Baker House Tryes Commons "Seconds"; Other Houses May Also Try Changes

by Roger Knoop '56

The common meal system here at Baker House will be subjected to an experiment in the field of better service to the students.

The experiment will take the form of unlimited seconds for residents as a way of lessening the expenditure of five hundred dollars, which is the current limit per week. The plan, which was devised in the minds of Baker House residents will enjoy full cooperation in the elimination of any wastes of food. This is the unanimous opinion of the Executive Committee of Baker House.

The hot committee, on behalf of the students, recommended that the council introduce the new system of food service at the next meeting of the council, and then change the regular meal time to 9:30 p.m. to 10.

In the meantime, the Baker House residents will enjoy the privileges of unlimited seconds for one week. If the experiment works out as it is intended to be, the plan may be adopted in a future meal plan. By J. Greenfield '56 of Baker House has proposed a system of a similar nature for the Commons committees. Negotiations are under way with the Institute Dining Service, but as yet there has been no decision reached. If the system is accepted and put into effect, the choice of entrees will exist as long as both dishes are available. If one is used up before the hour of closing, the other will be discontinued to the present.

It is evident that an unlimited period of choice would lead to excessive waste and would make the system economically impossible. The new system will provide the great majority of Baker commons eaters with the choice, while those who arrive too late will be in the same position as they are today.

At the present time East Campus has not made any decision as an experiment in Walker. As soon as a worthwhile idea is proposed and adopted it will be introduced to the Dining Service.

Saloma Talks On State-Of-The-Union; Stresses Need For Better Communication

When the Walker Renovation Committee met last Thursday, one of the problems it faced was that of temporarily relocating the activity than in Building 18, so that constructive of the new Commons Memorial Laboratory, which commenced in May. However, on March 1 those activities would have to vacate within two weeks.

So this committee, under the chairmanship of Arthur L. Bixler, '54, professor of psychology, and Stephen N. Cohen '56, chairman of Public Relations Committee, concocted a plan for the temporary housing of some of Walker's activities. The Baker Room, a squash court which was being occupied by the Flying Club, is now located in Walker. An informal discussion with some of the members of the Stu-Fac committee and stated that, "As long as there are differences of opinion remain, little of permanent value will be accomplished by the meetings of local groups which are already in agreement. Passions passed and actions suggested by regional conferences tend to be unimportant as much as they do not have a realistic and national view of the problem.

There is another reason for which schools in the future which are attending the MIT Conference on Discrimination, see page 2.

Incomm Hears Saloma, Picks New Committee Heads

Jack Saloma '56, Incomm president, addressed the March 10 Incomm Committee meeting with his report on student government.

Chairman Eric Ritz '55 introduced a new student government. Communication. Communications between student-government and the student body were discussed by Eric in a letter to the chairman. The meeting was described by Eric as "... a meeting of the Institute Faculties and departments..." This would be an ideal means of exchanging ideas and opinions.

News coverage of the extended Saloma, "... will suggest improvements to the student council." Editor's Note: "This is the third of a series of articles to appear concerning the history, procedure and significance of the Conference on Discrimination to be held at MIT on March 28, 29, and 30, by Arthur Suhlke '56.

"Almost to a man, both the students and administration who have had any part of the conference and development of MIT's unique "MIT National Intercollegiate Conference on Sensivity and Discrimination in America" have expressed the opinion that the conference will be a success. There is pretty much of a universal agreement that the preparatory work has been through, the representatives schools have been chosen wisely, and the speakers invited have been selected well. To them the question is this.

Just what the conference will conclude in doing, however, is something else. There are several different view points as to what desirable results and developments will come from the conference.

Professor O. D. Kellogg, general editor of the conference, and the editor of the conference, is a member of the National Council on Race Relations. He has been a member of the council since 1937.

The conference is seen by some in a context broader than the single problem of discrimination. The tendency is to examine this a single phase of the larger arena of values and morals. In this broader context, the conference is regarded as an effort to crystallize a set of personal values. The conference is a means of sensing student opinion..."
It is a job that keeps me jumping," says Bill Ferron, S.C., from Marquette, '52. "And my first management assignment, with Wisconsin Telephone Company, was to get the men in line for afternoon service and to train them thoroughly in the job. They were all youngsters, and a lot of them didn't know the first thing about telephones. But I decided to work at it, and I think I made a pretty good job of it."

"When I'm assigned to a new city, I always try to learn as much as I can about it. I try to study the area and the people there, and I try to get a sense of the way they work. This helps me to understand the needs of the customer, and to better serve them."

Bill has been in the present job about a year, and is looking forward to new responsibilities as his experience increases...

Baseball Season Starts

By Jerry Harwood '57

The 1955 edition of the Engineer baseball team left yesterday on the first southern trip in Beaver baseball history. Coach Roy Merritt is taking the boys southward because he feels that they will be able to get more practice in the warm climate.

Practice the annual event. Due to the presence of the basketball floor in Rockwell Cage there was no space available for indoor practice. Now that the floor is down the team still splits the range's availability with the harness squad.

High caliber. Besides these three standouts Roy has four dependable men to call on, any one of whom is capable of turning in a terrific job. With all this building a good catcher is a must.

With last season's starter, Renee Colomer '56 out on Co-sop, Roy will probably depend on converted outfielder Faulkner '55.

The infield, except for Peterson, will be composed mostly of last season's second-stringers. Angie Perlicabilli '56 seems to have the initial sack nailed down. John Sullivan '56 or Bill Patterson '57 will be at second, and Bill Traud, a five-year-plan man from Boston, has been a standout at third.

The most uncertain positions in the starting line-up are the third outfielder and the pitcher. Dick Ruth '56 will probably hold one of them. Gail Weber '56 and Bud Newhall '56 might be the other two. It's a wide open race that has in it not only the pure outfielders but a couple of pitchers who might be used both ways.
