CHEMICAL SOCIETY SMOKER.
At an interesting Chemical Society smoker on Wednesday evening, at the Union, summer work was described by F. H. Wilcox, '06, and C. B. Merrey, '06.

READING BY PROFESSOR SWAIN.
Prof. Swain gave his second reading before the Civils in 6 Lowell on Wednesday afternoon. The attendance was very nearly equal to that of the first meeting and promises to continue large. About 150 were present.

Prof. Swain finished reading "The Celt of the Twentieth Century," by Pres. David Starr Jordan. He then read a brief biography of Robert Stephenson, son of that George Stephenson, whose invention of the locomotive introduced the railroad and its accompanying engineering problems into England. On the side of hard work and perseverance there are perhaps no finer examples in all engineering biography than George and Robert Stephenson, and the particular account selected by Prof. Swain was interesting and inspiring in a marked degree.
