To the Editors of The Tech:

I have for some years been interested in play-going, and getting has been, to me more interesting than to talk over with the Tech man, by whose side I might happen to stand, the charm of this actress the fun of that actor, or the meaning of the piece, or the meaning of the piece. Plays have a particular appeal to us, here at the Institute, in an especially lively way, the effect it would take hours of reading in a novel to produce; and no comments could be more pungent, no appreciation more quick, no discussion more lively, than those good play adores in a Tech crowd. So I have for some time a pet hope that fellows might care occasionally to get totgether to talk over good plays current or to come and thus to keep one

May I ask, then, to meet Friday afternoon at four, in Rogers 11, all fellows who would enjoy some such informal Playgoers' gathering? I
