Hollis Street Theatre.

William Gillette has been splendidly received in "The Admirable Crichton," and the general verdict is that this delightful comedy by J. J. Barrie is the most brilliant success that he has ever made. The castaways in the Pacific, and the rise and fall of the wonderful butler, are splendidly shown by Mr. Gillette and Charles Frohman's excellent company.

Colonial Theatre.

This is the last week of vivacious Fritzi Scheff in Boston, and then "The Two Roses" will be a memory of the past, but a delightful one. It is a charming comic opera and presents the brilliant prima donna in the best character that she has ever had before the Boston public. Her company is excellent, and the production notable in all respects.

Park Theatre.

Boston now has a chance to see "The Secret of Polichinelle" which enjoyed so great a vogue when James K. Hackett presented it in New York last winter. This clean and sparkling comedy from the French is presented by a strong cast headed by W. H. Thompson, the sterling favorite, and including W. J. Ferguson and Drina De Wolfe.

Tremont Theatre.

Miss Henrietta Crossman, surrounded by an able company, is continuing her success in David Belasco's scenic production, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" at the Tremont. The scene of the play is laid in Bath during the Gainsborough period, and the love, war, and social intrigue of the time are faithfully portrayed. Miss Crossman as Mistress Kitty Bellairs, the dashing widow, adds one more triumph to her list of successes.
