tickets sold for the individual dances greatly exceeded this number. The East Campus House Committee feels that active student interest in the Weekend might help to make it possible in spite of the difficulties.

Katz Elected

The House Committee elected Herbert W. Katz '56 Representative to Dormitory Council. Katz's platform might be summarized as cooperation with the Institute rather than continued antagonism. The voting was very close and some time was needed to decide which of the four candidates won.

Plans for a rumpus room for East Campus seem to be stalled because the Institute doesn't feel the need for appropriating any more space for lounges. It was brought out at the meeting that existing lounges are grossly abused by their users.

Luncheon Planned

A letter sent by Dean Bowditch was read at the meeting. Because last year's luncheon meeting between student representatives and city officials was considered very successful, another luncheon of this type will be held this year in the Faculty Club. The Mayor of Cambridge, as well as the Fire Chief and Police Chief will attend. The representatives of the students will be: Herbert S. Amster '56, Chairman of Baker House; Eugene F. Davis '55, East Campus House Committee Chairman; Edward W. Gore '55, Chairman of Burton House; (Continued on page 4.)

Building Of Chapel Causes Relocation Of Power Conduit

New conduit for power lines is being laid under Amherst Street behind the Graduate House. As of now, power for West Campus comes from Building 77 through two of twelve conduits which cross underneath Massachusetts Avenue. The other ten lines are not connected to the main distribution center in the Graduate House.

Construction of the chapel has necessitated relocation of the conduits. Twelve paths are being laid to allow for future expansion of West Campus facilities.

N. S. A. Sponsors Carnival In April; W.U.S. To Benefit

For the third year, M.I.T. National Student Association will sponsor a fund raising carnival on Saturday, April 10, from 8:00 to 12:00 p.m. in Rockwell Cage. This year the name of the sponsoring organization (formerly W.S.S.F. now W.U.S.—World University Service) has been changed, but the Carnival remains the same.

Among the many events at the Carnival will be the already popular Shoe Shines. Here is the only chance for a student to have his shoes shined by a Professor of his course. Another headline event will be the W.U.S. Handicap. This three legged race will couple a student and professor from each course in a test of strength and coordination.

The fraternities and dorm groups will vie with each other to produce the best booth on the midway. Prizes will be one-half keg of beer for the most original and one-half keg of beer for the most lucrative of the booths.

The money raised at this Carnival goes to the World University Service. W.U.S. carries on a program of relief and assistance to students in need the world over. W.U.S.'s aid takes the form of medicine in Greece, of student housing in overcrowded areas like India, and textbooks and other educational supplies in places like Korea.

On some campuses door to door solicitation is used, while at the Institute a Carnival is held. The Carnival serves a dual purpose: it provides students and professors with an opportunity to have fun together, and it also provides funds for the World University Service.

Norbert Weiner Returns From 7-Week Indian Trip

Professor Norbert Wiener, of the Department of Mathematics, returned recently from a seven-week trip to India, under the auspices of the Indian government. Professor Wiener was one of a group of delegates who delivered scientific lectures in India's universities.

India is a nation which combines great intellectual ability with extreme poverty, according to Professor Wiener, who was impressed with the technological institutes in Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and elsewhere, as well as with the advances made in recent years in the field of scientific research.

Automatic Machines

In some of his lectures there he discussed the concept of the "Second Industrial Revolution," which he believes must take place before the end of the current change toward industrialization. This plan would take full advantage of the science of cybernetics, and would thus avoid the mass migration of people from village to city, and the accompanying slum problem. With the automatic factory in operation, only a few highly skilled technicians would be needed for the maximum production rate, which should be reached in as short a time as possible.

Russians Attend

One of the purposes of the trip was the forty-first meeting of the Indian Science Congress, which was held in Hyderabad for the purpose of discussing topics of interest in the scientific world. Among many other countries, Russia was also represented at this Congress, and Professor Wiener found that many of the Russian delegates were unpolitical in nature, and seemed very much like scientists elsewhere. ## Prof. T. Sherwood Gives Lecture On U.S. Water Supply

How to increase America's water supplies, already running short in the face of demand expected to double by 1975, will be the subject of Dr. Thomas K. Sherwood, Professor of Chemical Engineering and Dean of Engineering here from 1946-1952, in a public lecture at the Institute at 4:00 p.m. Sunday in Room 10-250.

Professor Sherwood will speak on "Fresh Water from the Sea" in the last of this year's series of Popular Science Lectures, sponsored by the Society of Arts.

Tickets to this public lecture may be obtained, without cost, from the Society of Arts, Room 4-434. Seats not taken by 3:55 p.m. Sunday afternoon will be available to those without tickets.

Jack Edwards To Supply Music At Mil-Ball Tonight

Jack Edwards, Boston bandleader, will furnish the music tonight at the Institute's annual Military Ball, sponsored by Company G-5 of the Society of Scabbard and Blade. ## Bill Neff Elected New President Of Activities Council

Last Wednesday the Activities Council held elections for the coming year. William J. Neff '55 was elected president, and will be assisted by Norman G. Kulgein '55, vice president, and Philip N. Eisner '55, secretary-treasurer.

This Council, a sub-committee of Incomm which was created as part of the recent reorganization, consists of representatives from the twelve Class A activities and two representatives at large from the Class B activities. This represents the first time that Class B activities have had any direct representation in student government.

Approves Activities

The main function of the Council, which was formed to relieve Incomm of routine duties concerning activities, is to recognize all activities on campus and approve their constitutions. It also submits financial reports on the activities, approving the budgets of the ones that desire Undergraduate Association funds.

In addition, Activities Council serves as a meeting place for representatives of the various activities, where they can discuss such things as problems in obtaining enough space, and conflicts in the scheduling of Freshman smokers and other meetings.

Formerly, every Class A activity on campus had its own representative on Incomm. Under the new system, their sole delegate to this body will be Neff, as Activities Council president.

Plans Under Way For Libraries To Improve Facilities

In order to increase both the beauty and the capabilities of the Institute's libraries, many additions and changes are being carried out.

With the aid of the Boston Stein Club, the court of the Hayden Library is being redecorated. A willow tree, shrubbery and bulbs have already been planted, with flowers to follow. With the arrival of more clement weather, the court will be opened and chairs placed in it for the convenience and pleasure of the students. Music may also be piped into it from the Music Library, though this has not yet been definitely decided upon. Furniture has already been placed in the hallway between the Exhibition Gallery and the Court.

In addition, Vernon D. Tate, Director of Libraries, announced that late this spring or during the early part of summer, the English Library is due to receive additional stacks, lights and a new coat of paint, while the Rotch Memorial Library will have more stacks, tables and chairs.

Acoustical improvements will be made in the Science Library, and the "emergency exit" from the Music Library to the Science Library will be closed in an effort to curb the disturbance caused by its use as a passageway.

Additional plans of wider scope are also being discussed, but none of these are definite as yet.

his orchestra will play at the I.F.C. Spring Formal. Hal Reeves and his band will be unable to play as previously announced, due to contractual difficulties.

Cindy Lord, popular vocalist, will be the featured performer at the dance, which will be held in the Main Ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel from 9:30 p.m. to 1:00 a.m. Tickets will be on sale at the door.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT, THE INSTITUTE, AND 45 CENTS

Shotgun weddings are inherently unpleasant affairs, and when the parties involved are the Institute Committee and the Faculty Committee on Discipline, the results are doubly unpleasant. The fact that some six hundred students have had to pay 45 cents at the Institute Committee office under threat of a five dollar fine by the Administration's Committee on Discipline is merely a further indication of just who is holding the shotgun in this little affair.

The whole thing began before Field Day 1952 when some $1200 worth of damage was done to the dormitories and to one of the main buildings by students whose identities have never been discovered. On December 4, 1952, Mr. Robert M. Kimball, Director of Business Administration, pointed out in a letter to Frederick G. Fassett, Associate Dean of Students, which can be seen in the Institute Committee office, that the Institute has no provision in its budget to cover damage done by the students. He said, "My purpose in writing this is to find out which approach you would prefer to take in clearing this account." The approach taken by Dean Fassett was to turn the matter over to Institute Committee, who then decided on the general 45 cent assessment.

All of this was very straightforward and certainly the right thing to do, since it is evident, even without reference to the fine print in the catalogue, that the students are responsible both morally and financially for their actions. Institute Committee obviously undertook the assessment to demonstrate to everyone that student government could effectively discipline the students, or putting it in a nicer way, that the students are capable, at least financially, of running themselves. At this point, one might properly ask the questions, "Why did the Committee authorize an assessment on twenty-five hundred people when it certainly must have been evident that a large number would not pay? Since Institute Committee itself has no direct power to force payment of the fee, what was to be done about the delinquents—those that refused to pay?" The answer to this last question is clear—absolutely nothing. The net result is all too plain.

Student government has merely fulfilled an obligation to the Institute at the expense of its greater obligation to the student body. It has collected money from those who were willing to pay, and then told the Dean's office to collect from the rest. It started on a job it knew it could never finish. In short, Institute Committee, ostensibly representing the M.I.T. undergraduate student body, has in this instance been reduced to a collection agency for the administration, and a pretty poor one at that. Furthermore, much damage has been done to the prestige of student government in the eyes of its fellow students. By running to the Committee on Discipline, Institute Committee has demonstrated that student government is not yet independent, not yet ready to stand on its own two feet, and certainly is not "your student government" whose actions "is considered by the Committee on Discipline to be your own act and decision and therefore binding upon you."

This is what should have been done. Student government should, after having passed the motion to assess the undergraduate body 45 cents, and after having collected from those who were initially willing to pay, have sent a second letter to the delinquents, saying in essence (in addition to an explanation of the reasons for the fine) the following: nineteen hundred of your fellow students have already paid the fine. It is evident that in fairness to them everyone must contribute his share. Thus we have arranged with the registrar to withhold the term marks of those who have not yet paid. Furthermore, a fine of two dollars will be levied on all those who have not paid by March 19. This letter would originate from the Institute Committee office and would be signed by the President of the Undergraduate Association, and not by the Chairman of the Faculty Committee on Discipline. The authorization for the additional fine and the withholding of marks could easily be arranged by private communication between Institute

Committee and the proper authorities.

The essential point is this. Once having decided to assume financial responsibility for the damages, Institute Committee should have carried their decision, namely the 45 cent assessment, through to some definite conclusion, getting the cooperation of the Institute or other individuals if necessary. The impression that one cannot help getting as a result of this fiasco is that student government is simply a front organization for popularizing the Institute's programs, policies, and decisions. Let us hope that the new Institute Committee has enough gumption and initiative to take back what should never have been given up.

Shore School Run By Nautical Ass'n; Plan Intramurals

The Bosuns Club of the Nautical Association is running, until Tuesday, March 23, a Shore School in sailing. The school is divided into two sections, the first composed of undergraduates and staff members, the second of graduate students. Since the second group, however, is now nearing completion of the course, all grads who are interested may join the other section. Both follow the same course and have the same teachers. The meetings are in room 2-390 from 5-6. You don't need a sailing ticket to belong.

Students As Instructors

The instructors in this unique course are fifteen of the twenty-five members of the Bosuns Club. These are the highest qualified sailors in the Nautical Association. They are its Student Administrators. Top man in the Bosuns Club and director of the studies is Commodore John Rieman '54.

Intramural Planned

The main reason for giving this course is to popularize a sport that is within the abilities of most of us. The Nautical Association plans to decentralize the scope of interest in sailing. They want to take it away from exclusively varsity competition and bring it to the rest of the student body. In accordance with this, they are planning an intramural program for this spring. Tentatively the program would include the formation of three groups, one for beginners who have just passed helmsman status

Baseball Squad Drills For Start Against Harvard

After two weeks of pre-season baseball practice, the squad has been cut to twenty-eight, three more than Coach Roy Merritt plans to carry. After spending most of the first two weeks hitting against the machine, the squad has begun facing actual pitching.

So far, it looks like the team that will start for Tech in the opener against Harvard, April 13, will consist of infielders Paul Valerio '54 first base, Dick Morganstern '54 at second, Pete Peterson '55, a transfer from Denison, at short, Captain Bob Lait '54 at the hot corner, outfielders Giff

(the minimum requirement for taking a boat out on the river), another for the more advanced sailors, and the third for graduate students.

Weber '55, Ted Slozak '54 and Bob White '54, Ronnie Goldner '56 or "Gabby" Harnett '56 catching and either Dick Skavdahl '56 or Al Hauser '55, who together with Marshall Rogan '56, Leo Keane '55, Dick Fehmel '56 and Joe Powell '55 make up what is probably the best mound corps in the Greater Boston League, on the hill.

Longest Schedule

This year the team will play a 17 game schedule, the longest ever played by a Tech diamond squad. There is a strong chance that the 1954 Tech team may be the first in the six-year history of baseball at MIT to break .500.

The team should encounter its strongest opposition against B.U., E.C. and Harvard. Harvard, who will have just completed a southern road trip, should prove strong opposition.

Chance for GBL Title

This year's Tech aggregation, with what is probably the outstanding pitching staff in the Boston area and a flock of potential .300 hitters, must be conceded a strong chance to carry off the Greater Boston League championship.

Last year, the team had a mediocre six won and eight lost record which fails to describe the Tech diamond men adequately. They upset Boston University and just failed to upend highly rated Boston College and Bowdoin in tight extra inning contests. Three regulars, Henderfson, Sach and

Thompson were lost from last year's squad but adequate replacements have been found.

Harnett seems to be the surprise of the year. Little regarded before the start of practice, he is a possible starter at the catching slot and is being touted as a possible .300 hitter.

Jack D. Graef '55 was named as varsity wrestling manager to succeed John Kennaday '55 at the annual banquet at Stella's Restaurant in Boston on Wednesday, March 17. Graef placed second in the New England Championships at 123 pounds a year ago, but was on cooperative this past semester and consequently did not wrestle.

At the banquet, Coach Roger Leathers announced his retirement from the coaching ranks after one season at Tech. No successor has been named as yet.

WHAT COLOR GOES WITH A BLUSH?

A modest little freshman named Caspar Doyle found himself getting quite neurotic. It seemed that every time a girl looked at Caspar, he blushed. His sallow little cheeks turned a violent crimson. Then he would blush more because he was blushing.

He didn't get very far with the ladies and began brooding. Fortunately, he was a wealthy modest little freshman, and he finally bundled his problem off to a psychiatrist.

"I even hate my shirts. I know when I wear a white shirt it's only going to make my blush look redder," he dolefully intoned from the couch.

The head-shrinker's eyes lit up with dollar signs. He said: "Ahem. This trauma is obviously deep-seated and will take a long time to unravel. But meanwhile, try wearing some Vanahue shirts. Van Heusen makes them in lots of colors that will tone down your blush and you're bound to like the smart new collar styles. For your practical side, they're fine smooth broadcloth, color fast and Sanforized. See my nurse for the bill, please!"

Caspar bought Vanahue in all the colors and smart new collar styles for $3.95 each. It worked. So many of the girls look at him now, he blushes constantly. Everybody thinks he just looks rugged and virile.
