THE SIGNAL SERVICE DEPARTMENT'S INDOREMENT OF THE STANDARD THERMOMETERS

Signal Service, War Department,
Washington, D.C., April 10, 1888.

Messrs. D. T. Kidder & Company,
General Agents Standard Thermometer,
511 Seventh Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

Gentlemen:—
In reply to your note I have the honor to state that I have very carefully compared the Thermometers placed in the Instrument Room of the Signal Office under my charge, with the best standard instruments in the possession of the service, and found discrepancies so extremely small that they are negligible.

It is difficult to place two instruments under exactly similar conditions of temperature, and I have no doubt that it was owing to this difficulty the minute discrepancies found were due. I was very much pleased with the instruments, and consider them perfectly reliable under all conditions of temperature.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
John C. Walshe, Lieutenant Signal Corps.
In charge of Instrument Division.

They have been adopted by the Pennsylvania, Boston & Albany, Northern Pacific, Fitchburg, and other railroads for their stations and cars.

Every instrument is warranted. For sale by the trade everywhere.
