MIT appeals case

Cambridge decides to tax student dorms

The city of Cambridge has decided to tax the student dormitories owned by MIT.

According to the city solicitor, "the taxes are necessary to meet the city's financial obligations." MIT had been arguing that the dormitories were exempt from taxation because they were used for educational purposes.

However, the city has argued that the dorms are not exclusively used for educational purposes, and therefore should be subject to property taxes.

The decision is expected to have a significant impact on MIT's finances, as the dormitories are a major source of revenue for the university.

The case is now pending in the Massachusetts Appeals Court.

Student Attitudes

American college students reflect the society they live in. Concerned primarily about themselves, their work, their social life and their future, they give only a secondary interest to policess and college football.

Hardly surprisingly, these views ap-ppeared over and over again in eight sep-rate articles describing the "Mood of the Students." The articles, written by college newspaper editors, appeared in

The writers contradicted belief that conservatism is the dominant political force on today's campus. Liberalism is on the rise, the editors say.

The attitudes of the other campuses can also be seen at MIT. Students think first of studying, dating, and getting into graduate school, and only finally of national and world issues.

The current preoccupation with pri-cate rather than public affairs can be attributed in part to the "anti-war" campaign on the student campus.

New 'Social Beaver' to have expanded format

The Social Beaver, in past years, has been distributed only to incoming freshmen to acquaint them with the Boston College body. The main problem," says John Davis, editor of the 1964 issue, "is in financing the expansion." The exact cost has not been calculated, but, hopefully, Davis said, the additional cost will be satisfied by an increase both in the number of advertisers and in the advertising rate. The editorial board will consist of representatives from the existing student activities.

College World

In today's college education really different from that of eighty years ago? A recent feature article in The Tulane Bulletin described a publication that would be in the antique document department — Tulane's "Catalogue of Academic Department of 1844-1845."

Excerpts from the catalogue show that "the University...will, it is hoped, prove a potent agency in redeeming Louisiana from its present condition of ignorance and lethargy."

In 1844, the "free for admission to any part of the University, except the medical department, will be hot 50 per annum."

"Tulane University of Louisiana is divided into Tulane University, Tulane College and Tulane High School, the Law Department and the Medical Department."

"For admission to the Preparatory School, High School pupils must be twelve years of age, of good moral character, and must be proficient in Reading, Writing, School Geography and Arithmetic to perform."

Notwithstanding the occasional outbreaks of yellow fever, New Orleans is, perhaps, the healthiest city of its size in the United States," the potential student was assured. Epidemics visit it only at intervals of years, and prevail only in the summer vacation and, perhaps, in the month of October."

The catalogue had its views on education, too. "The hand, the eye and the muscles are trained both by gymnastic exercises under a teacher, and by that hard work in wood and iron, which is now admitted to be the true basis of the best mechanical education, and is claimed to confer so many other benefits."

"But to crown the ceremony (on Commencement Day) a very exceptional man, with the very exceptional degree of Master of Arts, is certificated as to having mastered the whole realm of human knowledge, and goes forth to the avowed existence of ordinary men."

Godard off view of old

By Gilbert Pastre

‘My Life to Live’ (at the Park St. Screen Center), the first film of Jean-Luc Godard’s to be shown in this country since ‘Breathless,’ is in its own way as original and intelligent as that memorable first, treating the old subject of love and the seemingly new viewpoint, here it is. Godard of the cinematic form is here lighter than in ‘Breathless,’ and he held our interest, most of which was unnecessary, abstractly integrated into a deceptive whole.

So ‘Lola Montes’ Max Ophuls tells us in a song of Lola: ‘You give your body, but you keep your soul.’ (Godard, commending his inspiration for ‘My Life to Live’.) Godard’s treatment of this subject is very different from Ophuls’, while ‘Lola Montes’ was dramatic and romantic, Lola being a world-famous dancer, My Life to Live is a small-scale and realistic, its central character, Max, being an ordinary person, a prostitute in whom nothing special happens. That Godard has been able to bring beauty and relevance to the world and com-
Nationally rise in fraternity scholastic standings

Last year, according to a report released by the Independent Conference, last fall, the average scholastic average exceeded the nation's average on a majority of campuses at which fraternities are located.

According to the IFC report, the percent of the college's freshmen average higher than that of all non-fraternity groups. This was continued in the report with similar statistics from ten years ago, when only 47 percent of the campuses had a higher fraternity standing.

The IFC, one of the schools included in the report, also indicated, that the Dean of Students Office report at last September, that the first time all fraternity average was not below all men's average.

The Dean's Office standings were compared both fraternities and non-fraternity groups at 37. For the seven percent of the colleges reporting, the MIP fraternity average was one tenth of a point below the average for non-fraternity groups.

The IFC report further announced that 188 fraternity chapters out of a total of 368 showed their campus averages, compared with 195 out of 777 ten years ago.

Last spring, the lowest average group was placed at 3.5, only two tenths of a point below all men's average.

British influence education in India

By Ron Randich

"We hear that in the United States you have surprise quizzes, and have to take exams constantly. Don't that make you nervous all the time?"

The seven Americans in my group were facing an audience of five hundred students at the University of Rajasthan when this question made us all chuckle.

"Doesn't that make you nervous all the time?"

"No," one of the Americans replied. "But it was not a worthwhile job after graduation."

It was not the kind of sense a single final exam make and the students' impression (he was also the Vice-Chancellor) was predicated on the ability in India. British style education and unique features of the inherited British form of instruction (he was also the Vice-Chancellor) is contrast with an NUT education, to give great reverence to their studies. They frequently referred to their usual innovation. Students as a rule don't even address professors as a rule; don't even address their students. The office report of last September, pronounced that 1469 fraternity chapels and 1186 fraternity groups at 3.7. For the average of a point below the average for the other ten years ago.

Needless to say, the final exam system is fastened in this country, and is so recognized by the American and European systems.

Harriers end in New Englands:

By Dave Kress

M.I.T.'s harriers finished 13th among 22 teams at the New England Cross-country Championships at Franklin Park Monday, November 11. Summer Brown '66 was 39th among over 150 individuals, with Jim Keefe of Central Connecticut placing first, John Drewset of Cornell winning the cross-country man for the season at the team banquet November 13.

The result of the New England's gave the Techmen their highest team and individual scores in recent years. Other M.I.T. scorers were Roger Butler '65, 49th; Bill Purves '65, 73rd; Rob Wesson '66, 83rd. Drewset's award was based on his devotion, spirit, improvement, and contribution to team spirit and performance.

Also at the banquet, McMillin was re-elected varsity captain for next season. Elliott Andrews '67 was elected varsity manager for next season to succeed Henry Motley '66.

On the Sports Scene

By Ted Trentloof

On the sports world the press are commonly caught in the decision of that twice yearly period called "between seasons" when a season has just finished and the other has not quite started. That is the case just as the Techmen. Still in action are the M.I.T. harriers whose post-season activity begins to thin down. Although the Techmen had all started in the New England Championships entitled him to make the trip to Wheaton.
