List of Publications, M. I. T.

Hyatt Alpheus (Prof.). Cruise of the Arethusa Science, VI. (1885), 384.

— Transmission of Power by Belting. Id., VII. (pp. 11).

Williams, F. H., M.D. ('73). A Text-Book of Pharmacology, Therapeutics, and Materia Medica. By T. Lander Brunton, M.D., etc. Adapted to the U. S. Pharmacopeia, by Francis H. Williams, M.D., Boston. 8vo, London, 1885.

Technics.

Hygienic Lecturer.— "Milk, gentleman, contains all elements necessary to the support of the human body. I know no substance which possesses more or a better quality of nutriment than milk."

Voice.— "I do!"

Lecturer.— "What is it?"

Voice.— "Cream!"

Can a blue pencil be defined as "the rod of correction?"

Freshman Cheek.— Absent-minded pater: "Want your allowance, hey? How much is it?"

'89: "Fifteen dollars."

Pater, aroused: "What! I thought it was ten!"

'89, calmly: "I have found it expedient to raise it."

Barber-shop Humor.— First B.: "D'yer know wot the femernine of hare is?"

Second B.: "No. Bangs?"

First B.: "No. Rabbit!" (Convulsive laughter.)