An Unexpected Reply.

When Bishop Whittaker was in Candelarra, Nevada, he took a stroll in the outskirts of the camp with a party of ladies and gentlemen. A man was seen laboriously turning a windlass which hoisted from a shaft a bucket filled with rock.

The only thing remarkable about the man at the windlass was his hat, the crown of which was cut clean off, allowing the hot sun to pour down on a perfectly bald head, some waggish friends having recommended this arrangement as sure to produce a crop of hair.

The Bishop and his party stood watching the man toiling and grunting at his heavy labor for several minutes, and then the kind-hearted clergyman spoke up with concern, and said,—

"My friend, why don't you cover up your head? This hot sun will affect your brain."

"Brain, is it?" cried the man. "Be jin' and if I had any brains, d' ye think I'd be here haulin up this bucket?"
