Those who attended the meeting of the Naval Architectural Society at the Union Wednesday evening had a very enjoyable time. Two seniors—H. H. Brown and Lowry—spoke at some length on their thesis work; and many others of their class expressed the Society with accounts of the symptoms of this work. Everybody seemed prepared for a good time; and with the singing of popular songs and the telling of stories the smoker was a complete success.