of 1889. In the fall of 1890 he entered Chauncy Hall School here in Boston, and it was here that I first made his acquaintance. On entering the school he found the athletics in an almost hopeless condition, and at once set to work to reorganize the Athletic Association, and induced the school to enter, for the first time, the Interscholastic League. Before he had been in school three months he had been elected President of his class. Allen not only had great executive ability and tact in the management of affairs, but he was also enthusiastic over all out-door sports. No matter what he was doing he went into it with all his might. His great aim in life was to be someone, and to be at the head, but he was not at all selfish in his aim, as he was always willing to work, and work hard for what he got.

Let us return to his school life. In the fall of 1891 he again returned to Chauncy Hall, and during this year received the following honors: First Sergeancy in the battalion; took first gold medal for good scholarship; was made Secretary of his class, and Vice President of the Athletic Association. Returning again to school, in the fall of 1892, he prepared himself for the Institute, and was, besides Captain of the Prize Company, winner of one of two gold medals, given each year for proficiency in mathematics, winner of the gold medal presented each year to the one most proficient in English composition, and Secretary of the Athletic Association.

In the spring of '93 he graduated from Chauncy Hall, and took his entrance examinations for the Institute, which he passed without a condition. As to his work at the Institute, we all know with what efficiency it was accomplished, and what a high standing he had. As to the offices which he held, it seems as if they were almost too many to enumerate here, but still it is but just that we recall once more the extent of his work for his college and his class: 1893-94, President of his class, Chairman of Cane-rush Committee, Chief of Manda-
