BU Exposure resumes publication

By Glenn Brownstein

The BU Exposure, Boston University's student newspaper, resumed publication last week after months of struggle to regain control of Union funds appropriated for the newspaper.

The BU Allocations Advisory Board, a student-faculty committee which handles the transfer of all money to and from student activities, overturned Board Chairman Robert Chernak's decision to pass the paper's allotment in escrow.

The Board's action reversed half of the paper's allotcation from escrow, placing the other $1200 in a revenue fund. If he refuses to release "after either of the publication of two more issues or the deletion of funds already allocated, whichever occurs first," the board's decision stands.

Chernak, said BU Vice President for Academic Services, Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, met a letter on Dec. 8 to Viceround on his Master's Degree in Management in 1967, was named Deputy Director of the agency's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. He transferred to the Goddard facility, Smylie was Associate Professor of Aeronautics and Space Technology at MIT for two years and Secretary of Education for 20 months in 1963-64.

MIT will lower its thermostat to 65°, said Chancellor Paul Gray announced Wednesday in Tech Talk.

The Lecture Series Committee is "not a critical stage in negotiations," the Planning Office over the improvements anticipated in the forthcoming renovation of room 10-250, according to Mike Dombrink, LSC Sunday Night Director.

The board's action removed the original setting of Trachtenberg, the Vice President for Academic Services, as the content of proposals presented to the Board by the student-faculty committee. The issue, titled "Siber Bells," featured a cover cartoon of President Silver dressed as Santa Claus and sitting atop a snow-capped mountain, marked "cutoffs," "firings," "anti-Semitism," and "uniconic.

Smylie denied the charge of administration censorship, claiming that he was "as the most important of the programs, the only one that will deal with the governmental activity on campus." According to Exposure staffer Duff McDermott (the paper is run as a collective), the matter was not quite so simple. While she acknowledged that the paper's format was that of newspaper and not a newsletter as the committee had stated, she asserted that the Exposure's consistent anti-administration position and had precipitated Chernak's letter.

The issue came two days after a December 13th student meeting in which, said to be dedicated to BU President Robert Chernak was "not the issue."

The Board is separate from school and college governments (representatives are elected from each group - such as Liberal Arts or Public Communication - and or sometimes working with the student-elected members of the administration.)

The Board's action removed the 20 percent of the $20 fee paid by each BU student each year, which each BU student pays for a seat in the school and college governments. Of the $20 fee, greater part of it.

"The thing that got us was that Chernak put all of our $200 allotment in escrow, including..." (Please turn to page 3) funds ($700) already spent," McDermott said, adding that the Union would have had to divert other funds to pay off the debt and would have been in serious financial difficulty if Chernak's decision had not been reversed. According to Union Co-President Kahn, his organization decided to attempt to finance further publication out of donations from other student governments and had mailed 138 information packets across the country to various colleges.

Funds released to Exposure

"We asked for any kind of support - financial, moral, or spiritual, and while we didn't get as much as we'd hoped for, we did receive $100 from Northeastern University, a $1000 loan from the University of Michigan, and about $260 in smaller contributions from students and academic people," McDermott noted. But when the BU College of Liberal Arts Forum, a student activity also under the jurisdiction of Trachtenberg's office, attempted to donate $200 to the Student Union, the administration froze all activity funds, in effect forbidding the Forum's action, McDermott explained, making it apparent that "what was involved here was obviously a censorship matter.

Approximately $300 remains from the paper's released funds of $1200, enough to publish two issues (one last week and one on Feb. 24), McDermott said, adding that the Student Union intends to use the money donated from outside whether the remaining $1200 is released from escrow or not.

"While the release of the other $1200 is supposedly automatic, nobody here [in the Student Union] believes that," asserted McDermott. "All we can do is publish one more issue and see what happens."

Fencers trim ‘Cliffies’

By Might M. Wing

In a second-round loss to Radcliffe, the first in MIT history, the women’s fencing team (1-3) trimmed 9-7 Tuesday night over the Cliffies to prove MIT is still the stronger team.

The meet started off well for MIT gaining a clear lead of 6-2 by the end of the second-round. But Radcliffe put the pressure on MIT by eventually closing the gap to 7-7 with one bout left to go.

Co-Captain Judy Austin 77 fenced this last bout. With the score tied at 7-7, the match was called.

The next meet is scheduled to open this season against a strong Georgia Tech team. Tomorrow, the women have a dual meet with Georgia Tech and a dual start at 11:00 in doulon.
