There still remains some fumbling throughout the team, and unnecessary slowness at quarter-back. The team, however, will probably be strengthened by Osgood and Robinson on the field once more.

The line up of the teams was as follows: Amherst: Ballantine, l. e.; H. C. Dudley, l. t.; Fosdick, l. g.; Winslow, c.; W. C. Dudley, r. g.; Elam, r. t.; Howard, r. e.; Pratt, q. b.; Whitney, h. b.; Kendall, h. b.; Griffin, f. b. M. I. T.: Stebbins, r. e.; Heckle, r. t.; Le Bosquet, r. g.; Perkins, c.; Ulmer, l. g.; Danforth, l. t.; Richards, l. e.; Clifford, q. b.; Morse, h. b.; Werner, h. b.; Nolte, f. b.

Touchdowns—Whitney, Griffin, Werner. Umpire—Stearns. Referee—Locke. Time 2om. and 15. m. halves.

In the second half Macdonald was played right guard, Nesmith, left tackle, and Emery at half in place of Morse.

Yesterday the team played Phillips-Andover.

The Walker Memorial Exercises.

The grand and impressive exercises of last Thursday evening, at which we were all privileged to be present, were a great revelation to many. Although loving and honoring President Walker as all did, were there any of us who fully appreciated the greatness of this man, who, occupying numerous positions of honor and fame, well known in public and private life, was yet so modest and unassuming, and always within reach of the humblest student? Were there any of us who did not regret that we had not made better use of an opportunity whose priceless value was only impressed upon us by its loss?

Rarely has Music Hall held such a distinguished assemblage as that which gathered within its walls on this occasion. The most prominent men in the city, state, and nation were present. On the platform were delegates representing the most noted scientific, literary, and educational bodies in the country. The balconies were filled by men and women well known in every walk of life. The exercises were in charge of a committee consisting of James M. Crafts, Francis H. Williams, and James P. Munroe of the Corporation, Professors Sedgwick and Dewey of the Faculty, and John R. Freeman, Henry M. Horne, A. Lawrence Rotch, and Wilfred Bancroft of the alumni. The active work was carried on by a sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Munroe, Williams, and Sedgwick.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. James P. Munroe, who introduced Governor Wolcott. Senator Hoar, in whose office General Walker began the study of law after graduating from Amherst College, delivered the memorial address.

Full accounts of the exercises, including the speeches, have been given in the daily papers, and as all connected with the Institute were present a further account is unnecessary.

My Sister's Friend.

Howard Snow and I had been college chums through the four hard years of a Tech. course, and when we graduated with the Class of '9-, and my family moved down to a small seaside town some miles north of Boston, it was not hard to persuade my friend, who was employed in the city, to spend his summer there. This was made easier by the fact that my sister numbered him among her most ardent admirers.

This was the situation one September day when I received a note from my chum, dated in Boston, saying that he had been unexpectedly called to New York and wished me to stay in his rooms while he was away so as to see that no harm came to his collection of coins, which was a valuable one.

Now this did not suit me at all, for my sister had a girl friend from New Hampshire coming to stay with her for a few days, so as to do some shopping in Boston before leaving for a winter in the Western States. I had
