Dr. Robert S. Hartman Appointed Consultant To Dean Of Students

A philosopher, a specialist in value theory, has been appointed to serve as consultant to the MIT dean of students. It is believed to be the first time such an appointment has been made at any educational institution.

Dr. Robert S. Hartman, associate professor of philosophy at Ohio State University, joined the Institute faculty last week to serve as consultant to members of the dean's office and to other members of the staff and faculty who are concerned with student counseling, dormitory living, and student activities.

In announcing the appointment, E. Francis Bowditch, Dean of Students, stressed its relationship to MIT's educational philosophy.

"In the current evolution of undergraduate education at MIT," said Dean Bowditch, "there has been an increasing concern with value and a deepening concern with the development of the whole man as an integral part of professional education. This precedent-breaking appointment is an example of one of the many ways in which MIT is trying to meet its responsibilities to prepare young men and women to lead and operate the complicated technical society produced by the application of science to the needs of man. It also reveals our recognition of the predicament of modern man in his attempt to find his own self in the complex of social and technological relations."

"While Dr. Hartman is with us we hope also to begin a program which will bring together various groups—faculty, religious leaders, psychologists, and philosophers—for the discussion and handling of religious and philosophic problems and values at MIT."

While at MIT Dr. Hartman will participate personally in the Institute's counseling program and will help the counseling staff analyze problems from the point of view of value theory and practice. He will also aid the dean's office in a review of the human and social values of MIT's current students activities program. In addition, he will teach two undergraduate courses on value theory within the School of Humanities and Social Studies.

Dr. Hartman's special interest is in the field of ethics—a field which he feels will one day be recognized as a science in itself. He himself has given much of his professional life to developing a system of scientific ethics.

Born and raised in Berlin, Dr. Hartman received the degree of bach-

CONVOCATION

The Right Honorable Clarence D. Howe '07, Canada's Minister of Trade and Commerce and Defence Production, will be the principal speaker at an all-Institute Convocation to be held in Rockwell Cage next Monday, October 3, it was announced last night. Mr. Howe was formerly an assistant in the Department of Civil Engineering and is currently a member of the MIT corporation.

It was also announced that President James R. Killian, Jr. will preside at the convocation and will make an announcement of extraordinary interest to the student body.

The convocation will begin promptly at 11:00 a.m. and all classes will be officially suspended between then and 12:00 noon.

Orthodox Group Holds Services

Bishop Athenagoras spiritual leader of the Greek Orthodox diocese of New England and Eastern Canada, officiated at the first Greek Orthodox service held in the new cylindrical chapel last Thursday.

Assisting Bishop Athenagoras in the services were the Very Reverend K. Samaras, chancellor of the New England diocese, and Father A. J. Metaxas, rector of St. Constantine Church in Cambridge. Father Metaxas, who is chaplain to Orthodox students at the Institute, will conduct regular weekly services in the chapel during the school year.

The Orthodox Christian Fellowship at MIT, which sponsored the first service, also participates in the Institute's United Christian Council which last Tuesday inaugurated a regular daily service of Morning Prayer in the new chapel.

Serious Shortage Of Dormitory Space Forces Many Into Residence Off Campus; No Relief Of Situation Seen By Next Year

One hundred seventy-five upperclassmen cannot yet be accommodated in the dormitories this year. There are no indications at present that the situation will improve. A group of students, largely made up of transfers and upperclassmen whose room assignments were suspended because they did not confirm them, has been forced to find residence off campus or sleep on cots on the floor of Walker gymnasium.

There are several reasons for this shortage of dormitory space. For one, according to Dean Fassett, "Fraternity pledging is off as compared to last year." Prof. Thresher, the Director of Admissions, said that about 300 men are pledged into fraternities from year to year, and estimated that possibly only 270 would be pledged this year.

Another factor causing the lack of space is the recent tendency to admit larger freshman classes than previously. The last of the small classes was '55, while '56 is the first of the larger classes. A small class was graduated last spring and a large class admitted this fall, and to this difference in numbers a large part of the difficulty can be traced. As Prof. Thresher put it, "It's tending to build up."

But no immediate remedy is offered. Even if the money and ground space were available, a new dormitory could not be built in a year, and much the same problem is predicted for next fall.

The maintenance of Walker gym as a temporary living space was started on September 17 and will probably continue through October 1 or possibly longer. At present, however, very few students are still staying in Walker.

The Institute, although not obligated to house the entire student body, feels its first obligation to be toward the freshman class, and for this reason all freshmen are provided for. By Monday, October 3, the end of the pledge period, a few more freshmen will be pledged to fraternities and their beds in the dormitories vacated, which will provide a slight alleviation, but the general problem will remain unchanged, and there is apparently no other source of relief.

At present, there are approximately 175 upperclassmen on the waiting list for dormitory rooms. The waiting list for Westgate numbers about 150 families. Large numbers of graduate students are forced to seek residence off campus; the shortage is acute on every hand.

To complete the statistics, about one-half the undergraduate body is housed in the dorm, one-fourth live in fraternities, some 300 to 400 commuters live at home, while about 400 students live off campus by choice.

Westgate houses eight or nine hundred people, of which 280 or 290 are studying at the Institute. Only something over one-third of the graduate students live in Institute housing.

In the past six years about 1000 undergraduate beds have been added to the dormitory system. Unfortunately this commendable increase has not been, or cannot be, continued. A small increase of about 80 beds is hoped for by September 1 of next year, but this bears no resemblance to the great expansion brought about by the acquisition of Burton House and the building of Baker House.

One of the most uncertain facets in the housing problem is the size of each incoming freshman class. Concerning the randomness of this factor, Prof. Thresher stated, "We have to admit almost twice as many as show up." It is of course impossible to predict the exact number of Gilbert Weil '56, president of the club, has announced an extensive schedule which includes, in addition to the traditional weekly fractional and monthly Master Point tournaments, an intercollegiate schedule which includes competition in the Nationals and a tentative number of dual meets; monthly inter-class team-of-eight matches; and three club championships, an individual, a pair, and a team-of-four.

The two dollar term membership covers admission to all the regular Saturday events. Prizes are awarded at all Club Championship and Master Point games and to the top teams in the monthly fractional tournament series.

Tech Students Aid Iron Lung Cases At Mass. General

The Massachusetts polio epidemic has become more real for several Techmen who have volunteered to help combat this dread disease. This is one correspondent's view of his experience.

You're sacked out. At midnight your roommate wakes you. What's wrong? Then you remember. . . You've offered to help out in the polio ward at Mass. General.

You're in the car before you're fully awake. You arrive at the hospital and go looking for the ward.

The doctor gives you a brief outline. Polio epidemic . . . you've read about it . . . three thousand cases in the state since July 1. Five Boston hospitals are bearing the load. Children's, Haynes, Boston Floating, Boston City, Mass. General. The latter has admitted four hundred patients; one hundred and forty are still there. The epidemic is letting up . . . only six admissions today. More tomorrow.

One of the boys gets worried.

Pershing Rifles Holds Smoker Tuesday Night

MIT's Company C-12 of the National Society of Pershing Rifles will hold its semi-annual smoker tonight at 5:00 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge in Walker Memorial. All interested basic course ROTC cadets, both Army and Air Force, are invited to attend.

At the smoker to explain Pershing Rifles and its functions and pledge program will be Captain John T. Christian '57, commanding officer, and his staff. First Lieutenant Robert F. Resin '57, executive officer, will be in charge of the pledge program, the purpose of which is to ground prospective members in the traditions of Pershing Rifles and the functions of the military, particularly as regards drill. Members of the Military Science and Air Science departments will also be present.

Pershing Rifles was founded in 1894 and since then has continued its tradition of being an honorary fraternity devoted to both military and social pursuits. All basic course ROTC students are eligible to apply for membership. The company has its own drill, its own officers, and its own promotion system. MIT also houses Twelfth Regimental Headquarters, which administers seven companies at various colleges in the New England area.

Opening lead: Jack of hearts.

This hand, from Saturday's game at the MIT Bridge Club, ended in a rather interesting situation, where declarer could not pull trumps.

South, somewhat taken aback when East bid hearts, promptly doubled.

When North cue bid hearts, South hurried right along to slam. (He arrived at the wrong one, but to get to any slam contract at all takes more nerve than most bridge players have.)

The opening heart lead was ruffed on board and the jack of clubs was led. When East refused to take his ace, South was in trouble. If he led another club, East will cash enough heart tricks to set the contract a minimum. South decided that a stiff upper lip and some useful splits were the only chances he had. A small spade went to declarer's ace. He cashed the king of diamonds, trumped a heart on the board with his last trump, cashed the king and queen of spades, ditching hearts, and was pleasantly surprised when the jack of spades dropped. He cashed the ace of diamonds and led the good ten of spades. East can try with his ace or not, as he pleases. In either case, South discards his last heart and concedes the ace of clubs making his six clubs. While this is not the best way to play the hand, it certainly worked, and who argues with success?

ANYONE FOR FOOTBALL?

Pancho Sigafos, pale and sensitive, first saw Willa Ludovic, lithe as a hazel wand and fair as the morn, outside a class in money and banking. "Let us not hem and haw," said Pancho to Willa. "I adore you."

"Thanks, hey," said Willa, blushing prettily. "What position do you play?"

"Position?" said Pancho, looking at her askance. (The askance is a ligament just behind the ear.)

"I am a poet... Wait!" cried Pancho

"On the football team," said Willa. "Football!" cried Pancho, his lip curling in horror. "Football is violence, and violence is the death of the mind. I am not a football player. I am a poet."

"So long, mac," said Willa.

"Wait!" cried Pancho, clutching her lissome young forearm. She placed her foot on his pelvis and wrenched herself free.

"I only go with football players," she said and walked, shimmering, into the setting sun.

Pancho went to his room and lit a cigarette and pondered his vexing problem. What kind of cigarette did Pancho light? Why, Philip Morris, of corris!

Philip Morris is always welcome, but never more than when you are weary and sore beset. When a fellow needs a friend, when the heart is dull and the blood runs like sorghum, when darkness prevails, then, then above all, is the time for the mildness and gentleness that only Philip Morris can provide.

Pancho Sigafos, his broken psyche welded, his fevered brow cooled, his synapses restored after smoking a gentle Philip Morris, came swiftly to a decision. Though he was rather small for football (an even four feet) and somewhat overweight (370 pounds) he tried out for the team—and tried out with such pluck and perseverance that he made it.

Pancho's college opened the season against the Manhattan School of Mines. The Miners were always a mettlesome foe, but this year, strengthened by four exchange students from Gibraltar who had been suckled by she-apes, they were especially formidable. By the middle of the second quarter, the Miners had wrought such havoc upon Pancho's team that there was nobody left on the bench but Pancho. And when the quarterback was sent to the infirmary with his head driven into his ribcage, the coach had no choice but to put Pancho in.

Pancho's team-mates were not conspicuously cheered as the little fellow took his place in the huddle. "Gentlemen," said Pancho, "some of you may regard poetry as sissy stuff, but now in our most trying hour I can think of no words more apt than these lines from Milton's Paradise Lost: 'All is not lost; the unconquerable will and study of revenge, immortal hate, and courage never to submit or yield!'"

So stirred was Pancho's team by this fiery exhortation that they threw themselves into the fray with utter abandon.

As a consequence, the entire squad was hospitalized before the half. The college was forced to drop football. Willa Ludovic, not having any football players to choose from, took up with Pancho and soon discovered the beauty of his soul. Today they are seen everywhere together—dancing, holding hands, smooching.

Newman First But Sailors Lose Beaver Booters Display New England Championship Hopes Through Experience

Coach Jack Wood's MIT Sailors ran into one of those days which catch up with every team when they finished behind Brown, Coast Guard, and Tufts in a quadrangle meet at New London, Connecticut, last Sunday.

Brown started fast and accumulated 104 points, holding a thirteen-point margin over the Guardsmen at the finish. Tufts squeezed out the Techmen for third place, 75-71, by coming from behind in the afternoon.

Although the Tech Sailors got off to a fairly good start, they were unable to take advantage of a breeze which reached 15 knots in the afternoon. Winds were 8-10 knots in the forenoon with ideal sailing conditions. It was during this period of the racing when Brown was compiling the lead that brought them first place. In the first four races the men from Providence racked up three firsts. They were particularly adept in the Dinghy Class, which usually is dominated by MIT.

The Raven Class Sloops produced the most impressive Tech results as the Beavers collected a first, a couple of seconds, and a third. This class was led by Skipper Nick Newman '56. Sal Pomponi '59 in the Knockabouts and Bill Stiles '57 and John

Although it has only been through a grand total of three practices this fall, the Beaver soccer team already seems to be developing into as powerful an outfit as last year's squad. With almost the entire halfback and full-back lines returning, there seems to be ample reason for Coach Ben Martin's mention in his first pep talk of improvement over last year's 7-1-1 record and a possible New England Championship. With last year's single defeat having come at the hands of Harvard, in a sloppily played game, and the tie in a hard fought encounter with Amherst, both at home, the improvement will not be easy, but will certainly be possible.

The main stumbling block the Engineers will have to overcome will be the loss of three of the mainstays of last year's forward line in Captain and center-forward Marcos Suarez, inside-right Ray Morales, and left wing Rene de Leon. Also lost for at least half the season will be fullback

Rod Brandt, who is out due to sickness.

That Tech's defense should come close to being impenetrable becomes obvious when one views the array of returning lettermen in the backfield. Defending the cage will be Morrie Nieman '57, who played the last three games of last year's schedule and showed tremendous ability and knowledge. Pressing Nieman for goalie position will be Rudy Segovia '58, who played sensational ball for the freshmen last year. Returning at fullback will be the big red-headed co-captain, Dick Miller '56, and Pete Hohorst '57, who played behind Miller and Brandt last year. Sophomores Lee Wheelis and Sandy El Baroudi have also shown well at the big foot position. The core of the halfback line will probably be made up of Fred Bialek '56 at right half, Co-captain "Leaky" Dyke '56 at left half, and Hal Henriksen '57 at center half. Also set to see action is Tom Comparato '56, who rejoins the team after a year's absence. Up from the frosh and impressive so far at halfback are Bart Sensenig '58 and Lou Giordano '58. Coach Martin sums up the defense rather well in saying, "Anyone who scores against us will have to earn it."

Although the forward line will definitely feel the loss of Suarez, Morales, and de Leon, it has four mainstays returning in center-forward Ed Hoyt '57, inside Bernie Blaschitz '56, inside Dick Unanue '57, and inside and center-forward Gonzalez '57. Back from the '53-'54 squad is Terinas '56, at wing, while Derochechouart '57, a transfer student who was ineligible last year, should also see action at wing. Tow-headed Herbie Johnson '58, and slick footed Sel Almeda '58, have also impressed on the forward line in the practices thus far.

When pressed on the possibility of the New England soccer championship coming to MIT this fall, Coach Martin points out that it is rather early in the season for concrete comments. "However," continues the soccer mentor, "the defense will be strong, and it now looks like our record will depend on how well the forward line integrates. Should the forward line come through, we should put in a strong bid for the New England championship."

Hundreds and hundreds of students earned $25 in Lucky Strike's Droodle drive last year—and they'll tell you it's the easiest money yet.

Droodles are a snap to do—just look at the samples here. Droodle anything you want. Droodle as many as you want. If we select your Droodle, we'll pay $25 for the right to use it, with your name, in our advertising. And we always end up paying for plenty we don't use!

Send your Droodle, complete with title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67A, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Include your name, address, college and class. Please include, too, the name and address of the dealer in your college town from whom you buy cigarettes most often.

While you droodle, light up a Lucky, the cigarette that tastes better because it's made of fine tobacco . . . and "It's Toasted" to taste better.

Freshmen that will matriculate. The usual target for these larger classes is 900 or a little more. The class of '58, contrary to expectations, went as high in number as 995 last year, while on the same day this year the class of '59 numbered 945, considerably closer to the target.

Hartman

clor of laws from the University of Berlin in 1932. Previously he had studied at the German College of Political Science (1926-27), the University of Paris (1927-28), and the London School of Economics and Political Science (1928-29).

He began his professional career as assistant on the faculty of law at the University of Berlin and as assistant judge (referendar) in the Berlin district court in Charlottenburg (1932-33).

An out-spoken anti-Nazi, Dr. Hartman was soon marked for destruction and escaped only by hiding for four months until friends were able to secure passage out of the country for him.

He then became a copyright representative for Walt Disney in Sweden where he met his wife. From Sweden, the Hartmans migrated to Mexico City where Dr. Hartman continued to represent the Disney interests. They immigrated to the United States in 1941.

Dr. Hartman speaks German, Swedish, French, Spanish, and English fluently and has a reading knowledge of Danish, Norwegian, Greek, Italian, Portuguese, and Dutch.

During the Hartman's stay in Mexico City, Dr. Hartman took up his philosophical studies again at the University of Mexico, and, after he immigrated to the United States, at Northwestern University where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1946.

From 1942 to 1945 he was a master at Lake Forest Academy (Lake Forest, Illinois), and from 1945 to 1948 instructor and then assistant professor at the College of Wooster (Wooster, Ohio). He joined the faculty at the University of Ohio as associate professor in 1948.

Dr. Hartman has published extensively in theoretical philosophy and in economic and political philosophy, and is a member of a number of philosophical and educational associations. He has been co-editor of "Kantstudien" since 1952.

Dr. Hartman was also organizing chairman of the Council of Profit Sharing Industries, and from 1947 to 1949 served as the Council's executive secretary. Since 1949 he has been a consultant in profit sharing.

More recently Dr. Hartman has been especially active in a variety of religious programs, and since 1950 has been Chairman of the Commission of Peace of the International Council of Community Churches.

Senzer '58 in the Dinghies were unable to keep up their consistent winning pace which has meant so many victories in the past.

The next regatta is the Jack Wood Trophy at Brown this next Sunday. The first chance to see the MIT Sailors in action this season will be on the week-end of October 8-9 in the Danmark Regatta.

Polio

"What are the chances that I will catch polio?" Somebody else: "A little better than they were an hour ago." A third: "Who cares?" Yeah, who cares?

You turn the corner. There they are. Iron lungs; you've seen them . . . in pictures. My God, can there be so many? They stand in rows, with room to squeeze between. Over thirty on this floor . . . just a part. Each one holds a life. Each one sustains a life. Puff, puff.

You meet your nurse . . . Sally. She is young and pretty. From out of state, with the Foundation. A doll. An angel, too, or she wouldn't be here. Don't give her a rough time. Give her some help. She needs it.

And you meet your patients. There's Dick. He has a disease often called Infantile Paralysis. He is no infant; he is middle aged. But he is paralyzed. The disease has been hitting many adults this year, especially males. You don't see any children, and you are just as glad.

There's Kit, a young mother. You look at her mirror . . . pictures . . . kids, the cutest you've ever seen. Her's. You wonder about them. You meet Connie. She might be Kit's twin, but she isn't. Can the same tragedy strike twice? It has struck a hundred times. More pictures. Her children are beautiful too. And there's Bill . . . a school teacher . . . more pictures . . . you can't look any more. You'd like to cry.

Sally shows you how to care for the patients. Be cautious. Don't trip on a cord; a life may depend on it. Don't leave a respirator open; a life might rush out. You're told these are the luckier victims . . . they can talk to you. They'll be going home . . . maybe in a year. You learn how to manipulate their helpless limbs. You reach in through Connie's porthole and she tentatively clasps your hand. You tell her that's swell. She can't do it with her other hand.

That's the way the night goes. Help me, help me. Four hands, four patients . . . a stalemate. You stay busy. You work till seven a.m. You're a Tech man, so you've been up all night before.

Finally you can leave. On the way out you notice a few more things. You see many respirators bearing the legend: "A March of Dimes Service." You are glad you gave. In the mirrors you see some smiling faces. You are glad you worked. You take a last look around and depart. You don't say good-bye. You know you'll be back.

You tell them so.
