Precision of Measurements.

College Graduates entering Course V., or VI., in third year will be given an opportunity of passing off this subject by taking a special examination in January. For students in Course VI., this subject is required as preparation for the Course in Electrical Measuring Instruments, given in the second term of the third year. The work required will be found fully treated in Holman's "Precision of Measurements."

The ability to solve problems similar to those on pp. 86 to 91, is regarded as essential. Several old examination papers are posted on the bulletin board in Room 16, Walker, to give an idea of work required. The following sections may be omitted:

P. 41, Example IV. Pp. 61-66. P. 91, Example XXI. P. 96 to end of book.

It is recommended that the Course be worked up with a tutor. I shall be glad, however, to have students confer with me in regard to any difficulties which they may encounter in working up the subject by themselves.
H. M. GOODWIN.

In a few days the proof of the student list for the new catalogue will be published.
