Fraternities Will Send Delegates To Four Endicott House Confabs

The presidents will also evaluate the Rush Week program and discuss the plan for the 1957 Kellogg Summer Institute, which has been mentioned in its annual report, The Association Bulletin, MIT's official publication, sponsored by the Fraternity Conference.

Benny Goodman Orchestra, to Kick Off, To Provide J.P. Session Entertainment

The Orchestra of Benny Goodman, to be directed by Benny Goodman himself, will provide the major entertainment for this year's Junior Prom-Weekend. It is planned that the Goodman Orchestra will play for the Friday night, and, for the Saturday night, the event will be held in the Statler Garden Ballroom.

The Goodman Orchestra, which has recently been appearing at a six-week engagement at the Statler Garden in New York, was obtained during the summer by the committee. Composed of some of the finest musicians, the group has received wide acclaim as a leading dance orchestra. Goodman, under whose leadership the group was organized and trained, will not appear, but the repertory of the orchestra contains music written for Goodman versions of the original Goodman hits.

The Goodman Orchestra is expected to have a very successful run at the Statler Garden Ballroom for the Saturday night semi-formal affair.

Asian Flu Coming
MIT Community Is Expected To Stand

Even though Asian flu is sweeping through many colleges, MIT has no flu vaccine on hand in the infirmary, and no plans for any large inoculation of the student body.

The University of Colorado, 472 out of 7,572 students are in bed with flu, reports the student out of 6,000 students at MIT. At the present moment, 6 out of 10,000 students down with the flu. However, according to medical student of the field hospital system across the river, will be in for some agonized appraisals.

Social workers will try to get a true picture of the various phases of the epidemic.

Asian Flu

A brief but sudden cold snap last week caused many people at the Institute by surprise—especially those newly or newly returned to the Boston area—and brought them misery in the form of sneezes, runny noses, and aches.

The flu has turned up but the general lowering of resistance to infection has made the threat of an epidemic seem considerably reduced.

We must face this threat without benefit of vaccine. The influenza, my own hands on, and with supplies scurrying short throughout the country, will probably continue to be the case. Of course there is an arsenal of modern drugs available which would certainly be given to flu victims, but these drugs are not preventative and would only appreciably stem the spread of an epidemic once it got started.

If Asian flu reaches here, then, the prospects are for a temporary disorganization of a sizable segment of the MIT community. This forecast is virtually mandated by the reality that students are in close contact in classrooms and lecture halls, and similar groups of faculty members working together in the social pursuit of scientific data.

With disorganization would come an enforced suspension of many of these pursuits. Students and students alike would fall behind in their work. After their recovery they would naturally have to step up their pace in order to meet the deadlines which haunt all of us. And, because of the flu, some work might never get done.

The next two months are the critical ones. After that interval, a combination of factors will make the danger almost negligible.

The first word I heard as I left (runs rolling down my cheeks as I go) was "The Cradle of Thieves." The last word of the play turned out to be a "pretty little girl of about five."—"Yes Daddy—that was a good movie wasn't it?"

The Miracle of Marcelino certainly is a good movie for little girls about five and can be quite enjoyable for those of us who can look at it through the eyes of one of these little girls.

A "new critic" might have a case for making the boy a Christ symbol since his death saves the monks. Our new Copley Theatre, fell from the lips of a critic: "The new Copley Theatre, attended by care, endure until winter comes." But then—can a child of five read English titles?

after hours

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch, Music Director, announces the opening of its 77th season of concerts on Friday afternoon, October 14, at Symphony Hall, Boston.

Planned are 24 pairs of Friday afternoon and Saturday evening concerts, and a series of nine Tuesday evening concerts opening on October 8. Six Sunday afternoon concerts will also be given. A number of these performances will be under the direction of guest conductors Pierre Monteux, Richard Burgin, Robert Shaw, and Thomas Schippers.

Farnham Is Assistant Track Coach

On Oct. 25, MIT announced the appointment of Arthur E. Farnham, Jr., as Assistant Track Coach. Farnham, 34, succeeds Arne Arn-ensen, who was recalled to the Air Force Academy in 1952.

Farnham was a leader in the 1949-50 season, when he was head track coach of the Air Force Academy. Arne, who has been at MIT since 1947, was recalled to the Air Force Academy in 1952.

The native of Detroit, Farnham was educated at Lexington High, being graduated in 1946. He then served with the 2nd Marine Division in World War II, being 21 months of overseas duty as a Staff Sergeant. Although he was wounded and had to see a doctor, Farnham enlisted at Springfield College in 1952 at the age of 26.

After his graduation in 1954, he was hired as a coach-worker at Washington Irving High in Tarrytown, N. Y., and coached cross-country, wrestling and track there for the past three years.

Tech Sailors Leave Foes Awasash; MIT Wins Four On Mystic Lake

Sunday afternoon, Tech's New En gland championship sailing team came up with another outstanding performance, as the day ended with the MIT business sleeping a sound sleep of four victorious and easy defeats.

The first race on Mstoff's Mystic Lake was characterized by changing winds that challenged every skipper's best abilities. The competing teams, Tech and Northeasterns, exchanged the lead several times during the course of the race, as both sides fought to maneuver their boats in the difficult winds. The end of the race saw the MIT skippers well ahead of their opponents.

Intramural Rules

With intramural competition to get underway this week-end, it would be advisable for all participants to know the present eligibility rules. Anyone who has won a varsity or JV letter in a sport is not eligible to compete in that sporty intramural program. There is one exception to this which was established last fall by the Intramural Council. The amendment states that players can be from either varsity or JV squad, will be allowed to play that intramural sport even if they have previously won a varsity or JV letter.
