A PRINCETON MAN FOR PRESIDENT.

Dean West of the Graduate School of Princeton University Called to the Leadership of Technology.

The Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology made public Wednesday the fact that Dr. Andrew Fleming West, of Princeton, had been formally invited to accept the presidency of the Institute of Technology as the successor of President Parsons. This appointment is subject to confirmation by the Corporation of the Institute, but if Dean West accepts, which is very likely, the confirmation will be a mere matter of form as the choice is thought well of by all connected with the administration.

papers concerning current educational topics. In his literary work he edited in 1888 an edition of the plays of Terence. In 1889 he prepared an edition of the Philobiblon. In 1890 for the Grolier Club of New York, of which Dean West is a member. He is also the author of the "Alcuin" and the "Rise of the Christian Schools," which were published in 1892.
