Now is a good chance for men to try for the business staff of THE TECH. Mr. Brooks, the former manager, has just resigned, which leaves a vacancy in the staff. This work is very good business experience, and too interesting to seem hard. Men wishing to try will leave a note at the Cage for R. W. Parlin, Business Manager.

The attention of THE TECH has been called to the very poor condition of the tennis courts at Tech Field. Upon investigating the matter, the blame for which was laid to the caretakers of the Field, it has been learned that the courts have received the best of care, and that the blame lies with a certain group of Tech men who go to the Field early in the afternoon and play tennis while wearing their everyday shoes, with hard leather heels and soles. The identity of these men is not known beyond the fact that they are Tech men, but unless this is stopped at once, THE TECH will push the investigation further and see that the offenders are properly reprimanded.

As President Pritchett said there is a lot besides learning that we can get out of the life at the Institute which we owe ourselves more than the mere grind of studying. There are many ways in which this debt can be repaid. The most evident way of course is to identify ourselves with, and encourage the various activities. But we are not all athletic, literary, or musical. We must obviously seek some other means of expressing our gratitude.

The classes are about to hold their regular elections; the freshmen their first one. It would be well for the members of that class to start life here with a right idea of the relation of things. All owe something to their class. If you are not already taking some active part you can at least fulfill your duty as a good member of the class. It is no burdensome task, but it is a duty. Inform yourself as to the candidates who have been nominated, cast your vote on Saturday, and cast it intelligently, and with due thought.
