the customary competition for the cover design, a fact to be regretted, as such a course has come to be a recognized custom at the Institute. Then, besides, it would seem that even a small amount of attention to their duties would have revealed the fact to the Committee that the type-set form had been changed by the Sophomores. A committee's duty to a class is a serious thing and if men are willing to assume that duty the class should hold them responsible for the fulfillment of the same.

ITH this week's Tech is printed matter relating to the Annual Spring Concert, and as the system of placing the seats on sale is somewhat changed from that of former years, those interested in the concert will be glad of this information. While we are looking forward to the three events in the dramatic line which are to take place this Spring at the Institute, it is well to remember the Spring Concert and Dance which has always held an important place in the happenings of Junior week. This year no pains are being spared to make this concert fully equal to those of the past, and as these have been of a high quality, The Tech looks forward to a very satisfactory and successful performance this year, and it is hoped the demand for seats will be satisfactory.

HUNTER — Hello, Bill, going to the German Play?
RYE — No, I'm sick of these Dutch Comedian acts.

The Junior Week issue of "The Tech" will contain criticisms of 1902 Technique.

1904 Class Dinner.
HE Freshman Class held their first annual dinner last Saturday evening at the Hotel Thorndike. Unlike most affairs of this kind, interest did not lag during the hour or two previous to the time set for the dinner. For the first time in many years some few members of the Sophomore class interfered with the arrangements of the dinner committee, and endeavored to make the affair as unpleasant as possible for the Freshmen. It was the intention of the Sophomore contingent to have used a menu made up according to their own ideas, and to forcibly prevent the President of the class and the speakers on the toast list from being present at the dinner. The former intention was successfully carried out. The menus used had printed on the cover: "Victorious Sophomores," "Class of 1903," "Thorndike," "March 30, 1901." The toast list was also somewhat mixed up. Their latter intention, however, of forcibly detaining the speakers, was fortunately discovered in time, the persons in question warned, and escorted to the hotel by several of their classmates. The gloom occasioned by the substitution of the false menus was counterbalanced by the foiling of the plans against the speakers, so the dinner itself passed off very enjoyably, perhaps more so than if there had been no excitement previously.

President Homer opened the after dinner speaking by making a few well-timed remarks on the Class of '04, after which he introduced Mr. H. W. Bull, the toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Bull demonstrated his capabilities for that position and kept the interest where it should be, during the remainder of the evening.

J. W. Cobb gave an interesting prophesy on
